Job market 'Darwinian'

Area posts highest percentage of increase in jobless claims

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Metro Dalton had the second highest number of laid-off workers filing first-time claims for unemployment insurance benefits last month compared to January 2008, according to the state department of labor.

Metro Dalton includes Whitfield and Murray counties.

In January, 9,260 Metro Dalton residents filed first-time claims, up from 3,498 in January 2008, or a 164.7 percent increase. That was the highest year-over-year percentage increase in the state. Only Metro Atlanta had more first-time filers with 19,973.

Statewide, 120,139 laid-off workers filed first-time claims in January, an increase of 80.7 percent from January 2008.

The metropolitan areas with the highest percentage of increase in claims after Dalton were Brunswick, up 163.7 percent, and Rome, up 153.4 percent. The areas with the smallest increase in claims were Columbus, up 21 percent; Valdosta, up 35.4 percent; and Savannah, up 39.1 percent.

"We are witnessing the emergence of a 'Darwinian' job market," state labor commissioner Michael Thurmond said. "The growing number of layoffs has created a surplus of job seekers who are talented, experienced, educated and well-trained. In this challenging environment, the most successful job seekers will be those who demonstrate the highest levels of CHATSWORTH — Jake Born's wardrobe — and his allegiance — will soon change from green and white to black and gold.

Currently enrolled at Murray County High School's Ninth Grade Academy, Born was among several hundred students who attended an unveiling of the logos, mascot and colors for the North Murray High School Mountaineers Thursday afternoon. Administrators and coaches also showed off the new wares at Bagley Middle School, which is the feeder school for North Murray.

"It's cool to have a new school," said Born, 15, wearing a green T-shirt with an arrowhead and the word "Baseball" printed on it. "I really

Murray seeks to change its 'no plan' image

BY MARK MILLICAN

CHATSWORTH — Developer Mike Grant attended Thursday's economic development summit meeting in Murray County because he wants to see community leaders "focus" on making things better.

"I'm here and my family's here," he said. "We need leadership to get involved to get more business into the county. I've started several subdivisions here but we've almost hit a brick wall. We need economic development, and that includes for me and my family."

Sole commissioner David Ridley campaigned last year on bringing economic development to the county. He said the "first step" was the gathering of approximately 30 leaders to share ideas.

"The process of planning a strategy is to make it happen after today," he said. "As good as the ideas we're getting are, we can't forget about it after today. I'd like to look at our Industrial Development Authority hiring a marketing firm or a person to do marketing for the county. I'd also like to see us meeting often like this."

ETON COMMERCE COMMITTEE FORMS

Business owners, land owners, banking leaders and interested citizens are invited to attend a new commerce committee meeting in Eton on Monday at 6:30 p.m. in City Hall.

"We're not trying to disrupt the Murray County Chamber of Commerce or anything like that," said Eton Mayor Billy Cantrell. "We're just trying to get some Eton business people together to talk about bringing commerce and economic development here." For more information, call City Hall at (706) 695-2652.

Lamar Dunn has been with the authority since 2001. He called the hiring of a marketing firm or person "viable."

"Absolutely, that's something we could do," he said. "We probably have the funds, certainly for someone part time. It would be great if we could hire someone to help with economic development."

"I don't think they should raise property taxes anymore."

"If you paraprofessionals had the ambition and drive to go to college and get a degree you wouldn't have to worry about the money you are paid."

"Mr. Espy, you say that firefighters, policemen and editors are held to a higher standard. I don't hold you to a higher standard. You are not my pastors or my deacons. They are held to a higher standard by God, not by you."

"Jimmy Espy, why don't you go back to South Georgia or whatever rock you climbed out from under? You look just exactly like you talk. Get the hell out of town, boy!"

Editor's note: Thanks for reading!

Toddlers connect the dots when parents gesture and talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't just talk to your toddler — gesture, too. Pointing, waving bye-bye and other natural gestures seem to boost a budding vocabulary. Scientists found those tots who could convey more meaning with gestures at age 14 months went on to have a richer vocabulary as they prepared to start kindergarten. And intriguingly, whether a family is poor or middle class plays a role, the researchers report Friday. Anyone who's ever watched a tot perform the arms-raised "pick me up now" demand knows that young-

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Two people injured in a wreck on Cleveland Highway Monday morning were released from Hamilton Medical Center later that day.

Heather Carmichael, 36, of Cohutta, was traveling south in a Ford Explorer near Pleasant Grove United Methodist Church when she signaled a turn, said Trooper Rick Ceballos with the Georgia State Patrol. Scotty Tucker, 29, of Crandall, was behind Carmichael in a GMC Sierra truck. He said he did not see the turn signal and the truck hit the Explorer from behind, flipping it. The Explorer then hit a utility pole. Tests on the turn signal were not possible since it was destroyed in the accident, Ceballos said. No charges were filed.

Murray: Making plans

from industry, banking, tourism and economic development cited the lack of a long-range plan as one of Murray's weaknesses through the years — along with not having Whitfield County's handy access to I-75.

"We have to be ready with a plan when industry comes in looking," said Steve Anglea, a local manager with Georgia Power.

"You have 48 hours," said summit facilitator Chuck Scraggs, also of Georgia Power. "If you don't have a plan in place), you're skipped and they go to the next town."

Community leaders spoke of developing a plan for luring business in the areas of industry, retail and tourism. They noted there will be those who are of the NIMBY (not in my back yard) and CAVE (citizens against virtually everything) camps.

"When I ask people who come into my office why they came to Murray County, they usually say one of two things," said longtime insurance agent John Kenemer, "the courthouse or the (Fort) mountain."

Larry Vanden Bosch, director of community and economic development services at the North Georgia Regional Development Center, sought to reassure attendees.

"I think the basics of economic growth are here," he said. "The challenge is to utilize what you have."

Ridley said another meeting has been set for the full group in July. Committees in the areas of industrial development, retail development, education and infrastructure will meet on a monthly basis, to be announced.

Veteran firefighter's death at age 55 called a 'huge loss'

By MARK MILLICAN
markmillican@daltoncitizen.com

A friend and co-worker of Thomas "Tommy" McTee said he "didn't know anybody who didn't like him."

McTee, a longtime volunteer firefighter with the Whitfield County Fire Department and an employee of Freightliner of Chattanooga, apparently died of a heart attack early Thursday morning. He was 55.

"He was always good-natured and full of energy," said Freightliner employee Lindsey McBride from the Ringgold office. "That's why it floored us when we heard it (Thursday) morning."

McTee was called a "truly super person" by Fire Chief Carl Collins.

"Like a lot of volunteers, he didn't know anything when he signed up in 1984," Collins said. "But he's been the captain of Mill Creek Station 9 since 1984. It's a huge loss."

Visitation will be Saturday from 4 to 8 p.m. at Julian Peoples Funeral Home, Westside Chapel in Rocky Face. The funeral is Sunday at 3 p.m. at Central Church of Christ in Dalton.

Charter Communications to file Chapter 11

By DEBORAH YAO
AP Business Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Struggling Charter Communications Inc., the nation's fourth largest cable operator, said Thursday that it plans to file a prearranged Chapter 11 bankruptcy by April 1.

Charter operates cable systems in Whitfield and Murray counties.

Charter, which is controlled by Microsoft Corp. co-founder Paul Allen, said it has reached an agreement in principle with holders of $8 billion in debt who will give up repayment of their debt. In return, they will receive common shares, or warrants for rights to get common shares, that translate to nearly owning the entire company after bankruptcy.

Allen will remain as an investor and retain the largest voting interest in Charter. While his 51 percent stake in the company will be wiped out, along with those of other shareholders as the stock is canceled, Allen was given voting control by debt holders. Allen also holds some debt, which will be converted, and preferred stock.

In a prearranged bankruptcy, a company enters into reorganization with a plan to emerge that has the approval of major stakeholders. The rest of the creditors will be dealt with through bankruptcy court. In a prepackaged bankruptcy, each creditor has voted on the plan before the filing.

Charter said it plans to pay what it owes to suppliers and other trade creditors in full and go about the normal course of business.

"We are pleased to have reached an agreement with such a significant portion of our bondholders on a long-term solution to improve our capital structure," said Neil Smit, president and chief executive officer, in a statement.

Allen, who owns the Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League and the National Basketball Association's Portland Trail Blazers, put in over $7 billion into Charter, his biggest investment after he left Microsoft in 1983. Over the years, Charter piled on debt for acquisitions. It now serves 5.5 million customers in 27 states.

The company said two of its subsidiaries will make a $74 million interest payment before the 30-day grace period for debt that was due on Jan. 15 expires. Thursday's agreement with debt holders leaves Charter with $13 billion of mostly bank debt, expiring from 2013 to 2016.

Separately, Charter said fourth-quarter revenue is expected to increase by 6.6 percent to $1.66 billion, with adjusted earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization up nearly 10 percent to $620 million.

The company expects to take a $1.5 billion impairment charge for fiscal 2008.

Charter has been skirting insolvency for years, but this time it faces a brutal combination of tight credit and billions of dollars of debt coming due. The company hasn't recorded a profit since it went public in 1999.

Shares of St. Louis-based Charter tumbled 3.4 cents, or 48 percent, to about 3.7 cents on Thursday. The stock earlier hit a low of 2.5 cents.

VIEWPOINTS

An orbital clash with trash

The aerospace community knew a collision was inevitable and that, in turn, signaled a potentially worsening hazard for the space station, shuttle, orbiting telescopes and other satellites.

For the first time since man began the space age, with Sputnik in 1957, two fully intact satellites have collided, creating two large fields of orbiting debris. The statistical likelihood of this stuff colliding with something is small, but at orbital speeds of around 17,500 miles per hour it doesn't take much.

One satellite, belonging to the U.S. company Iridium, relayed phone calls; the other was a defunct Russian military Cosmos satellite. The American-owned satellite was launched in 1997, the Cosmos in 1993, and is believed to have been out of service for a decade. Occurring almost 500 miles over Siberia, it must have been quite a collision: The Cosmos weighed over a ton, the relay satellite 1,235 pounds.

An estimated 6,600 satellites have been launched in the last 51 years, and about 1,000 of those are operational. With China and now Iran launching satellites, there is going to be a lot of metal whizzing around Earth. The U.S. military and NASA now monitor something like 18,000 separate pieces of space debris, some of them quite small.

The space station and the shuttles can be moved if a threat is detected, and most commercial satellites can be repositioned. For whatever reason, the system failed with the defunct Cosmos, and scientists are now trying to find out why.

There have been space collisions before, but it has generally been debris that strikes other debris. This is the first time a fully functioning satellite has been taken out in a collision.

There does seem to be a need for stepped-up monitoring of space debris and perhaps an international convention on disposing of old satellites or parking them in orbits where they're not a threat. It says something that the most enduring aspect of humanity's reach for the stars is litter.

Savior-based economy

President Obama is back in messianic campaign mode. It is unbecoming. When he's not snarling at conservative opponents of his endless spending programs, he's pandering to supporters as the nation's executive organizer-in-chief. At a stimulus rally in Ft. Myers, Fla., on Tuesday, a woman named Henrietta Hughes stood up to decry the mortgage crisis and ask Obama for his personal help. Choking back tears, she implored: "I have an urgent need. We need a home, our own kitchen, our own bathroom."

If she had more time, she probably would have remembered to ask Obama to fill up her gas tank, too. The soul-fixer dutifully asked her name, gave her a hug and ordered his staff to meet with her. Supporters cried, "Amen!" and "Yes!" A young McDonald's worker named Julio Osegueda bolted out of his seat and exclaimed: "It is such a blessing to see you. Oh! Gracious God, thank you so much! Ugh!"

The event turned into a full-blown revival meeting when Obama announced that the Senate had passed his massive stimulus plan. Audience members erupted into applause. Tongues of fire descended from the sky. Loaves and fishes (or rather, pork and Kool-Aid) multiplied miraculously into trillions for all. GOP Gov. Mark Sanford of South Carolina didn't know how right he was when he warned over the weekend: "We're moving precipitously close to what I would call a savior-based economy."

Like Mighty Mouse, President Obama is here to save the day. The government is here to help — and it is your patriotic duty to pay for it all without preconditions. Hughes didn't explain the cause of her financial turmoil. Obama didn't ask. And if we conservatives dare to question the circumstances — and the underlying assumption

Michelle Malkin

Government who cling to what Obama derided as "ideological rigidity."

Well, pardon my unbending belief in fairness and personal responsibility, but why should my tax dollars go to feed the housing entitlement beast? At his fear-mongering press conference Monday night, Obama lamented that homeowners "are seeing their property values decline." Countrywide crouched Sen. Chris Dodd successfully stuffed $50 billion into the just-passed stimulus package for Treasury Secretary Tim Geithner to spend on "mandatory loan modifications" for homeowners deep underwater on their mortgages. That's in addition to the $20 billion already allocated by the House last month for the same purposes.

Banks have been engaged in these "MoMod" programs over the past year. Democrats want to accelerate the pace and use the power of government to essentially provide a blanket amnesty for borrowers and lenders who made bad financial decisions. Yes, there are many responsible borrowers out there having trouble negotiating loan modifications. But this $50 billion giveaway to the banks — on top of the upward of $2 trillion more from the Treasury department, on top of the $700 billion in original "TARP" funding — is throwing more bad money after bad.

This massive expansion of government meddling in the housing market — yet another attempt to get federal bureaucrats in the business of rewriting loan contracts and reducing principal — will just delay the inevitable. A report released by the Comptroller of the Currency in December showed that more than half of loans modified in the first quarter of 2008 fell 30 days delinquent within six months. And after six months, 35 percent of those were 60 or more days behind on their payments.

Where's the fairness in forcing prudent homeowners and renters to subsidize people who bought overpriced homes and rescue the banks that lent to them?

Tellingly, Obama chose Ft. Myers to drum up support for his wealth redistributionism. The area has been one of the hardest hit by foreclosures, as the president was quick to point out. But many of those homes are second or third homes and investment properties. And low housing prices are not a catastrophe for everyone. They've created opportunities for Americans who haven't been able to buy in an artificially inflated market. The median sales price of a home in the Ft. Myers area fell 50 percent to $106,900, from $215,200 in December 2007. Bargain-priced home sales are up 146 percent from a year ago.

It's sacrilegious to say it in the Age of Obama, but it needs to be said: Home ownership is not an entitlement. Credit is not a civil right. Your property-value preservation is not my problem. Can I get an "Amen!"?

Trying to find good news isn't easy

As I was writing this column, the Woman Who Shares My Name wanted to ask two questions. First, would I please talk about positive things this week? "Surely," she mused, "there has to be some good news you can share with readers instead of your usual gloom and doom." I told her she was meddling in my business. This space represents my opinions, and telling me what to write was a violation of my right of free expression, which could land her in serious trouble with First Amendment advocates.

That led to her second question: "How would you like to eat broccoli three times a day for the rest of your miserable life and have what is left over rammed up your nose?" Say what you will about the Woman Who Shares My Name, but she is a terrific negotiator. Hence, I will attempt to offer some good news to go with the bad.

Good news: Our friends in the General Assembly are working on a measure that will double the homestead exemption from $2,000 to $4,000 and give homeowners a tax break worth about $200 to $300 per household this year. Bad news: Local cities and counties will probably have to raise property taxes to cover the shortfall. Maybe politicians understand the logic of this. I don't.

Good news: The General Assembly has voted to meet only three days a week until they can figure out what is going on in Washington with the economic stimulus package. (Good luck with that. Even Washington doesn't understand the economic stimulus package, and they created that Frankenstein.) Bad news: Meeting three times a week means that legislators will be in session until June. Hold on to your wallet.

Dick Yarbrough

Good news: I have heard nary a peep in the past few weeks from President Peanut, Ted "Looney Tunes" Turner or our esteemed Ambassador to Outer Space Cynthia McKinney. Bad news: If they don't say something outrageous soon, I may be forced to write about the medicinal properties of kumquats.

Good news: One of my favorite members of Congress, Dr. Phil Gingrey, R-Marietta, publicly criticized Rush Limbaugh and other conservative talk show natters who "stand back and throw bricks" instead of offering "real leadership" during high-profile public policy battles, like the economic stimulus package. He was right as rain. If Limbaugh is so smart, why isn't he president?

Good news: The University System of Georgia is running like such a well-oiled machine that they can't be bothered with absorbing budget cuts like other parts of state government. While the Legislature is looking into such measures as employee furloughs across all departments to deal with a $2 billion budget deficit, University System Chancellor Erroll Davis told legislative budget writers he's "philosophically" opposed to furloughs.

Bad news: Davis might have to re-examine his philosophy because I have identified some potential furlough fodder for him. There is a particular department at Georgia Tech that doesn't care much for me or my opinions and have let me know via a taxpayer-supported employee on a taxpayer-supported company time, which I assume is taxpayer-supported, too. If I'm the biggest thing on the minds of that group at Tech, I would submit they have too much time on their hands. Give them a non-tax-supported furlough. That's my philosophy.

Good news: I have told the Woman Who Shares My Name that I would appreciate her not interfering in my business in the future. Writing columns is much too complicated for her to understand, and I have neither the time nor inclination to explain it to her.

Bad news: It is hard to breathe with broccoli up my nose.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Feb. 13, the 44th day of 2009. There are 321 days left in the year.

Highlight in History: On Feb. 13, 1935, a jury in Flemington, N.J., found Bruno Richard Hauptmann guilty of first-degree murder in the kidnap-slaying of the son of Charles and Anne Lindbergh. (Hauptmann was later executed.)

On this date: In 1542, the fifth wife of England's King Henry VIII, Catherine Howard, was executed for adultery. In 1741, Andrew Bradford of Pennsylvania published the first American magazine. Titled "The American Magazine, or A Monthly View of the Political State of the British Colonies," it lasted three issues.

In 1920, the League of Nations recognized the perpetual neutrality of Switzerland. In 1945, during World War II, Allied planes began bombing the German city of Dresden. The Soviets captured Budapest, Hungary, from the Germans.

In 1960, France exploded its first atomic bomb, in the Sahara Desert.

In 1984, Konstantin Chernenko was chosen to be general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee, succeeding the late Yuri Andropov.

Ten years ago: In his weekly radio address, President Bill Clinton said as many as 4,000 American troops would go to Kosovo as part of a NATO peacekeeping force if warring Serbs and ethnic Albanians were to reach a political settlement.

Five years ago: Bush trying to calm a political storm, ordered the release of his Vietnamese military records to counter Democrats' suggestions that he'd shirked his duty in the Texas Air National Guard.

One year ago: Hollywood writers ended their 100-day strike that had disrupted the TV season and canceled awards shows.

Today's Birthdays: Former test pilot Charles E. "Chuck" Yeager is 86. Actress Kim Novak is 76. Actor George Segal is 75. Actress Carol Lynley is 67. Singer-musician Peter Dinklage is 67. Actor Stockard Channing is 65.

School this fall. It's also the old Bagley Middle School building.

North Murray will have only freshmen and sophomores in 2009-2010. Juniors are to be added in 2010-2011 and seniors will come on board in 2011-2012. North Murray's athletic schedule this season will be a mix of junior varsity and varsity games. One of those varsity football games will be against Murray County on Oct. 29.

Principal Maria Bradley, athletics director Josh Lowe and the school's three coaches used the unveiling as an impromptu pep session, urging students to stick to their studies, graduate in 2012, be active in the community and participate in sports and other activities such as cheerleading, band and the fine arts.

By choosing the Mountaineers, the new high school departs from the American Indian theme of most Murray County schools. Bagley Middle School is the Braves (with green, black and white as school colors), while Gladden Middle School is the Warriors. Murray County High School is the Indians. North Murray is the only high school in Georgia nicknamed Mountaineers.

"We really wanted to create a unique identity for North Murray High School," Bradley said. "And we felt we would have a more unique identity if we went away from the Native American mascot. We went with what we thought was best for us."

The school site is in a picturesque part of the county and is surrounded by mountains.

"The Mountaineers was just an obvious choice because of the location of North Murray High School being at the foot of the mountains and it's such a beautiful site," Bradley said.

Bradley said the Mountaineer represents "strength, courage and endurance to be a leader and do whatever it takes, so there will be no boundaries and no limitations on what we can accomplish together at our new high school."

Last year, middle school and high school students were asked for their suggestions for a mascot and colors. Response was high with about 1,000 people submitting ideas. Chiefs, Cowboys and Mountaineers were the most popular nicknames. A small committee of administrators and teachers — with student input — picked the new mascot and colors.

The school system was charged with developing a unique color scheme. Murray County has green and white, Dalton High has red and white, Northwest Whitfield High has orange and blue and Southeast High has maroon and silver. Black symbolizes power, authority, aggression, style, glamour and sophistication, Bradley said, while gold is "the color of champions."

The school has two logos. One is an oversized, gold "M" with a smaller "N" sitting underneath, which gives the visual appearance of mountains. The second logo is a cartoon drawing of a bearded Mountaineer, grinning with a determined look on his face.

Larry Cornelius was hired earlier this month as North Murray's first coach. He will head the football and wrestling programs. The 28-year-old Cornelius encouraged students to be involved at the school. He also asked students to come up with a name for North Murray's student section. Murray County already has "The Tribe," a group of energetic students who often dress up for basketball and football games. Cornelius then mentioned that off-season football weightlifting programs will start the morning of Feb. 23.

"We're ready to start a new tradition, a tradition of winning, at North Murray High School," Cornelius said.

Eric Bishop, the school's boys basketball and track coach, and Angela Campbell, the school's girls basketball and volleyball coach, also spoke to the students. Bishop joked the new colors give girls an excuse to buy a new wardrobe.

Many Ninth Grade Academy students, including 15-year-old Carson Bartley, were enthused with the new colors, mascot and logos.

"I think the new colors are pretty cool," Bartley said.

Not every 14- and 15-year-old student was struck with the coolness factor. Some weren't happy with the colors — one contrarian said it looked like Batman's color scheme — while others scratched their heads over the selection of the Mountaineer. For those students and Murray County residents who like the look, North Murray gear — T-shirts, hooded sweatshirts, hats and car stickers — will be on sale at Bagley and Gladden middle schools.

There hasn't been any discussion about changing the Bagley Middle School mascot or colors, principal Spencer Gazaway said. He said some people would oppose such changes, while some would be opposed to not changing.

"I think that it is important as a feeder to instill that sense of pride as far as what the high school is," Gazaway said. "I think it's great that we have a new mascot and color scheme to give this end of the county a new identity, not something that is Native American-themed or green. It was a good step by Dr. Bradley and her staff to set us apart up here."

FBI searches site of Georgia food charity

ATLANTA (AP) — The FBI acknowledges searching a Georgia food charity but will not release any more information on the search.

FBI spokesman Steve Lazarus said Thursday that the search of Angel Food Ministries in Good Hope, near Monroe, Ga., was conducted on Wednesday.

The nonprofit, which takes in an estimated $100 million a year distributing food through churches in 38 states, is run by a minister named Joe Wingo and his wife, Linda. They started it in 1994, using a network of churches to sell food for just enough to keep the organization running.

The Atlanta-Journal Constitution says Internal Revenue Service documents show that Angel Food Ministries paid salaries of more than $2 million to the Wingos and two of their sons in 2006.

Ronn Torossian, a spokesman for Angel Food Ministries, said in a statement that the nonprofit was cooperating with the FBI.

Gregg withdraws nomination

WASHINGTON — Republican Sen. Judd Gregg of New Hampshire abruptly withdrew his nomination as Commerce secretary Thursday, the third Cabinet-level pick scuttled and the latest political stumbling block in Barack Obama's young presidency. "I said yes. That was my mistake," Gregg told reporters at a Capitol Hill news conference. He said he'd always been a strong fiscal conservative. "It really wasn't a good pick." The about-face left Obama without a full team to lead the government. Gregg gave Obama credit for reaching out to him. But, he cited "irresolvable conflicts" with Obama's handling of the economic stimulus and 2010 census.

the disappearance of a 5-year-old north Florida girl as an abduction and continued searching for the child Thursday. The Putnam County Sheriff's Office said investigators assume Haleigh Cummings was abducted because house-to-house searches of the neighborhood Wednesday found no evidence that she wandered away. Haleigh's father Ronald Cummings also said he didn't believe she had left their home in the middle of the night. "I know somebody took her. I know for a fact she didn't wander off — she's afraid of the dark," Cummings told NBC's "Today" on Thursday. Haleigh's mother, Crystal Sheffield, also believes someone took her daughter.

Threats made to octuplet mom

LOS ANGELES — Police said Thursday they will investigate death threats against octuplet mom Nadya Suleman and advise her publicist on how to handle a torrent of other nasty messages that have flooded his office. Word that the 33-year-old single, unemployed mother is receiving public assistance to care for the 14 children she conceived through in vitro fertilization has stoked furor among many people. Police said officers were meeting with Suleman's publicist Mike Furtney about the flood of angry phone calls and e-mail messages against Suleman, her children and Furtney.

Ala. man executed

ATMORE, Ala. — Danny Joe Bradley was executed Thursday for the rape and strangulation of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Rhonda Hardin. The 49-year-old Bradley was given a lethal injection at 6:15 p.m. Central Time at Holman prison after spending 25 years on Alabama's death row. Bradley had no final statement. He stared at the ceiling without looking at the witnesses.

Wild winds blow across North

Wild winds with gusts topping 60 mph blew from the Great Lakes to the East Coast on Thursday, knocking out power to hundreds of thousands of customers, disrupting travel and killing at least five people. The high winds, attributed to a strong low pressure system, started Wednesday night and moved east overnight, kicking up gravel and sand from construction sites and hurling garbage cans onto busy New York City streets on Thursday. Utilities such as Jersey Central Power & Light in New Jersey reported downed power lines from wind-snapped trees. About 250,000 customers remained without power Thursday in Pennsylvania, and 140,000 more in Ohio. There were also about 109,000 outages in West Virginia, more than 35,000 in New Jersey and 14,900 in Michigan.

Paychecks may be slightly bigger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of workers would soon see an extra $13 in their weekly paychecks and thousands of small businesses operating in the red could get tax refunds under the economic recovery bill nearing completion in Congress.

Businesses won't fare as well as they did in earlier versions of the legislation. But most of the tax cuts for families and individuals were preserved, though some were reduced.

There are tax breaks for low-income families with children; college students; first-time homebuyers; people who buy new automobiles; and those collecting unemployment benefits.

The Obama administration says 95 percent of taxpayers will get relief.

"There are provisions that could pay you now and some that could pay you later," said Amy McAnarney, executive director of the Tax Institute at H&R Block. "They're going to give you money to spend, and then they're going to give you incentives to spend it."

In all, the $789 billion plan includes about $280 billion in tax cuts. Congress is expected to send the package to President Barack Obama as early as Friday.

Obama's signature "Making Work Pay" credit would provide up to $400 for individuals and $800 for couples in 2009 and 2010. Most workers would see about a $13 a week increase in their take-home pay, starting around June.

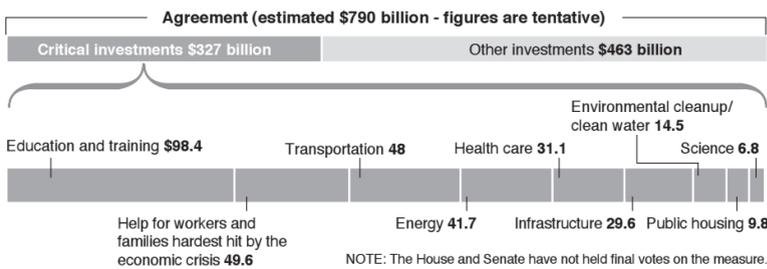

The credit is phased out for individuals making more than $75,000 and couples making more than $150,000. Millions of low-income workers who don't make enough money to pay income taxes would get checks from the government when they file their 2009 tax returns.

Among the other ways taxpayers could save money:

■ Parents with children in college — and some adult students — could get expanded tax credits of up to

Breaking down the stimulus bill agreement

A part of the $790 billion stimulus agreement between the House and Senate negotiators would be allocated to education, transportation and help for workers and families hit hardest by the economic crisis.

SOURCE: Senate Appropriations Committee

$2,500 to help cover tuition and related expenses in 2009 and 2010.

■ First-time homebuyers could get a tax credit of up to $8,000 if they buy homes between Jan. 1 and Dec. 1.

■ Existing homeowners could get a tax credit of up to $1,500 by making their homes more energy-efficient in 2009 or 2010. Numerous projects would qualify, such as installing energy-efficient windows, doors, furnaces, and air conditioners, or adding insulation. Homeowners can get back 30 percent of their expenses, up to $1,500.

■ People who buy new cars in 2009 can deduct the sales taxes from their taxable income.

■ About 24 million taxpayers would be spared from the Alternative Minimum Tax in 2009. The tax was enacted 40 years ago to make sure the wealthy pay at least some tax. But it never was adjusted for inflation, so Congress enacts a temporary fix each year. On average, the fix would save mainly upper middle-income families of four about $2,300.

■ The Earned Income Tax Credit would be expanded for poor families with three or more children that pay no income taxes. More than 22 million families qualify for the credit, one of the government's largest anti-poverty programs.

■ Poor families would have greater access to the $1,000 child tax credit, even if they don't make enough money to pay income taxes.

A married couple with two children making $35,000 would save $1,200 on their 2009 taxes, according to an analysis by Deloitte Tax. That same couple making $125,000 would save $3,700 in part because of the AMT fix.

Bagley wins Invitational Quiz Bowl competition

SUBMITTED BY BAGLEY MIDDLE SCHOOL

The 2009 Bagley Middle School Invitational Quiz Bowl Tournament was held recently. The event allowed eight teams from seven area schools to exhibit their knowledge, quickness and competitiveness. Players had to answer questions from the areas of math, English, social studies, science, sports, art, current events and music.

At the end of round-robin play, one of the host school's two teams took first place honors for the third consecutive year. They boasted a perfect 7-0 record. Westside Middle finished second, while Bagley's second team eased out New Hope for third place honors. Gladden, Valley Point, North Whitfield and Eastbrook also participated.

Members of the winning Bagley team were eighth-graders Jacob Howard, Austin Fariss, Dara Dople and Anthony Silvers, along with seventh-grader Alex Dyer. Bagley's other squad was made up of seventh-graders Hunter Cox, Timothy Southerland, Jacob Hickman, Ethan Hart, Fermin Calderon, Jimmy Jenkins and Catherine Hickey. Teachers working with the group are Virginia Barfield, Jonathan Howard and Tim Howard.

Jacob Howard was named the event's most valuable player. He answered 27 toss-up questions for 270 points. Other members of the All-Star team, all of whom scored 70 or more points, were Austin Fariss and Jacob Hickman from Bagley, Noah Lumpkin from Valley Point, Peter Lugthart from Westside, Raven Henry and John Parrish of Gladden, and Kevin Teasley of New Hope.

Readers for the tournament were teachers Charles Longmire and Kelly Campbell Collis along with Bagley alumni Michael Hassler, Adam Stanley and Cody Rainey. Former and current Bagley students Montana Gray, Chelsea Larmon, Grant Felty, Jesse David Khan and Katlyn Larmon were timers and runners. Quiz Bowl parents and teachers Rachel Adams and Judy Weir also provided help with the tournament. Refreshments were provided by the Quiz Bowl parents, many Bagley staff members, Chick-fil-A of Walnut Square Mall and Subway at Central.

The next area quiz bowl competition for these teams will be on Feb. 25 at North Whitfield.

'Love Letters' opens tonight with actual Dalton couples

SUBMITTED BY DALTON LITTLE THEATRE

JUST THE FACTS

"Love Letters," a reader's theatre production to benefit the Alzheimer's Association's Safe Return Bracelet program, will run today and Saturday at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

Do you remember when you met the first love of your life?

Andrew Mackpeace Ladd III does. It was second grade. He looked across the room at Melissa Gardner and found a friend for life. Only it took Andrew and Melissa a long time — and a lot of letters — to realize maybe they were more than friends and maybe first loves can last a lifetime.

"Love Letters" is the story of Andrew and Melissa. It is a funny, bitter-sweet look at the lives of two very different people who stay connected in the days before e-mail, instant messaging, Blackberries and Facebook. Andrew and Melissa wrote letters.

"Love Letters," a reader's theatre production to benefit the Alzheimer's Association's Safe Return Bracelet program, will run today and Saturday at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

Tonight's 7 p.m. show features Howard and Sandy Elder with Josh Parrott and Grace Kling as young Andrew and Melissa. The Elders have been married 43 years and are members of First United Methodist Church. Howards is employed with J&J Industries, is a member of the Rotary Club and the former chair of the Alzheimer's Association. He also volunteers with United Way. Sandy is active in the Creative Garden Club and Artistic Civic Theatre, serves as a DOC-UP volunteer and sings with Howard in the church choir. She was most recently seen in the ACT production of "The First Baptist Church of Ivy Gap."

At 9:30, Michael Anthony and Susan Ridley will be featured. They recently played not-so-happy couple Harry Brock and Billie Dawn in "Born Yesterday." Both are past winners of DLT Billy Awards for their work. Ridley describes her performance in "Love Letters" as a "labor of love." Her husband of 32 years, Randall, is a victim of a rare form of early onset dementia.

"Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia are devastating," said Ridley. "They affect the entire family, not just the patient. The Alzheimer's Association is an invaluable resource for caregivers, loved ones and our entire community when dealing with the myriad of difficulties brought about by the consequences of this hateful disease."

On Saturday at 7 p.m., Dalton State College's own Dr. John Schwenn and his wife, Judy, will bring a unique perspective to the story. They met in fourth grade and were high school sweethearts. They married after college and came to Dalton via Wisconsin, Mississippi and Kansas. They have three children and two grandchildren.

The Saturday late show will feature DLT's board president and former Billy winner Margaret Zeisig and her husband, Rick. They have two children, Kling and Rowdy Zeisig — both DLT veterans in their own right. Rick and Margaret are seen each Wednesday evening on North Georgia Television's "Georgia Traveler Live." Rick is heard on 101.5 in Atlanta and is the DJ voice behind many parties and events throughout Northwest Georgia. Margaret has been with the United Way of Northwest Georgia for 23 years. Both are active volunteers in the community.

All shows will also feature Kling and Parrott. Both are veterans of the DLT stage and countless other productions at ACT and Dalton High School.

Tickets are $10. Wine and cheese will be served prior to curtain time. For reservations, call (706) 226-6618 or email dlt@optilink.us. For more details, visit www.daltonlittletheatre.com.

Ga. Senate backs seat belts for pickups

ATLANTA (AP) — Adults in pickup trucks would finally have to buckle up, under a bill that sailed through the state Senate on Thursday.

Georgia is the only state in the nation that specifically exempts adults in pickups from wearing seat belts. That defiant stance has cost the state millions of dollars in federal highway funds.

The seat belt measure passed 49-4 on Thursday. It now moves to the House, which in recent years has thrown up a roadblock.

Former House Speaker Tom Murphy — himself a pickup driver — was a vocal opponent who refused to buckle up.

The bill's sponsor, state Sen. Don Thomas, a family physician for almost five decades, says he's seen the carnage from pickup accidents.

“There is a time to buckle up and that time is every time you get in your vehicle, regardless of what type of vehicle it is,” the Republican from Dalton said.

The change has faced opposition from rural lawmakers who see it as an unnecessary intrusion and a burden for farmers who use pickups to haul hay and other supplies as part of their work.

The bill that passed on Thursday carves out an exception for those who are using a pickup “in connection with agricultural pursuits.”

Sunday sales teams with curb on underage drinking

An effort to allow Georgia stores to sell alcohol on Sundays is joining forces with a push to crack down on underage drinking.

Backers of Sunday sales said Thursday that linking the two issues will make the Sunday sales bill more appealing to some conservative lawmakers wary of a backlash from family values groups.

Christian conservatives have fought the bill for the last two years warning it would sully the Sabbath and lead to more alcohol-related deaths on state highways.

The bill is expected to begin moving in committee next week. Supporters insist it has fresh momentum this year. They are stressing that the state's struggling economy could use the additional revenue Sunday alcohol sales would bring.

And Lt. Gov. Casey Cagle — criticized in the past for keeping the bill bottled up in the state Senate — has said he won't stand in the way of a vote this year.

Georgia is one of only three states in the nation that don't allow stores to sell any kind of alcohol on Sunday. The other two are Connecticut and Indiana.

The bill, sponsored by state Sen. Seth Harp, R-Midland, would give local governments the option on whether to permit Sunday alcohol sales. Voters in those areas would then have to approve the change at the ballot box.

Harp said he wants to merge his bill with portions of legislation from state Sen. Dan Moody, an Alpharetta Republican, that would hand down stiff penalties to those who sell alcohol to minors.

Trial: Learning courtroom procedures

Whitfield County Courthouse continues today. Seventeen teams from the Whitfield County and Dalton city school systems have or will participate in the case of the State of Georgia vs. Hansel Schmidt and Gretel Schmidt. Most of the students are fifth-graders in the gifted program, but a few are in the fourth grade.

Hansel and Gretel are accused of stealing pieces of cookies and candies from Crueller's gingerbread shop, breaking up her gingerbread houses and trying to shove her into a hot oven. The defendants say they were acting in self-defense when Crueller ran after them, hoping they would be her next meal.

"They (students) are here today to learn about how citizens' rights are protected under the Constitution," said Eva Hendrix, a teacher at Prosecuting attorney Autumn Fitzgerald introduces a witness during her opening statement Thursday at the Whitfield County Courthouse as assistant district attorney Mark Higgins, serving as judge for the case, listens intently. Fitzgerald, a student at Westside Elementary School, was bringing a case against Hansel and Gretel for damaging a gingerbread house and injuring a bakery owner who just happened to be dressed as a witch.

Cohutta Elementary School are not about winning or losing. We're about justice for Hansel Schmidt and Gretel mock trials are part of the program for gifted students. Whitfield students held trials for the first time last year, and this year Dalton schools were invited to participate.

"The kids have been so into this," Poplin said, adding the students have been practicing since January.

Many children came to court on Thursday dressed for their parts. Young boys assigned to be attorneys dressed in ties and pinstripe suits, girls supposed to be bakers wore aprons and chef hats, and others who were called as witnesses donned dressy courtroom attire.

Cassandra Brown, a fifth-grader at Westside Elementary School, put on a pointed witch's hat and a black, star-studded cape for her part as Crueller. While Cassandra had practiced the part with her classmates, she said she was still somewhat nervous.

"I think (the hardest thing) is just going to be getting up in front of all the people because I'm shy," she said.

One of her classmates, Clipper Smith, was an attorney prosecuting Hansel and Gretel. He said he learned about how closing and opening statements are given by the prosecution and defense.

"It teaches us what kinds of jobs lawyers have, and if we want to be one when we grow up all we have to do is pay attention to what goes on," he said.

Dalton attorney Rick Brown and Superior Court Judge William T. Boyett were among those helping with the program, in addition to a few local lawyers and several teachers. Parents and grandparents were allowed to sit in as jury members.

Prepare for severe weather this week

As part of Severe Weather Awareness Week, Whitfield County Emergency Services officials recently presented several articles to help members of the community become more knowledgeable about ways you can better prepare in the event of severe weather.

They cover the following topics:

- Family preparedness day
- Lightning safety
- Thunderstorm safety
- Tornado awareness
- Flood preparedness
- NOAA Weather Radios
- Weather spotters

The articles are available on The Daily Citizen Web site (www.daltoncitizen.com). Look or search for "Preparing for severe weather."

PREP WRESTLING: STATE SECTIONALS

A last-second effort

Dedication pays off for Duckworth

BY MARTY KIRKLAND

martykirkland@daltoncitizen.com

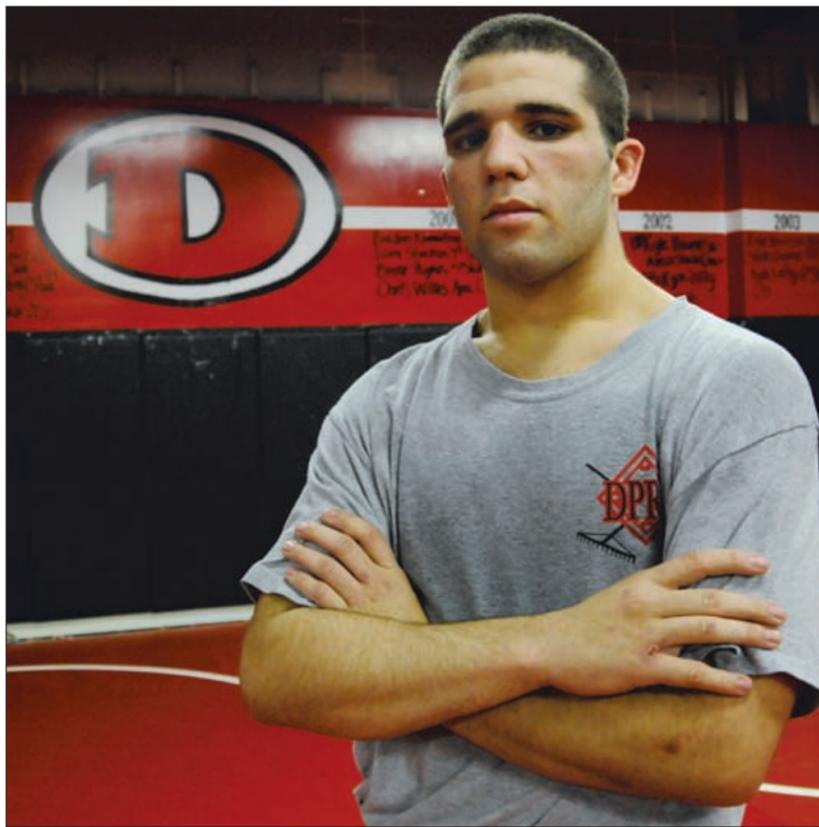

As the third period wound down on the 160-pound final at last Saturday's Area 7-4A traditional tournament in Rome, Dalton High's Taylor Duckworth found himself needing either a few more seconds or a few more points.

But the clock is non-negotiable and for Duckworth, a senior, so was the thought of walking off the mat at his last area tourney without the championship that had eluded him.

"I just wanted," Duckworth said earlier this week, "to win area."

After failing to place as a freshman, he'd taken third the past two seasons — at 160 as a sophomore and 171 as a junior — but knew that couldn't quite compare with standing on the highest perch of the medal stand, as he'd done at three other tourneys this season.

Duckworth was wrestling his area final opponent, Matt Parker of Cass, for the first time and knew little about him, save what he'd seen of Parker wrestling at one tourney

MISTY WATSON/The Daily Citizen

Dalton High's Taylor Duckworth poses in the team's wrestling practice room, where the names of former state placers and area champs are written on the wall. Duckworth joined the group when he won an area title last weekend, but he'd like to add to it with a state crown as well.

New round offers new challenges

BY MARTY KIRKLAND

martykirkland@daltoncitizen.com

Local wrestling coaches will be happy if their athletes are among the top eight after this weekend's state sectional tournaments, because a finish among the upper half of the field means a place at the state traditional next week.

Whether or not it's a good thing that advancing to state now means passing through the sectional round — well, they'll have to get back to you on that one.

Dalton, Murray County and Northwest Whitfield will each send seven wrestlers to the Class 4A West state sectional at Upson-Lee High in Thomaston, while Southeast will send three competitors to the Class 3A West sectional at Riverwood High in Atlanta. Both tourneys begin this afternoon and continue throughout the day on Saturday.

But this marks the first time that teams have had to worry about the sectional round before getting to the state traditional, where all five Georgia High School Association classifications will compete on Feb. 19-21 at Duluth's Gwinnett Center. In past seasons, if you finished high enough in your area, you were in.

Now there's one more hoop to jump through before that trip to state.

"I know it was an attempt to make things fair," Northwest coach Allen Tucker said.

PREP SWIMMING: STATE MEET

Dalton swimmers make medal push

BY LARRY FLEMING

larryfleming@daltoncitizen.com

Dalton will make its annual pilgrimage to the Georgia High School Association state swim meet today, but coach Charles Todd is traveling with an extremely young squad.

"It's a young, talented group," Todd said Thursday. "Our highest seeds are either freshmen or sophomores. I'm hoping for a top 10 team finish and we're looking to go higher as they move up in age."

The diving portion of the state meet was held Thursday at The Marist School in Atlanta, and Catamounts freshman Chase Hair placed 13th with 297.65 points. Girls diver Erin Hullender was 21st with 111.30.

Swimming begins this afternoon at The Westminster School and concludes on Saturday. Dalton's highest pre-meet ranking belongs to freshman Omar Farag, who is 12th in the 100 butterfly.

"Omar could get into the top eight with a big swim," Todd said.

The Lady Cats' 200 freestyle relay unit is ranked 13th.

The Cats' and Lady Cats' medley relay teams each have a No. 14 ranking.

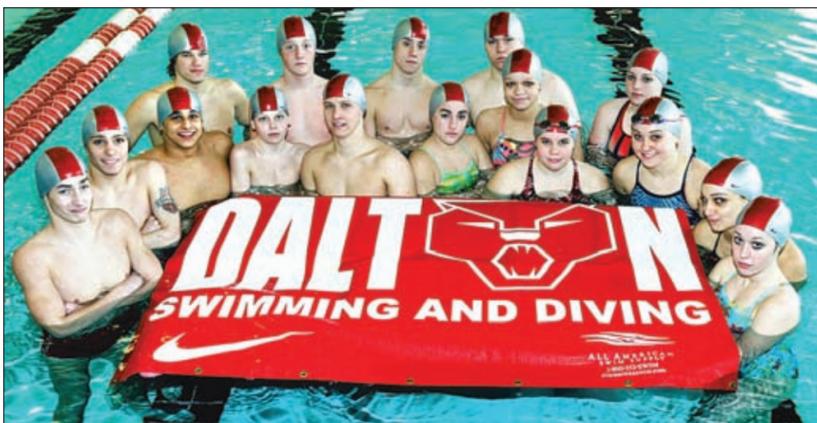

Stephen Jones, another freshman, is ranked 14th in the 100 freestyle and 21st in the 100 backstroke, Todd said.

Sophomore Joana Rosales is rated No. 18 in the 100 backstroke and freshman Rebecca Davis is 18th in the 100 breaststroke.

The Cats' 200 freestyle relay goes in as the 20th-ranked group.

Todd said the boys 400 freestyle relay is 28th, while the girls are rated No. 31.

"I'm looking for some big swims this weekend," said Todd, who is assisted by Sharlinda Haight and George News. "We leave (this) morning and we're psyched and ready to go."

Busch, Gordon play sideshow on this day

BY JENNA FRYER

Associated Press Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Jeff Gordon and Kyle Busch both celebrated in Victory Lane, far away from the real winners of the Daytona 500 qualifying races.

Jeremy Mayfield was emotional. AJ Allmendinger hid his tears behind sunglasses. Scott Riggs felt as if he'd won NASCAR's biggest race. None of them are a threat to win the Daytona 500, but at least they'll be in the show.

Allmendinger, Mayfield, Riggs and Regan Smith earned spots in the season-opening race in Thursday's Gatorade Duels.

"It feels absolutely awesome. It's like we just won the race," said Riggs, who finished eighth in the first qualifier.

None of the four drivers had rides a month ago, piecing together any opportunity they could to get them to Daytona International Speedway. Allmendinger was let go from Red Bull Racing late last year, and is clinging to an eight-race deal with Richard Petty Motorsports. Riggs became unemployed when Tony Stewart took control of his race team and revamped the driver lineup.

Smith was a casualty of the merger between Dale Earnhardt Inc. and Chip Ganassi Racing, while Mayfield has been out of full-time work since Ray Evernham fired him midway through the 2006 season.

Allmendinger, who failed to make the 500 in his first two NASCAR seasons with Red Bull, will finally be able to rest after a stressful buildup to the qualifying races.

"I've been so nervous over the last couple days 'cause I've been in this position the last two years," Allmendinger said.

"But I really felt like this year I deserved to be in the race, that this team deserved to be in the race."

Mayfield has felt the same way, watching from the sidelines as NASCAR roared on without him.

With no ride lined up, Mayfield at the last minute threw his own team together for one last try. He's got a mismatched group of volunteers, and after loaned-out jackman Kyle Roland was injured while pitting Kirk Shelmerdine's car during the first qualifying race, Mayfield borrowed an emergency replacement from Michael Waltrip's crew.

"Man, 23 days ago we didn't even have a race team," Mayfield said after finishing ninth in the second qualifier. "It's a very unbelievable feeling. To know where we were at then, how much hard work has been done in such a short amount of time is just unbelievable. To come here and do this, it's like winning 10 races."

The 39-year-old journeyman is throwing everything into this effort. After racing just 25 times over the past two years, and failing to draw much interest when rides became available, starting his own team became the last option in continuing his career.

"If I ever want to retire as a driver, I want

Effort: Commitment to wrestling pays off

earlier this season. Duckworth's only specific plan for the match was to be aggressive, but he had given up the first takedown and entered the third period trailing, 6-4.

With position choice his for the final two minutes, Duckworth selected down, believing he could produce the most points from that spot. But as the regulation clock ticked toward its final half-minute, he was still on bottom and the only point he'd scored in the third period came when Parker was called for a technical violation.

Duckworth's breakthrough came with 38 seconds left as he scored a reversal that gave him two points, top position and the lead. But two seconds later, Parker reversed Duckworth and, in the process, put him on his back to earn two additional near-fall points, a 10-7 advantage and a dose of momentum that seemed to all but decide the match.

Not in Duckworth's mind. Not with his father, Dennis, or his former youth wrestling coach, Scott Jones, watching. Not with the whole team cheering for him, including Jordan White, a fellow senior who was nearby warming up for the 112-pound final but became the voice Duckworth honed in on with time running short.

"I could hear him the whole time," Duckworth said. "All I could hear was him saying, 'You can do it.' ... I couldn't lose it. Especially to somebody I thought I shouldn't lose to."

And so he didn't. With fewer than 10 seconds remaining, Duckworth reversed Parker one more time and — unaware of the score and believing it was pin-or-go-home — put his opponent on his back to score three near-fall points and win, 12-10.

In addition to having little time, Duckworth had little space to work with, scoring the reversal at the edge of the mat. But he was aware enough to make sure Parker was in-bounds as the ref counted off the seconds that awarded him the decisive points and left a stunned Parker lying on his back as the buzzer sounded.

Duckworth jumped up, pumped his fist and ran a celebratory sprint toward the center of the mat on the same night Dalton followed up its Area 7-4A duals title with the traditional win.

"I was just happy," he said. "I couldn't wait to go to my dad and see how happy he was after that. That was my first thought."

It had taken Duckworth almost until the last possible moment available to win his first area title.

And it has taken a similar last-second effort to deliver on the promise he's long shown as a young wrestler.

A bumpy road

The first phase of Duckworth's wrestling career was just a wink. He joined a local kids wrestling club in kindergarten, but said his mother, Renae, pulled him out of the sport in hopes of counteracting poor conduct in school.

He eventually made his way back to the mat in second grade, wrestling on a club team with White for part of elementary school before joining a squad that practiced out of the Hammer House gym in Calhoun. It was then his career zoomed forward and he began to dominate in USA Wrestling tournaments in the area and beyond.

White recalled the transformation.

"He just started beating my butt," White said. "I went down there once and their practices were crazy. From the third through fifth grade, he got a lot better than I was."

That translated to the middle school mat, where he won league titles his first two years at Dalton Middle, but his progress stalled soon after his seventh grade season.

Duckworth has dealt with a bag of health maladies more loaded than most people would want for much of his young life. He takes medication for Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder, suffers from acid reflux and esophageal ulcers and undergoes regular examinations due to a form of neurofibromatosis, an inherited disease that can produce tumors on nerve tissue.

But he received a stronger dose than even he was accustomed to when, in the spring of his seventh grade year, an MRI targeted at checking his brain for such tumors turned up evidence of a chiari malformation — a disorder in which part of the brain, without enough room to grow within the skull, pushes unnaturally down into the spinal area.

"The doctor was like, 'I don't even know how you're walking,' because I had so much fluid in my spinal column," Duckworth said. "He asked if I was having any numbness, and I was like, 'Yeah, during my wrestling match a couple days ago.'"

And that was the end of that USA wrestling season, a crucial one that led into eighth grade but was cut short as Duckworth underwent a skull and brain operation to remedy the problem.

The surgery was successful even beyond the expectations of the surgeon, who cleared Duckworth for physical activity after six months rather than the expected year.

But he would need another surgery just months after that to reconstruct part of his palette. This operation became necessary after an infection in his mouth, which itself came from a previous dental surgery that followed his collision with a bowling ball as he and a friend tried to retrieve it at the same time after Duckworth dropped it on his own foot.

While Duckworth never missed a scholastic wrestling season, the strict limitation of his physical activity during that stretch led to a rapid weight gain and took something away from his competitive spirit.

"I guess his body and his drive just weren't the same after that," Dennis said.

Teammates, including White, noticed that, too. And so did Charles Mitchell, who took over Dalton's program after the Catamounts endured a tumultuous 2005-06 season — Taylor's freshman year — in which they wrestled a limited schedule after their coach was replaced just weeks before the season.

Duckworth's achievements weren't unimpressive as a sophomore and junior, when his combined record produced more than 80 wins and the two area medals. But his appearances at the state traditional tourney each of those seasons was short and below the level at which Mitchell believed Duckworth capable of wrestling.

"He was a guy that didn't want to give you that total commitment," Mitchell said. "This year, he's been more committed and he's working harder and doing the little things. He used to be the guy that was satisfied with giving the minimal effort. Now he's finally starting to come along and understand."

Getting it right

Although it's been during the past month that Duckworth's progress on the mat has been most evident, the wrestler's gains started with his most dedicated offseason since his high school career began.

He worked out in the weight room under Mitchell's guidance last summer, dropped in at a gym once a week to work on his takedown skills — he had struggled most on his feet and wanted to remedy that this year — and began drilling with new Dalton assistant coach Michael Keefe in the preseason.

Keefe's pushing of Duckworth, in both the physical and mental sense, has made a big difference, the wrestler said.

"Every match last year, I'd get taken down first every single time more than likely, and just try to work from bottom from there," Duckworth said. "I wasn't being that aggressive and I was afraid to take shots. He got me shooting every day and I started feeling confident."

Keefe was an assistant at Ringgold last season, when that school competed alongside Dalton in Area 7-4A, and recalled sizing up Duckworth as a talented wrestler who didn't realize his own potential. That was echoed by Mitchell when he joined Dalton's staff.

"When I came to Dalton, coach Mitchell said, 'If this kid would get on board and commit, he could win a state championship.'" Keefe said. "So I knew right away they were saying his only downfall was having somebody to push him and the mindset to be a champion."

In addition to developing Duckworth's skills in the neutral position, Keefe developed his mind.

"When Taylor's going to beat somebody, you can always tell because he goes out there right away and gets after it," Keefe said. "Then I've seen times in finals where he gets kind of nervous and then I'm nervous. His style of wrestling is going after it."

And so last weekend's final couldn't have been easy for Keefe to watch. It was no easier for Duckworth to endure on the mat, where he was aware the situation was dire, but he never stopped wrestling to worry about the score.

"I think I'm in better shape than most of the guys I'm wrestling," Duckworth said. "If it's going to be a close match, then I want to break them, because I know the other kid's probably going to be gassing after the second period. That's where I think I beat him. I had already broken him and I was just being real aggressive with him."

It's an all-out approach that's been the rule for Duckworth this season at practice. In recent weeks, on his own, he started doing extra sprints when he didn't see the point in wasting time sitting simply because his group was finished.

Duckworth joins six other teammates today at the Class 4A West sectional, where the top eight in each weight class advance to next week's traditional state tournament, the season's grand finale and the place where he would most like to claim a medal.

Time has almost run out on Duckworth's chances for that goal.

But Duckworth's chances, even with little time, seem to be pretty good these days.

"I feel like I can win state," he said. "There's no doubt that I shouldn't if I go out there and wrestle hard every single match, be aggressive with everybody. I've got the heart to do it."

halftime, but outscored LaGrange, 22-9, in the third quarter to blow the game open. Chaney had 11 points in the decisive quarter. Clark scored 14 of his 16 points after halftime.

■ Christian Heritage girls 50, LaGrange Academy 47: Despite foul trouble, Maggie Peeples scored a game-high 19 points and hit a 3-pointer with 55 seconds left to tie the game. After a LaGrange turnover, Peeples and Meg Crawford made free throws to secure the Region 4-2A tournament victory for the Lady Lions (21-4).

Christian Heritage advanced to the second round against Arlington Christian tonight in Fairburn. Game time is 7 p.m.

Caty Nagel had 11 points while Bradley Townsend added 10.

Varsity soccer

■ Dalton 2, Campbell 2: The Lady Catamounts (1-0-1) got a first-half goal from Lisa Mata and a direct kick and after intermission Imelda Cortez scored with an assist by Rachel Czyz.

Campbell scored twice in the second half. Dalton goalie Julie Parham faced 18 shots, giving up just the two goals.

■ Murray County boys 4, Sequoyah 0: Michael Lopez and Mickey Guerrero scored goals one minute apart in the second half for the Indians (2-1, 2-0 Region 7-4A) to break open a match that was scoreless at halftime. Guerrero's goal was assisted by Luis Jimenez.

Rafael Pacheco added a goal 24 minutes into the second half and then Lopez capped the Indians' scoring with his second goal. The Indians took 15 shots.

Murray goalie Rolando Reyes-Ambriz got the shutout and recorded five saves.

JV soccer

■ Rome 1, Dalton 0: The Lady Wolves scored the match's only goal in the 23rd minute of the first half to drop the Lady Catamounts to 1-2 on the season.

Sectional: New for everyone

"And I know other states do it. But the jury's still out for me. I want to see what it's like down there. I know this, you ain't going to wrestle a bad kid early, you're going to wrestle some good kids and you've got to be on your A game. Our kids are excited about it."

The main argument in favor of adding the sectional round was that it would shrink the monolithic beast the state traditional had become since all five classes were moved to one location starting with the 2005-06 season. That change has meant a lot of sitting around for a lot of wrestlers — not to mention the spectators there to watch only a single classification, team or athlete compete — and generally at least part of three days out of school.

Now, state sectionals will mean a 16-man bracket for each weight class rather than the 32-man fields set for recent seasons and a tourney that's held, mostly, over two days.

But getting past area and sectionals may feel like double jeopardy for the teams whose sectional lines lump them in with better programs. That's the concern for some coaches in the Class 4A West sectional, anyway.

"I'm hoping everything works out," Dalton coach Charles Mitchell said. "... but at the same time, I feel like it's unbalanced." Murray County coach

Chris Thornbury's main concern is that the sectional round adds "another week to a very long season" and hurts multi-sport athletes in their preparation time for spring sports. Other coaches, including Southeast's Neil Nichols, also pointed out the financial impact an extra weekend can have on a team's wallet in paying for hotel rooms, meals and gas.

As for the task his wrestlers face, Thornbury isn't complaining.

"I just want us to go and do well," he said. "You've only got to be top eight and win two matches."

Nichols is keeping it simple as well when talking to his wrestlers.

"My focus has just been, two wins, two wins, two wins," he said. "Because two wins gets us to the next step. That's the important thing in the sectional."

In fact, Tucker noted, team points won't be kept and place medals won't be awarded in what's basically an elimination event. For Class 4A state duals runner-up and Area 7-4A traditional champ Dalton, advancing all seven of its competitors would give it a strong shot at winning the state traditional.

"I believe they've all got a pretty good chance," Mitchell said.

Dalton's Eduardo Gutierrez (103 pounds), Jordan White (112), Christian Washington (119), Henry Torres (125), Renaldo Torres (130), Taylor

Duckworth (160) and Dean Menchaca (215) will all compete today. So will Murray County's Josh Webb (103), Dalton Lane (135), Brian McMillan (160), weight class' runner-up — David Thornbury (171), Zac Dills (189), D.J. Winters (215) and Jake McConathy (285).

Russell Royal (112), David Lewis (135), Kenny Michael (140), Josh Lewis (145), Garrett Henderson (160), Adam Selby (215) and Adam Wilkins (285) will compete for Northwest, while Nick Didonato (135), Andy Pichardo (140) and Cristian Perez (215) will do so for Southeast.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Selig lashes out at A-Rod on steroids

TAMPA, Fla. — Bud Selig says Alex Rodriguez has “shamed the game,” though the baseball commissioner indicated no plans to punish the three-time AL MVP.

Two days after Sports Illustrated reported Rodriguez tested positive for steroids in baseball’s anonymous 2003 survey, Rodriguez admitted on Monday that he used unspecified drugs from 2001-03 while playing for the Texas Rangers.

“I am saddened by the revelations,” Selig said in a statement issued Thursday. “What Alex did was wrong, and he will have to live with the damage he has done to his name and reputation.”

Players and owners didn’t agree to a joint drug program until August 2002, and testing with punishment didn’t start until 2004.

Williams ‘slams’ new doping rules

PARIS — Serena Williams joined the chorus of top tennis players who believe new anti-doping measures on athletes are too strong.

The top-ranked American said the rules were “over the top.”

Under the latest WADA code, athletes must specify one hour each day when and where they can be located for testing. Athletes must also tell anti-doping authorities where they will be over the next three months, but they can update this by e-mail or phone message at short notice if it changes.

Top-ranked Rafael Nadal insists that forcing top athletes to be available one hour a day for testing amounted to intolerable harassment.

Iowa’s Ferentz gets a seven-year deal

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Iowa football coach Kirk Ferentz has agreed to a new, seven-year contract that includes the same salary and bonus structures as his previous deal.

The contract will run through the 2015 season. Last year, Ferentz’s average annual salary was $2.84 million.

Marlins’ Uggla wins arbitration

PHOENIX — Second baseman Dan Uggla won his arbitration case against the Florida Marlins on Thursday and was awarded $5.35 million.

Arbitrators made the decision one day after hearing the case. The Marlins offered $4.4 million.

Uggla hit .260 with 32 homers and 92 RBIs last year.

Nationals acquire power hitter Dunn

WASHINGTON — Adam Dunn has agreed to a $20 million, two-year deal with the Washington Nationals.

The contract will pay Dunn $8 million in 2009, and $12 million in 2010.

Dunn, a first baseman and outfielder, hit a combined .236 with 40 homers, 100 RBIs and 164 strikeouts last season with the Reds and Diamondbacks.

Arkansas’ Fortson handed suspension

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Arkansas point guard Courtney Fortson was suspended indefinitely by coach John Pelphrey on Thursday.

The freshman has started all but one game this season, averaging 14.6 points and 6.5 assists. He fouled out of Arkansas’ last game.

Pelphrey wasn’t specific about why Fortson was suspended.

COMMENTARY: PRO WRESTLING

WWE toning down violence against women

Here are the news and notes from the world of pro wrestling:

• WWE is becoming kinder and gentler. Because of mounting criticism and pressure from advertisers, the organization is scaling back its man on woman "violence." WWE announcer Jim Ross commented on the change on his blog at www.jrsbarbq.com/blog.

"Perpetuating this sort of thing has never been admirable in my view and what does it teach impressionable, young viewers?," Ross wrote. "Domestic abuse is horrific in this society and portraying it on TV for 'entertainment purposes' is hypocritical. I think the WWE has definitely made the right call on this matter if indeed the male on female aggression is history."

Ross added he didn't support Chyna winning the WWE Intercontinental title several years ago.

• Retired WWE diva Victoria is pursuing a career in MMA.

Daytona: Gordon ends longest winless drought of career

to retire on my own, not be pushed to the wayside," Mayfield said. "That's what kept me motivated to do this."

Riggs could relate after a fruitless off-season job search had him still scouring for work last month.

He was finally swayed by Tommy Baldwin, who was crew chief and competition director at Bill Davis Racing before the sponsor-strapped team folded in late December. Baldwin was putting together a startup race team, and lured Riggs to the driver seat.

"It came down to a point that I had to make a decision — am I going to sit at home and stay on the phone and call people and hope that something opens up to give me an opportunity to get in the car?" Riggs said. "Or am I going to go down to Daytona and start the season off with somebody like Tommy?"

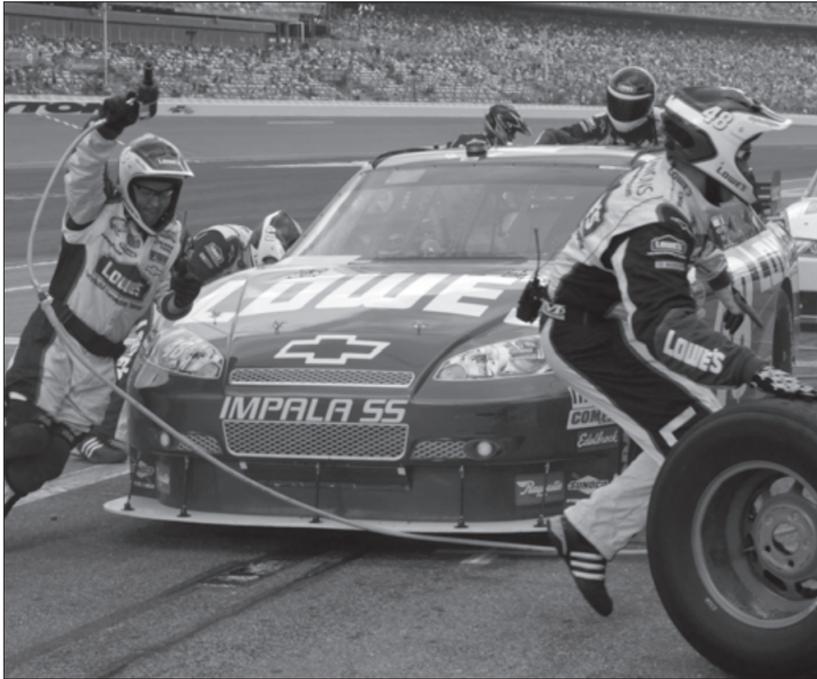

"What really made the decision for me was when I talked to Tommy and just heard the passion in his voice. Man, I am just elated."

So was Gordon, who ended the longest winless drought of his career by winning the first duel.

The four-time Cup champion, coming off his first winless season since his 1993 rookie year, climbed from his car in Victory Lane and immediately reached for his young daughter. Ella was just an infant during his last victory celebration, in October 2007.

"I've been fortunate enough to visit Victory Lane quite a few times, but not many times as a father," Gordon said. "There's nothing more special than that."

The non-points Gatorade Duel doesn't officially count for anything in Gordon's victory total, but gave him a second-row starting spot in Sunday's race.

Crew members change tires on Jimmie Johnson's car during Thursday's first 150-mile qualifying race for Sunday's running of the Daytona 500.

It also gave him much-needed momentum after his disappointing 2008 season.

"Who says we can't win?" Gordon asked. "This team has been unbelievable. We all know what we went through last year by not winning. There's a lot of expectations on this team, but they never wavered. The guys just kept working hard, building great race cars.

"I'm really excited about the Daytona 500 after that race. It's been awhile since I've been to Victory Lane. I've got to take advantage of this."

Busch also made an overdue return to Victory Lane, where he has been a frequent visitor last season before tailing off when the championship was on the line. Busch won eight races last year and led the Cup standings most of the season, but started to falter in August and fell apart when the Chase for the championship began.

A victory in the duel — he held off a late charge from sentimental favorite Mark Martin and used help from teammate Denny Hamlin — has helped him regain momentum.

"It was a disappointing season toward the end," Busch said, "so that was a great way to start it off."

■ TRUCK SERIES: Johnny Benson opted out of Bill Davis Racing weeks before capturing the NASCAR Truck Series championship last fall, unsure if he wanted to keep going.

Benson should've known better. Three months after edging Ron Hornaday by seven points for the title, the 45-year-old veteran is back at Daytona International Speedway for tonight's 250-mile season-opener in a different truck — Red Horse Racing's No. 1 Toyota — but the same expectation: to win.

"There's going to be a lot of different challenges ahead of us," Benson said. "If we're able to overcome those challenges quickly, I think we have a shot at defending the title. If we don't, then it will be a little long."

Maybe, but following NASCAR's tough winter, Benson has as good a chance as anyone. Crew chief Trip Bruce and several team members made the jump along with him and a little carry-over could go a long way toward pushing Benson to a second straight championship.

Benson will start 21st after a qualifying speed of 174.132.

Colin Braun, driving a Ford, starts from the pole with Matt Crafton alongside. Braun, in a Ford, took the inside starting position with a speed of 177.441. Crafton, in a Chevrolet, was next at 175.891.

Todd Bodine in a Toyota, Ron Hornaday Jr., in a Chevrolet and Mike Skinner's Toyota round out the top five.

Player's death ruled accidental

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LUCEDALE, Miss. — A star Mississippi high school football player accidentally shot himself with his shotgun after he was pulled over during a traffic stop, a grand jury ruled Thursday.

Billey Joe Johnson, 17, a junior at southern Mississippi's George County High School, died of a wound to the left side of his head on Dec. 8 after a deputy pulled him over for running a red light.

After an initial investigation, authorities said the blast had been self-inflicted. The grand jury was looking at whether it was an accident, suicide or even a possible slaying.

It concluded there was no forensic evidence, including DNA, that indicated the deputy who pulled Johnson over had fired the shotgun and said no other people were involved in the shooting.

"The grand jury finds ... that Deputy Joe Sullivan was in his patrol car at the time of Billey Joe Johnson Jr.'s death," the ruling said.

The mystery surrounding the athlete's death has inflamed suspicion within the community, with Johnson's family and the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People rejecting any notion that the black teen committed suicide. They said the talented running back once clocked at 4.3 seconds in the 40-yard dash had too much to live for including a chance of playing in college and maybe the NFL.

His mother, Annette Johnson, said she believes the 16-member grand jury is wrong.

"I ain't buying that," she said, surrounded by supporters at the George County

Courthouse. "We are going further and we are going higher."

The report said Sullivan, who is white, did have gunpowder residue on his hands but concluded it came from him handling his service revolver the morning of the shooting. They said based on the lack of Johnson's blood on Sullivan's clothes and eyewitness reports that the deputy could not have shot the athlete.

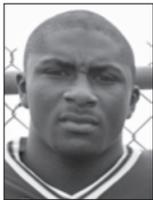

Johnson's hands also tested positive for gunpowder residue and there were no other injuries on his body, according to the grand jury report. The report did not detail how Johnson accidentally discharged the gun that he had with him because he had planned a hunting trip. Police have said that by the time other officers arrived, Johnson was lying on the ground outside of the driver's side door with a shotgun on top of him, the barrel pointing toward his head.

Johnson family attorney Jerome Carter has said his independent investigation of the case will continue and hopes his team will be allowed to review the autopsy and other evidence.

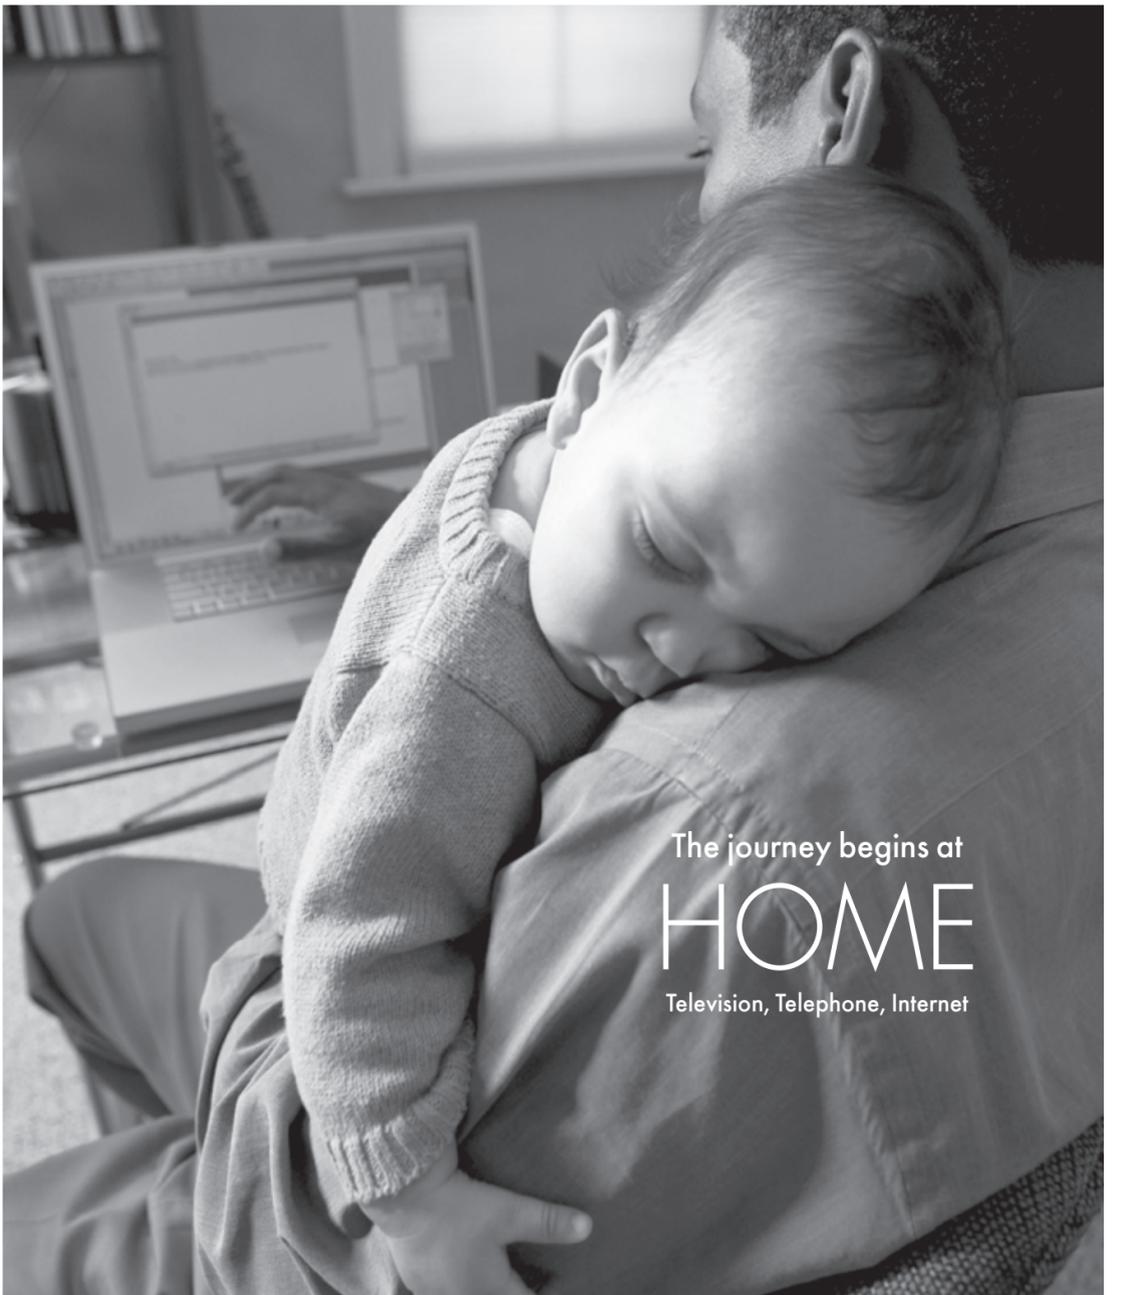

"I'm very concerned with Detective Sullivan testing having gunshot residue on both of his hands having just logged in being on duty," Carter said.

Dozens of people — mostly family members and friends — prayed outside the courthouse in Lucedale before going inside to hear the report read aloud.

The NAACP said it would submit its evidence to the U.S. Justice Department and ask for a federal probe.

Truex Jr. concentrating on Daytona after Pepsi 400 setback

Martin Truex Jr. and his Kevin Manion-led crew showed Sunday in winning the pole for the Daytona 500 that they kept their focus over the winter despite all the potential distractions surrounding them. And they proved that they can build a fast superspeedway car without having to skirt the rules. Truex Jr. raced last year for Dale Earnhardt Inc., which has since merged with Chip Ganassi Racing as the two owners tried to cope with the economic downturn that has seen many of their employees lose jobs since last year. But when qualifying for this week's Daytona 500 was over, three of the top seven qualifiers were from the Earnhardt-Ganassi organization. Juan Pablo Montoya was fourth and Aric Almirola was seventh.

Truex Jr., who edged Mark Martin for the prestigious pole, said in his post-qualifying press conference that NASCAR's curtailing of testing, including the cancellation of preseason sessions at Daytona, couldn't have come at a better time for his team. "With all that went on over the winter with us and our race team — moving shops and combining our efforts — testing would have hurt more than helped us," he said.

And he said his team was hungry to redeem themselves after last summer's disaster in Daytona.

During inspection for the Pepsi 400, the team's car was impounded after it failed to fit the templates. The team and Truex Jr. were docked 150 points and Manion was suspended for six weeks, two moves that derailed the team's chances of making the Chase for the Sprint Cup.

"Since July, when our car had to stay down here and we didn't get to run it, [qualifying day] has been circled on our calendar," he said.

Wood Brothers team turns heads with strong practice runs

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla. Faced with some difficult decisions after a disappointing 2008 NASCAR season, the venerable Wood Brothers racing team decided to do what they do best — run a partial schedule with a veteran driver behind the wheel of their famous No. 21 Ford.

So far, the results indicate that they're headed in the right direction. At Daytona International Speedway, Bill Elliott was fastest in the first two Sprint Cup practice sessions and qualified fifth for Sunday's Daytona 500, the best speed for a Ford driver and the fastest of the drivers not already assured of a starting spot because of their car-owner points from last year.

They assured themselves of a starting spot in the 500, and it was by far the best showing for a single-car team.

The current NASCAR trend — toward full-time multi-car teams — may be against the Woods, but history is on their side. Their best years came in the 1970s, when they focused on the superspeedways, with the Silver Fox, David Pearson, doing the driving. From 1972 through 1978, they won 43 times. In 1973 they won 11 of 18 races entered; in 1976, they were victorious in 10 of 22.

And they're the last team to win with a driver over age 50. Morgan Shepherd drove the No. 21 to victory at Atlanta in 1993 at age 51.

This year the Woods plan to run a limited schedule — about 12 races, focusing on intermediate-size tracks plus the Daytona 500 with 53-year-old Bill Elliott behind the wheel.

Veteran crew chief David Hyder is leading the effort to prepare the cars. On most any given day, he can be found in the shop, wearing jeans and a T-shirt, often under a car or with wrenches in hand. He's working with a small staff — around 40 on the payroll — but he's confident they can give Elliott a car capable of helping the team reverse its fortunes. "We took a smaller group of guys that are real racers and put it back together like it was when they were running with David Pearson," he said. "We've got a lot of racers in here. We've built the two best speedway cars that I've ever had anything to do with. It's incredible the workmanship we're getting. It could come true."

While many in the sport look at the Woods, the last of the original teams still around now that Petty Enterprises is no longer a functioning entity, as a sentimental favorite or an underdog to pull for, team co-owner Len Wood doesn't want to be viewed that way. "I don't like to be considered underdog, but we're in a tough situation," he said. "Multi-car teams make sense, but if you don't have the funding, it's a bad thing. "We're going to do what we're doing and do it right. I'd like to prove some of the naysayers wrong. Go out and do it." And he's confident they can. "We want to turn this thing back around," he said. "We are racers."

Len's brother Eddie Wood said a part-time schedule makes more sense than some realize. He said his team can concentrate its effort on the

Rick Minter's OBSERVATIONS

Key story lines this week in NASCAR.

Driver/owner has advantage, says Waltrip

Tony Stewart came out of the box as a car owner in fine fashion. In his first start in Sprint Cup as a driver/owner, he led four laps in the Budweiser Shootout and finished third. In qualifying for the Daytona 500, he was 10th fastest, assuring himself of a starting spot in the 500. His teammate Ryan Newman was third in qualifying.

So far, so good for Stewart, who has been amazingly at ease during the run-up to the 2009 season. Many in the sport are wondering whether Stewart's good mood will last and whether ownership will make him a different driver.

Michael Waltrip, who is both driver and owner at Michael Waltrip Racing, said that while Stewart may find managing a team to be a little more troublesome than he predicts, it shouldn't affect his performance behind the wheel.

"When you show up at the races, that's awesome," Waltrip said. "I love it because you forget about being an owner and the struggle that it is and what the week was like. You just say, 'Oh, good, there's my car. I'm going to get in it and go.'"

Waltrip said that, in many respects, a driver/owner has an advantage, technologically speaking. If he sees something in the car that doesn't look like he wants it to, he can make sure that it gets fixed.

"I'm in the car that I've prepared and I know I can evaluate it better than some other owners could who don't have the experience and the knowledge that I've gained over the years," he said, quickly adding that it's the other people on the team that matter most. "It's not the owner or the driver, it's the supporting cast around you that helps you to make good decisions and be successful."

Haven't we seen this ending before?

When it comes to high-profile NASCAR races, Kevin Harvick has a way of rising to the occasion. He won the Daytona 500, in 2007, the Brickyard 400 in 2003 and the NASCAR All-Star race in '07.

Last Saturday at Daytona International Speedway, he bagged another big one, the Budweiser Shootout. His victory in the non-points race was his first in a Cup car since his win in the 500 two years ago, and it came in a remarkably similar fashion.

After being nearly written off because of a mid-race skirmish, he sped into the lead, passing Jamie McMurray just an instant before the caution flag flew, essentially ending the race. In the 500 two years ago, Mark Martin had the misfortune of losing the lead to Harvick in the closing seconds.

"I think there are a lot of parallels as to the way this race and the 500 shook out," Harvick said in his post-race interview. "We were just closer to the front on that last restart. I think we restarted sixth or seventh in the 500. I think we were fourth tonight."

"It all kind of worked out the same way. In the end, we were on the top, coming off Turn 2 with a head of steam. We were able to clear the pass there. The only difference was the caution came out this time because it was such a big wreck."

Hornaday Jr. recalls father's guidance, devotion to family

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Sometimes in racing, amidst all the worries about the economy and whether there will be full fields for upcoming races and enough fans to fill the grandstands, it's easy to forget there are other important things in life.

That fact was brought to light in a recent media event at Daytona International Speedway when Ron Hornaday Jr., the tough-as-nails truck series racer, shared with the reporters his thoughts about the recent passing of his father.

"My father passed away just a couple days before Christmas, and it was pretty tough," Hornaday Jr. said. "But he was ready. ... He paid his trash bill for a year. He paid all his taxes and everything for a year, so he was ready to go."

Hornaday Jr., who races in the Camping World Truck Series in a Chevrolet owned by Kevin and DeLana Harvick, said he didn't realize until it was too late how sick his father was. "He was one of the quiet guys that kept everything to himself and didn't want to burden my racing with it, and that's kind of what hurts my feelings, that he didn't want to bother me with my racing to let me know about his health."

Ron Hornaday Sr. was a racer himself, running primarily at tracks near his home in San Fernando, Calif. He did make 10 starts in the division now known as Sprint Cup. He ran from 1955 to 1973 and recorded two top-five finishes — a fourth at Sacramento in 1960 and a fifth at Los Angeles the next year. Hornaday Sr. usually drove cars for other owners, but he also had his own equipment.

"He was a hard-knock type racer, believed in his family first," his son recalled. "He always put food on the table first, and racing came later. He kind of taught me that way."

Hornaday Jr. said that when he was a newlywed, his wife Lindy suggested he build his own car. His dad was right there to help.

"Doing that with the help of my dad, building my first competitive race car, was a lot of fun," Hornaday Jr. said. "The coolest part about it is my dad is like my father-in-law, they're from the old school, don't throw anything away, and both of them raced together."

Today, Hornaday Jr. has his dad's old tool box, which holds as many memories as wrenches.

"Just remembering all the tools when I got to build my first race car, and all the trick tools we made to pull a shock off back then or a spring out ...," he said. "I'm building a '66 El Camino with the tools that my father left me. It's a good remembrance of what he's done for me."

One regret Hornaday Jr. expressed is that his father, who ran with NASCAR's top stars on the West Coast at tracks like Ontario Motor Speedway and Riverside International Raceway, never got to race at Daytona, a dream of any racer. But Hornaday Jr. has some ideas about that, too.

"I don't know if it's legal or not, but I've got a little bit of his ashes and when I come down here [to race], I'm going to spread them in [Lake Lloyd]," he said.

BRIDGE

Test your play

Players who enjoy solving double-dummy problems will get a kick out of this one, in which South can make all the tricks with correct play. This is not an easy problem.

Here is the solution. Win the spade lead with dummy's king and play a diamond to your king. Then lead a low trump and finesse the eight.

Ruff the six of diamonds with your queen and return a low heart to dummy's ten. After ruffing the eight of diamonds with your king, cash the ace of clubs, then return to dummy with a trump to the ace and cash the ace of diamonds, discarding a club.

This is now the position:

North
 ♠ A K
 ♥ A 10 8
 ♦ A Q 8 6 3
 ♣ 5 4

West
 ♠ J 10 9 8 5
 ♥ J 9 4
 ♦ J
 ♣ J 9 8 6

East
 ♠ Q 6 4
 ♥ 3
 ♦ 10 9 7 5 4 2
 ♣ K 3 2

South
 ♠ 7 3 2
 ♥ K Q 7 6 5 2
 ♦ K
 ♣ A 10 7
 ***

Cash the queen of diamonds, discarding your ten of clubs. East cannot afford to discard a club on this trick since you could then ruff the five of clubs to make the contract. So let's assume East discards a spade.

West also cannot find a satisfactory discard on the diamond queen. First, let's assume he discards a spade. In that case, you would cash the ace of spades and score your 13th trick with the seven of spades.

So let's say West discards the nine of clubs in the diagrammed position. You would then counter by leading the queen of clubs from dummy, trapping East's king and West's jack at the same time and establishing dummy's five. Thus, whether East elects to cover or not, you score an extra club trick to make the contract.

Sorting out the causes of ankle swelling

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You wrote that the causes of one-sided ankle and foot swelling are different from the causes of swelling in both ankles and feet. I am 80 years old and have swelling only of my left ankle and foot. I do not have high blood pressure. In 1993, I had my left kidney removed because of cancer. — S.S.

Paul G. Donohue

that comes from the circulation and percolates over tissues to bathe and nourish them. Lymph vessels, open-ended vessels, suction the lymph and return it to circulation. On its return journey, lymph passes through lymph nodes, where foreign material is removed. Disruption of lymph vessels or lymph nodes leads to swelling of the area deprived of those structures. Lymph fluid accumulates there. This often happens after surgery. Breast surgery with removal of lymph nodes and lymph vessels can lead to swelling of the arm on the side of the removed breast. Radiation, infection and trauma are other causes of lymph accumulation. A clot in a leg vein is a common cause of one-sided swelling.

These generalities don't always hold true. Early heart failure, for instance, can cause one-sided swelling. The important point is that the cause of any swelling must be found before proper treatment can be given.

FOR READERS: The booklet on gout and pseudogout covers these conditions in depth. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 302, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please explain what a silent heart attack is.

If a person fell and hurt his ribs and they were sore for many weeks, could that damage the heart? — V.S.

ANSWER: Heart attacks can happen without any symptoms — silent heart attacks. Such attacks happen more often to people with diabetes, to the elderly and to women. Silent heart attacks are more dangerous than pain-producing heart attacks because people are unaware that they have any trouble. Quite often, the attacks are discovered when an EKG is taken as part of a physical exam. A fall with rib bruises would not create EKG changes of a heart attack, nor would such a fall harm the heart.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Our 22-year-old granddaughter has developed an uncontrollable giggle. She giggles before, during and after everything she says. Each time we talk to her, the giggles and their frequency get worse. She is basically shy and appears to be nervous, and says she is not consciously aware of her giggling. She says her friends have remarked on this, too. Is this a tic disorder? Is there something a doctor can do to help her? Is there medication? — S.N.

ANSWER: Underlying anxiety, stress, shyness and social phobia set in motion reflex defenses for people who harbor these traits. It's their way of coping with situations that generate discomfort. It's not a tic, although it is somewhat similar. Both are involuntary.

I would first talk to the

Charley Pride leads Arkansas lawmakers in sing-along

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Country music singer Charley Pride dropped by the Arkansas Senate to lead lawmakers in a sing-along, and to praise the Little Rock hospital that removed a tumor from his vocal cords 10 years ago.

In town for a routine check of his vocal cords, Pride dropped by the Senate Wednesday and sang five of his hits including "Crystal Chandeliers" and "Is Anybody Going to San Antonio" from the Senate floor.

"I enjoyed it. They were a great audience," the Country

Music Hall of Famer said after the impromptu concert.

Pride said he was grateful to the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences, where he had surgery in 1997 to remove a tumor from his right vocal cord. The Mississippi native said he visits Little Rock regularly for checkups following the surgery.

Gov. Mike Beebe, who joined lawmakers in the sing-along, gave the country music star an "Arkansas Traveler" certificate, which is given to out-of-state dignitaries and celebrities who visit the state.

"On behalf of the people of Arkansas, you're an ambassador on behalf of our state and we hope that you'll come back often," Beebe said.

State Sen. Steve Faris, who worked as a DJ for a country music station for 13 years, said he had invited Pride to visit the Senate because he knew the singer would be in town for the checkup. Faris said he credits UAMS for saving Pride's voice and wanted the singer to share his story with lawmakers.

"His career would have been over had it not been for them," said Faris, D-Malvern.

DEAR ABBY

Teen girl second-guesses engagement to impatient beau

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 but will be 17 in a few months. I have known my boyfriend, "Gabriel," for two years. He is my first boyfriend.

After four months of dating, Gabriel has asked me to marry him, and I said yes. He had been hinting about an engagement, and I didn't have the heart to say otherwise. Gabriel is very dear to me, but I keep hearing people say, "Keep your options open." I told Gabriel that I am young (he's 18), and I want to take it slowly, but he says if I break up with him to date other guys, he will never date me again.

Abby, I want to make sure Gabriel is the person I want to spend the rest of my life with. Sometimes I wish I hadn't started dating him because I feel too young to be engaged or married. I love Gabriel dearly. I don't want to break his heart or mine. I am also scared I might mess up this relationship. What should I do to make myself believe that I have found my true love? — STUCK IN OKLAHOMA

Gabriel is pressuring you because he is afraid if you start dating others he won't measure up. For both your sakes, tell him that you are not ready to make the kind of commitment he is demanding. He may not like hearing it, but it is the truth. You won't break his heart, and once you have done it, you will feel a sense of relief.

Jeane Phillips

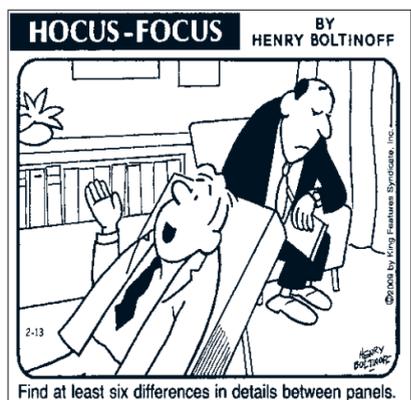

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married almost five years. Our wedding present from his sister and her husband — who owns a video production company — was supposed to be our wedding video.

Abby, we still have not received it or seen it. We have asked for it many times, and his answer is always, "I'm working on it." It's really sad. I now have two children, and this has become a sore subject. What can I do to get it without causing any more drama in the family? — YEARNING TO SEE IT IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR STUCK: You should have been absolutely honest with Gabriel from the beginning. When you have found your own true love, you won't have to "make yourself" believe it. You will KNOW it.

DEAR YEARNING: What can you do to get it? FORget it! Either the video was lost or something went wrong with the camera during your wedding, and your brother-in-law didn't have the courage to fess up. Shame on him.

Hawks revel in first-half play

AP PHOTO
Atlanta's Josh Smith jumps on the back of Henry Bibby after a victory earlier this season. The Hawks are 31-21 at the All-Star break.

BY PAUL NEWBERRY
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA — Josh Smith, who was there for the worst of seasons, sat at his locker pondering the much-improved state of the Atlanta Hawks.
“How many games did we win last year?” he asked.
Thirty-seven, someone replied.
“Well, we’re only six games behind that,” Smith quickly deduced. “That just shows the maturity and hard work in the offseason to get us where we are right now.”
Yep, the Hawks are sitting pretty at the All-Star break, holding down the all-important fourth spot in the Eastern Conference with a 31-21 record — their best mark at this point in the season since 1996-97.

Atlanta went 37-45 a year ago, which doesn't sound all that impressive until you consider where the Hawks were coming from. They went 13-69 during the 2004-05 season, Smith's rookie year.
Showing steady, if somewhat tedious progress, the Hawks improved each of the next three years, culminating with their first trip to the playoff this millennium. They took advantage of it, too, taking the eventual NBA champion Boston Celtics to seven games in a memorable opening-round series last spring.
Building off that performance, the Hawks started this season with six straight wins. Even with a few bumps and stalls along the way, they have clearly established themselves as the best of the bunch in the East after the Big Three of Boston, Cleveland and Orlando, each way out front in the respective division races.

“We've got a lot of guys that are hungry (from) last year after getting a taste of success in the first round against the world champs,” coach Mike Woodson said.
The Hawks didn't make any major additions after last season; in fact, they lost valuable sixth man Josh Childress, who shockingly spurned Atlanta's offer to sign with a team in Greece.
But new general manager Rick Sund filled that hole with a couple of players, signing journeymen Flip Murray and Maurice Evans. Both have played major roles off the bench along with backup center Zaza Pachulia.

Murray, playing with its sixth team in seven NBA seasons, is one of six players averaging in double figures (10.9 points a game), providing Woodson with a combo guard who can spell either Mike Bibby at the point or leading scorer Joe Johnson at the shooting spot.
Johnson, who's heading the All-Star Game for the third year in a row, is the Hawks' most prominent player but Bibby might be the most valuable. That was apparent last weekend when Bibby sat out a game with an injured foot — and Atlanta lost by 24 points at home to the woeful Los Angeles Clippers.
Bibby returned to play the last two games before the break, and the Hawks won both.

“He's a big part of what we have done,” Woodson said.
Bibby, the team's oldest starter at age 30, was acquired from Sacramento almost exactly one year ago with the Hawks floundering and looking as though they would miss the playoffs for the ninth year in a row. He wasn't in very good shape, having been sidelined by thumb and heel injuries, and was unfamiliar with Woodson's system.
After acquiring Bibby, the Hawks' scoring average jumped dramatically (94.8 to 103.5) and they essentially clinched the final playoff spot in the East by ripping off 11 victories in 15 games starting in mid-March.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Jackets will face challenging slate

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
ATLANTA — Coming off its best season in eight years, Georgia Tech unveiled a football schedule that includes eight bowl teams from 2008, three contests against Southeastern Conference schools and two nationally televised games on Thursday night.

The Yellow Jackets will open the 2009 season Sept. 5 against Jacksonville State, the first of a six-game home slate that also includes Clemson, North Carolina, Virginia Tech, Wake Forest and the traditional regular-season finale against Georgia on Nov. 28.

This past season, Georgia Tech snapped a seven-year losing streak to its state rival and finished 9-4 under new coach Paul Johnson. Despite a loss to LSU in the Chick-fil-A Bowl, the Yellow Jackets posted their best record since 2000.

In addition to facing the Bulldogs, Georgia Tech has road games against two other SEC schools, Vanderbilt and Mississippi State. The remainder of the road schedule includes Atlantic Coast Conference foes Miami, Florida State, Virginia and Duke.

“With 11 BCS opponents, including eight which played in bowl games last year, our schedule will be extremely challenging,” Johnson said Thursday. “At the same time, it's a schedule our players and fans should be really excited about. The home schedule includes a number of big-time games and many of our road games are within driving distance for our fans.”

The Thursday night games will be played back to back: at home against Clemson on Sept. 10, followed by the trip to Miami's Dolphin Stadium on Sept. 17. This will be the 17th consecutive season that Georgia Tech has played in the week-night game televised by ESPN.

The Yellow Jackets will play six road games for the first time since 2003 and two regular-season games in the state of Florida for the first time ever.

The most difficult stretch comes in October, when Georgia Tech has four of five games on the road. The lone home game that month is against two-time defending ACC champion Virginia Tech on Oct. 17.

The only open date on the schedule is Nov. 21, a week before the Yellow Jackets face Georgia at Bobby Dodd Stadium.

Garrigus, Johnson shoot 65s for lead

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Sunshine and tranquil conditions turned the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am into paradise Thursday, and it was particularly ideal for big hitters Robert Garrigus and Dustin Johnson.
Garrigus reached the uphill, 529-yard seventh hole at Spyglass Hill with a 5-iron and holed a 50-foot eagle putt, then closed out the first round with consecutive birdies for a 7-under 65. Johnson shot a 65 at Pebble Beach.

Such scores are rare at Spyglass and Pebble except when the wind and rain go on hiatus, which was the case on a gorgeous afternoon on the Monterey Peninsula. And there's a big advantage with length on soft courses in chilly weather.
Rich Beem (Pebble Beach), Vaughn Taylor (Pebble Beach) and Charley Hoffman (Spyglass) shot 66s. Vijay Singh, in his first tournament since minor knee surgery after the season-opening Mercedes-Benz Championship, had 72 at Poppy Hills, while Padraig Harrington struggled to a 74 at Poppy. Phil Mickelson had a 72 at Spyglass.

Women's Aussie Open
MELBOURNE, Australia — Two-time defending champion Karrie Webb shot a 7-under 66 to take the first-round lead in the Women's Australian Open, while 12-year-old Oh Suhyun became the youngest player ever to participate in the tournament.

Webb, coming off a 30th-place tie last week in the Australian Ladies Masters, had eight birdies and a bogey to take a three-stroke lead over Spain's Tania Elosegui and South Korea's Lee Chang-hee. Webb is seeking her fifth title in the event.
Oh, who hadn't picked up a golf club before moving to Australia from South Korea in 2004, was 13 shots back after a 79.

Malaysian Open
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — South Korean teen star Noh Seung-yul shot a 10-under 62 to take a one-stroke lead in the Malaysian Open.
The 17-year-old Noh had an eagle, nine birdies and a bogey on the Sujana Golf and Country Club's Palm Course. Alexander Noren of Sweden opened with a 63 in the event sanctioned by the European and Asian tours.
American star Anthony Kim struggled to a 78.

Neutering a first step in solving problem

Q: We have a 3½-year-old cocker spaniel. He is pedigreed, so my husband is against getting him neutered because he says he wants to breed him in the future. The problem is that I am finding our dog has some behavioral problems that I believe may be lessened if he were fixed. Primarily, he is aggressive to people who come to our door or walk by our house. He runs and aggressively barks at them.

I am concerned that if he doesn't get fixed, we'll have to find a new home for him. If you have any ideas that could be persuasive with my husband, I would greatly appreciate the help.

— S.M., via e-mail

A: Territorial and protective aggression are normal canine behaviors. We're guessing your cocker spaniel also goes crazy when the mail arrives.

What we think happens in the canine mind in such cases is pretty simple: The dog sees what he interprets as a threat approach the home and tells that threat to back away. The threat leaves, and the dog feels power over the situation.

The dog now feels he can control people who approach, because when he threatens them, they back off. The dog doesn't know they were leaving anyway. Then, in the dog's mind, we guess he thinks something like, "How dare they keep coming back after what I told them?" The dog probably gets more serious to make his point. Your dog's confidence goes up every time a person passes because he is taking the credit for them leaving.

One way to think about your cocker spaniel's behavior is that he has simply found work at home that he enjoys and feels good about. Dogs need outlets for normal canine behaviors. If you don't want your cocker to continue his chosen line of work, you will need to engage him in equally satisfying activities.

Dogs who are housebound build up frustrations. In nature, canines wander (getting plenty of physical exercise) to seek food (getting plenty of mental exercise). At maturity, it is not unusual for aggression to show up in an adult dog when basic canine needs are not being met.

We agree with you that neutering is a good first step, reducing your cocker spaniel's testosterone levels, which do affect aggression. However, neutering alone will not change the behaviors you describe unless you combine the surgery with behavior modification.

Your dog needs a new job to replace his current passion. With help from a behaviorist or trainer, you can learn how to channel that passion into new, satisfying work that promotes desirable home behaviors.

An example is teaching your dog that he gets what he wants by doing what you want. Dogs do very well as indoor members of human families when they work to earn their keep. What motivates dogs to learn good behaviors is learning that specific words such as come, sit, down, stay, wait, fetch, quiet and more are the tickets to everything a dog could ever want or need.

In order for your dog to learn from you, he must be relaxed. Your dog needs daily walks and car rides to new places to help release the mental and physical stress he gets from living an urban life. Your dog cannot cooperate and follow instructions if he is confused. (Instructions are words that tell your dog what to do and replace trying to tell your dog what not to do.)

Be fair to your dog by seeking professional help from a behaviorist or trainer to provide your pet with alternatives to charging people when they walk by. Not only will you and your husband be happier if your pet stops the aggressive behavior, but you will also both discover a relationship with your dog that makes everyone happier. — Susan and Dr. Rolan Tripp, AnimalBehavior.net

Let me PLAY!

Life in a cage with nothing to do can lead to health and behavior problems in parrots.

Keeping parrots busy is key to health, happiness

By DR. MARTY BECKER and GINA SPADAFORI
Universal Press Syndicate

Behaviorists love to recommend toys for all pets. Playthings are an important part of "environmental enrichment," a fancy phrase for strategies that keep animals from being bored and turning that boredom into destructiveness.

But as important as toys are for dogs and cats, they're even more essential to those who spend a great deal of time in cages that can never be big enough for a pet whose ancestors had the sky as their home.

No parrot can ever be happy, in other words, without toys.

Playthings are essential to maintaining the physical and mental well-being of parrots large and small. They help keep pet birds fit while fighting the boredom that can contribute to behavioral and health problems such as feather-picking.

Although you can buy toys by major manufacturers from the big chain stores, it's also nice to choose from the variety of playthings lovingly made by a cottage industry of bird lovers and available from independent bird shops, through catalogs and on the Internet. You can even make your own!

Some basic rules apply when shopping for toys, to ensure they are suitable and safe for your bird. Look for the following when choosing bird toys:

• Materials: Toys are subject to your bird's healthy urge to destroy, which means safe components are a must. Wood, rawhide, plastic or stainless-steel chain, rope, cloth and hard plastic are among the more popular materials that make up safe toys. Choose toys that break down into pieces that can't be swallowed. An exception: Toys made to hold food items, such as dried corncobs or fruit chunks. With these, eating is a large part of the fun.

• Construction: Challenging toys, the best choice for busy birds, feature pieces combined in ways that make it hard for the birds to pull the whole product apart — but not too hard. Indestructible toys are not appropriate for most birds, because the time and energy used to rip apart the gadget is part of the reason toys fill such a need.

• Size: Little toys for little birds, big toys for big birds. A big bird can catch and lose a toe in a toy made for a smaller bird, and small birds can get their heads trapped in toys made for their larger relatives.

Some birds are apprehensive of new toys. If yours is one of them, try to set the toy outside the cage (but within eye range) for a day or two, and then put it on the floor of the cage for another day or two. Once your bird starts to play with the toy, you can go ahead and attach it to the cage. (Stainless-steel split-ring key chains, available at any hardware store, are a safe, secure and inexpensive way to attach toys to cage bars.)

Don't overwhelm your pet with toys. Instead, keep two or three in the cage and rotate new ones in regularly.

Shopping for bird toys can be fun, but the costs do add up, especially if you have one of those gleefully destructive parrots. With some creativity, you can make your money go further by complementing store-bought bird toys with alternatives.

The cardboard cores of toilet-paper and paper-towel rolls are perfect for shredding, especially for smaller birds. String those tubes together on a thick leather cord and hang them in your bird's cage. Other cheapies include ball-point pens with the ink tube removed, ping-pong balls, old plastic measuring cups and spoons, and plastic bottle tops. (Wash in hot soap and water, rinse well and air-dry before offering such items to your bird.)

Toothbrushes are another bargain toy, sturdy and colorful. You can buy cheap ones new or give your pet your worn ones after running them through your dishwasher. (Or hand-washing in soapy water, followed by rinsing and air-drying.) The hard plastic keys on a ring sold for human babies are also a budget-wise buy that birds love, and real keys can be just as fun, after a scrubbing.

Keep your eyes and mind open for playthings your bird can enjoy — you may surprise yourself with the possibilities!

DNA tests point to poop droppers

• People can now walk without worrying about dog poop in the streets of Petah Tikva, Israel, now that they're using science to pick up where the dogs left off. Veterinary Economics magazine reports that the city has launched a six-month trial that asks residents to take their dogs to a veterinarian to collect DNA. The information is then used in a database aimed at matching feces to dogs and identifying each dog's owner. Owners who pick up their dog droppings and deposit them in specially marked bins will be eligible for rewards of pet food coupons and dog toys. Droppings left in the street could earn the dog's owner a fine. The city is considering requiring DNA samples from all dogs if the trial run is successful.

Cats have 32 muscles in each ear.

• Quick bites: In the last 4,000 years, no new animals have been domesticated. ... A shark is the only fish that can blink with both eyes. ... A snail can sleep for three years. ... A cat has 32 muscles in each ear.

• Bird flu remains a threat primarily to poultry, not humans, among whom it's poorly transmitted. Since a peak in 2006, the number of confirmed human cases of H5N1 bird flu reported to the World Health Organization has tapered off, with 38 cases in 2008 — the majority in Indonesia — leading to 29 deaths. That's a tiny fraction of the number of deaths each year from regular influenza. As reported in The New York Times, a threat remains in the strain's potential to mutate into a truly human disease that the WHO warns could kill tens of millions.

THE SCOOP

Want a better pet? Get moving!

Your dog barks non-stop. Your dog digs, ruining your yard. Your dog chews anything he can get his teeth on. What's missing from this picture? Chances are, it's exercise.

While environmental management (such as removing barking triggers or giving a dog something acceptable to chew) and training your dog are important, these strategies are only part of the solution. When dogs don't get the exercise they need, it causes problems.

If you're thinking of getting a dog, think very seriously about what breed you want and whether you can provide an active dog with the exercise it needs. If you can't honestly say that your dog will get 30 minutes of heart-thumping aerobic exercise at least three to four days a week — daily is better — then you really ought to reconsider getting an active breed.

Instead, consider the alternatives. For large breeds, look at the sighthounds, such as the greyhound, saluki or even the massive Irish wolfhound. These breeds were not developed to work all day like the retriever, husky and sheepdog, but rather to go all-out for a short period of time and then chill out. They're big, but they're couch potatoes by choice. Many guarding breeds, such as Rottweilers, boxers and Akitas, also have relatively minimal exercise requirements. All dogs love and need their exercise, but not all dogs will go crazy if they don't get a ton of it.

Most small breeds are easier in the exercise department, too, not because they don't need a lot of exercise, but because it's not as difficult to exercise a small dog with short legs. A Yorkie, pug or corgi can get good exercise in a small yard or on a brisk walk. — Gina Spadafori

ON GOOD BEHAVIOR

Surprise your pet for good response

If you want your dog to come when you call without thinking twice, call your dog a few times daily for a fun surprise.

Call your dog to initiate play, to get dinner, to leave home for a walk or car ride, or to enjoy a petting session. Mix up the good stuff, so your dog never knows what to expect but learns that it's all good.

If you never make the mistake of calling your dog and then doing something your dog thinks is unpleasant, your dog will automatically come when you call with a wagging tail and happy look on his face.

Always praise your dog as he's heading toward you, since silence can worry dogs. If he hesitates, squat down to his level with open arms. Good routines become good habits. — Susan and Dr. Rolan Tripp, AnimalBehavior.net

910 Foreclosures*STATE OF GEORGIA*COUNTY OF WHITFIELD*NOTICE OF SALE UNDER POWER

Because of a default in the payment of the indebtedness secured by a Security Deed executed by Raymond L. Boston and Cathy Boston to Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. dated January 4, 2007, and recorded in Deed Book 4924, Page 44, Whitfield County Records, said Security Deed having been last sold, assigned, transferred and conveyed to Deutsche Bank National Trust Company, as Trustee for Morgan Stanley ABS Capital, MSAC 2007-HE6, by Assignment securing a Note in the original principal amount of $144,500.00, the holder thereof pursuant to said Deed and Note thereby secured has declared the entire amount of said indebtedness due and payable and, pursuant to the power of sale contained in said Deed, will on the first Tuesday, March 3, 2009, during the legal hours of sale, before the Courthouse door in said County, sell at public outcry to the highest bidder for cash, the property described in said Deed, to-wit:

All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in Land Lot No. 102 in the 12th District and 3rd Section of Whitfield County, Georgia, and being designated as Lot 9 of AMBERFIELD SUBDIVISION, and being more particularly described according to a plat of survey of said subdivision prepared by Donald O. Babb, Georgia Registered Land Surveyor No. 2029, dated August 26, 1997 and recorded in Plat Cabinet C, Slide 1654, Whitfield County, Georgia Land Records, reference to which plat is hereby made and incorporated herein by reference for a more complete description thereof.

SUBJECT TO all zoning ordinances, easements, and restrictions of record insofar as the same may lawfully affect the above-described property.

For grantors' source of interest, see Book 3761, Page 221, in the Clerk's Office of Whitfield County, GA. Map & Parcel No. 12-102-04-009

Said property is known as 1420 Sienna Drive, Dalton, GA 30721, together with all fixtures and personal property attached to and constituting a part of said property, if any.

Said property will be sold subject to any outstanding ad valorem taxes (including taxes which are a lien, whether or not now due and payable), the right of redemption of any taxing authority, any matters which might be disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property, any assessments, liens, encumbrances, zoning ordinances, restrictions, covenants, and matters of record superior to the Security Deed first set out above.

The sale will be conducted subject (1) to confirmation that the sale is not prohibited under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code and (2) to final confirmation and audit of the status of the loan with the holder of the security deed.

Notice has been given of intention to collect attorney's fees in accordance with the terms of the Note secured by said Deed.

Said property will be sold as the property of Raymond L. Boston and Cathy Boston, the property, to the best information, knowledge and belief of the undersigned, being presently in the possession of Raymond L. Boston and Cathy Boston, and the proceeds of said sale will be applied to the payment of said indebtedness and all the expenses of said sale, including attorney's fees, all as provided in said Deed, and the balance, if any, will be distributed as provided by law.

All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in Land Lot No. 329 in the 12th District and 3rd Section of Whitfield County, Georgia, and being Lot No. 60 of Riverbend Subdivision, as shown by plat of record in Plat Book 8, Page 51 (Plat Cabinet A, Slide 251), in the Office of the Clerk of the Superior Court for Whitfield County, Georgia, and being more particularly described as per plat of survey prepared William J. Bouldin, dated December 16, 1994, as follows: Beginning at an iron pin on the Easterly side of Raider Drive, shown on said subdivision plat as Frances Drive, 1045.8 feet Eastwardly and Southwardly along the Southerly and Easterly side of Raider Drive from the Northeast corner of the intersection of Raider Drive and Margaret Circle; thence North 89° 50' East 125 feet to an iron pin; thence South 0° 10' East 80 feet to an iron pin; thence South 89° 50' West 125 feet to an iron pin on the Easterly side of Raider Drive; thence North 0° 10' West along the Easterly side if Raider Drive 80 feet to the point of beginning.

BEING the same property conveyed to Johnnie L. Broome by deed from Leticia Ramirez dated December 16, 1994 of record in Book 2572, Page 227, in the Office of the Superior Court for Whitfield County, Georgia

Said property is known as 1469 Raider Drive SE, Dalton, GA 30721, together with all fixtures and personal property attached to and constituting a part of said property, if any.

Said property will be sold subject to any outstanding ad valorem taxes (including taxes which are a lien, whether or not now due and payable), the right of redemption of any taxing authority, any matters which might be disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property, any assessments, liens, encumbrances, zoning ordinances, restrictions, covenants, and matters of record superior to the Security Deed first set out above.

The sale will be conducted subject (1) to confirmation that the sale is not prohibited under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code and (2) to final confirmation and audit of the status of the loan with the holder of the security deed.

Notice has been given of intention to collect attorney's fees in accordance with the terms of the Note secured by said Deed.

Said property will be sold as the property of Johnnie Broome, the property, to the best information, knowledge and belief of the undersigned, being presently in the possession of Johnnie Broome, and the proceeds of said sale will be applied to the payment of said indebtedness and all the expenses of said sale, including attorney's fees, all as provided in said Deed, and the balance, if any, will be distributed as provided by law.

Pursuant to O.C.G.A. 16-13-49 (n), any party claiming interest in the following property is hereby notified that on the 24th day of September 2008, said property was seized by the undersigned agency in Whitfield County, Georgia: The seized property is described as follows:
Five Hundred Fifty Dollars in United States Currency
Circumstances of the seizure were as follows:
On September 24, 2008, detectives with the Whitfield County Sheriff's Office arrested Theresa Lynn Jimenez-Holcomb, and others, for trafficking in methamphetamine, and other violations of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act. Detectives, through a confidential informant, had arranged to purchase one pound of methamphetamine, a Schedule II Controlled Substance for $24,000.00 in the parking lot of the Wal-Mart located at 2545 East Walnut Avenue, Dalton. Detectives followed a green Ford Escape to the meet area after the occupants made contact with the informant at a drug dealers apartment, 625 #30 Fourth Avenue, Dalton. Later, another vehicle, a grey Lincoln arrived in the parking lot. The Ford Escape signaled them to approach by flashing head lights. The Lincoln hit a light pole when it parked near the Ford while they were waiting on the informant. After the two cars were next to each other, the informant went to the Lincoln and then signaled to officers that the occupants had the pound of meth. The detectives then arrested the occupants of both vehicles. I, the Lincoln, officers found a pound of methamphetamine on the back floor board. The Lincoln driver, Marcos

NOTICE OF SEIZURE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY VALUED AT LESS THAN $25,000
Pursuant to O.C.G.A. 16-13-49 (n), any party claiming interest in the following property is hereby notified that on the 3rd day of December 2004, said property was seized by the undersigned agency in Whitfield County, Georgia: The seized property is described as follows:
One Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Five Dollars ($1,35.00)
Circumstances of the seizure were as follows:
Since September of 2008, detectives with the Whitfield county Sheriff's Office had received information that MontreiQuintrell love was selling marijuana, a Controlled Substance, from his residence, located at 1030 Willowdale Road #22, Dalton, using an informant detectives had previously purchased marijuana from Mr. Love from there. Officers served an arrest warrant and search warrant for Mr. Love at his residence on December 4, 2008. Officers found a several small bags of marijuana in a shoe box in the bedroom. Also in the bedroom, officers found $1000.00 of the above-referenced currency on his person. Mr. Love was charged with violations of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act by possession of more than one ounce of marijuana, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of tools for the commission of a crime, and forgery. Ms. Deandra Thomas called detectives and attempted to claim some of the money because she said she lived there and the money was a Christmas gift from Mr. Love. However, she later said declined any interest in the money and said she did not live there when detectives told here there was marked drug buy money found in the confiscated currency.
Forfeiture of the currency herein is sought by the State of Georgia under the provisions of O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(2) on the grounds that it was used and intended for use to facilitate a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act and/ or that it was proceeds derived from a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act, and/ or O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(6) on the ground that it was in close proximity to marijuana intended for sale.
You are further notified that you may file a claim within thirty (30) days of the receipt of this notice of seizure by sending a claim meeting the requirements of O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(n)(4) to the seizing law enforcement agency and to the District Attorney by certified mail, return receipt requested.

NOTICE OF SEIZURE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY VALUED AT LESS THAN $25,000
 Pursuant to O.C.G.A. 16-13-49 (n), any party claiming interest in the following property is hereby notified that on the 12th day of September 2003, said property was seized by the undersigned agency in Whitfield County, Georgia: The seized property is described as follows:
 Three Thousand Six Hundred Thirty Dollars ($3,630.00) in United States Currency
 Circumstances of the seizure were as follows:
 On September 12, of 2003, detectives with the Whitfield County Sheriff's Office were conducting investigations into unlicensed dentistry work being done at 4015 Oster Drive, Varnell by Marta Patricia Vasquez-Nunez. Ms. Vasquez-Nunez was not licensed to be a dentist, not licensed to distribute narcotics, nor licensed to perform surgery. Several complainants stated Ms. Vasquez-Nunez administered narcotics in the form of shots. Another complainant indicated he had gotten a brain infection from the dental work and subsequently required neurological medical treatment when he lost his speech. Officers served a search warrant at Ms. Vasquez-Nunez's residence and found her performing dental work on a person. Officers confiscated a dental chair, tools, x-ray machine, and other dental practice items. Ms. Vasquez-Nunez was arrested and charged with Aggravated Battery, Aggravated Assault, Reckless Conduct, Practicing Dentistry without a license, and practicing dental hygiene without a license. Ms. Vasquez-Nunez had the above-referenced currency in her residence along with patient information. Ms Vasquez-Nunez bench warranted from her criminal case in Whitfield County Superior Court and appears to have fled to avoid prosecution.
 Forfeiture of the currency herein is sought by the State of Georgia under the provisions of O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(2) on the grounds that it was used and intended for use to facilitate a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act and/or that it was proceeds derived from a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act, and/or O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(6) on the ground that it was in close proximity to methamphetamine intended for sale.  Pursuant to O.C.G.A. 16-13-49 (n), any party claiming interest in the following property is hereby notified that on the 2nd day of February, 2009, said property was seized by the undersigned agency in Whitfield County, Georgia: The seized property is described as follows:
 Six Hundred Thirty-six Dollars ($636.00) in United States Currency, One 1993 Honda Accord VIN# 1HGCB763PA001562
 Circumstances of the seizure were as follows:
 On February 2nd of 2009, a deputy with the Whitfield County Sheriff's Office pulled over the above-referenced vehicle for driving unsafely in the parking lot of the Zaxby's located on Airport Road, Dalton. When he made contact with the driver, Corey Yarbrough, the deputy smelled the odor of raw marijuana, a Controlled Substance, coming from the vehicle. Based on the odor, other officer searched the vehicle and found cocaine, a Schedule II Controlled Substance, marijuana, a set of digital scales, used to weigh illegal drugs for distribution, and small plastic baggies, in the vehicle. The deputy arrested Mr. Yarbrough, and a passenger, Vanessa Blackmon, for violations of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act for possession of cocaine, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, and possession of tools for the commission of a crime. $63.00 of the above-referenced currency was in the glove-box of the vehicle. Ms. Blackmon said the money was hers from tips, ad she was keeping it in the vehicle. The rest of the above-referenced currency, $573.00, was found on Mr. Yarbrough incident to arrest.
 Ms. Blackmon, previous to this arrest, had given drug information to detectives with the Sheriff's Office concerning narcotics distribution by Mr. Yarbrough. Subsequent to her arrest, Ms. Yarbrough, after being advised of her Miranda rights, told detectives that because Mr. Yarbrough lived with his parents, he stored his drugs for resale in the above-referenced vehicle. He used the vehicle to drive to Chattanooga to buy marijuana and cocaine and then sold the drugs out of the vehicle in Whitfield and Murray County
 Since September of 2008, detectives with the Whitfield County Sheriff's Office had received information that Mr. Yarbrough was selling cocaine and marijuana from his vehicle. Using an informant, detectives tives had previously purchased those drugs from Mr. Yarbrough from the vehicle. Officers, subsequent to Mr. Yarbroughs arrest on February, 2 2009, obtained an arrest warrant for Mr. Yarbrough for his 2008 drug sales to an informant.
 Forfeiture of the currency and vehicle herein is sought by the State of Georgia under the provisions of O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(2) on the grounds that it was used and intended for use to facilitate a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act and/or that it was proceeds derived from a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act, and/or O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(6) on the ground that it was in close proximity to Marijuana and cocaine intended for sale.

NOTICE OF SEIZURE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY VALUED AT LESS THAN $25,000
 Pursuant to O.C.G.A. 16-13-49 (n), any party claiming interest in the following property is hereby notified that on the 24th day of September 2008, said property was seized by the undersigned agency in Whitfield County, Georgia: The seized property is described as follows:
 TWO THOUSAND SIXTY SEVEN DOLLARS ($2,067.00) in United States Currency, Seven Video Gaming Machine (serial #: 037230, 037231, 037232, 037233, 037234, 037247, unknown) Eight Office chairs
 Circumstances of the seizure were as follows:
 On December 28, 2006, detectives with the Whitfield County Sheriff's Office were conducting investigations into illegal gambling using video poker machines. Detectives went to the Midway Pit Stop located in Cohutta, Whitfield County. There a Detective ad an informant gambled using the above-referenced machines and chairs and received a cash payout of $1,030.00 of the above-referenced currency from an employee, Carol Diane Taylor. Detectives, after obtaining a search warrant, returned and arrested Ms. Taylor and seized the above-referenced machines and chairs. The balance of the above-referenced currency was found in the machines and in a cash drawer. Ms. Taylor said only gambling took place at re business, and not items were sold. Subsequent, Officers arrested Mr. Melvin Kelly Taylor, the owner, when he came to the business.
 Forfeiture of the currency herein is sought by the State of Georgia under the provisions of O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(2) and the gambling statutes on the grounds that it was used and intended for use to facilitate illegal gambling, and/or that it was proceeds derived from a violation thereof.
 You are further notified that you may file a claim within thirty (30) days of the receipt of this notice of seizure by sending a claim meeting the requirements of O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(n)(4) to the seizing law enforcement agency and to the District Attorney by certified mail, return receipt requested.

NOTICE OF SEIZURE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY VALUED AT LESS THAN $25,000
 Pursuant to O.C.G.A. 16-13-49 (n), any party claiming interest in the following property is hereby notified that on the 2nd day of February, 2009, said property was seized by the undersigned agency in Whitfield County, Georgia: The seized property is described as follows:
 Six Hundred Thirty-six Dollars ($636.00) in United States Currency, One 1993 Honda Accord VIN# 1HGCB763PA001562
 Circumstances of the seizure were as follows:
 On February 2nd of 2009, a deputy with the Whitfield County Sheriff's Office pulled over the above-referenced vehicle for driving unsafely in the parking lot of the Zaxby's located on Airport Road, Dalton. When he made contact with the driver, Corey Yarbrough, the deputy smelled the odor of raw marijuana, a Controlled Substance, coming from the vehicle. Based on the odor, other officer searched the vehicle and found cocaine, a Schedule II Controlled Substance, marijuana, a set of digital scales, used to weigh illegal drugs for distribution, and small plastic baggies, in the vehicle. The deputy arrested Mr. Yarbrough, and a passenger, Vanessa Blackmon, for violations of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act for possession of cocaine, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, and possession of tools for the commission of a crime. $63.00 of the above-referenced currency was in the glove-box of the vehicle. Ms. Blackmon said the money was hers from tips, ad she was keeping it in the vehicle. The rest of the above-referenced currency, $573.00, was found on Mr. Yarbrough incident to arrest.
 Ms. Blackmon, previous to this arrest, had given drug information to detectives with the Sheriff's Office concerning narcotics distribution by Mr. Yarbrough. Subsequent to her arrest, Ms. Yarbrough, after being advised of her Miranda rights, told detectives that because Mr. Yarbrough lived with his parents, he stored his drugs for resale in the above-referenced vehicle. He used the vehicle to drive to Chattanooga to buy marijuana and cocaine and then sold the drugs out of the vehicle in Whitfield and Murray County
 Since September of 2008, detectives with the Whitfield County Sheriff's Office had received information that Mr. Yarbrough was selling cocaine and marijuana from his vehicle. Using an informant, detectives tives had previously purchased those drugs from Mr. Yarbrough from the vehicle. Officers, subsequent to Mr. Yarbroughs arrest on February, 2 2009, obtained an arrest warrant for Mr. Yarbrough for his 2008 drug sales to an informant.
 Forfeiture of the currency and vehicle herein is sought by the State of Georgia under the provisions of O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(2) on the grounds that it was used and intended for use to facilitate a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act and/or that it was proceeds derived from a violation of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act, and/or O.C.G.A. 16-13-49(d)(6) on the ground that it was in close proximity to Marijuana and cocaine intended for sale.
