MISSING BOATER

Friend: 'We asked him to wait'

BY MARK MILLICAN
markmillican@daltoncitizen.com

Bo Hackney and his 9-year-old daughter Ashley were enjoying Easter festivities on Sunday with the family of the couple they were living with. Then Bo became eager to leave and go fishing on the nearby Conasauga River, said Daniel Williams.

"We had that boat trip planned for about three weeks," Williams said, explaining that Bo and Ashley had come to live with him and his wife Jennifer in their southwestern Murray County home around two months ago. Prior to that, the father and daughter had been living with Bo's father, Winston Hackney, said Williams.

"All my family was here," Williams said of the get-together at 4245 Brown Bridge Road. "We were having a cookout and the kids were hunting Easter eggs. We had really grown close to Bo — and Ashley too. But Bo was eager to go fishing. We all asked him to wait, and his last words were, 'Don't worry, I won't end up like that other boy.'"

Williams said he was referring to Brett Thomason, the 19-year-old who was found apparently drowned in the Conasauga last month after going missing in mid-

"I went to check on him after that," said Williams. "The first time he was sitting there getting his (fishing gear) ready. The boat was

Labor chief finds good news in downturn

BY JAMIE JONES
jamiejones@daltoncitizen.com

Although the current dire economic situation doesn't seem to offer much hope, there is positive news, said Danny Cope, manager of the Georgia Department of Labor Dalton Career Service Center.

While thousands of Georgians have lost their jobs during the nationwide economic downturn, it has given laid-off workers a chance to ready themselves for the turnaround by returning to college, bettering their education and updating job skills, he said.

"I think it's important to look at the positives and trust that the economic system will get back on track," Cope told a group of about 50 attendees at the League of Women Voters of the Dalton Area's 57th annual meeting Thursday night.

Other speakers at the event were Brian Anderson, president of the Dalton-Whitfield Chamber of Commerce; Whitfield County administrator Bob McLeod; and Dalton Mayor David Pennington.

Cope noted that statistics released Thursday showed the state jobless rate held steady at 9.2 percent in March, the first time in 20 straight months there was no month-to-month increase. Cope estimates of the 6,500 jobs lost in Metro Dalton (Murray and Whitfield counties) in the past year, 30 percent to 40 percent have

Activist says world is on cusp of a third industrial revolution

BY CHARLES OLIVER
charlesoliver@daltoncitizen.com

Mankind is facing "the end of human civilization as we have come to know it" because of global warming, according to activist Jeremy Rifkin, citing NASA climatologist James Hansen. But we are also on the cusp of a "third industrial revolution" that might be able to stave off collapse.

Rifkin spoke Thursday night in Dalton State College's Memorial Hall.

He referenced a number of problems he said could be linked to global warming including increased hurricane intensity, drought and extinction of various species, which could grow worse if global warming continues.

He said one moderate prediction is that the earth's temperature could increase three degrees Celsius by the end of this century if nothing is done.

"Three degrees takes us back to the temperature on this planet three million years ago. It's a completely different

Jobless rate steady

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Georgia's unemployment rate didn't drop in March, but at least it didn't increase as it had for 20 straight months.

The state's seasonally adjusted jobless rate was 9.2 percent in March, unchanged from a revised 9.2 percent in February. The unchanged March unemployment rate is "significant" because this is the first time in 20 months the rate did not increase over the previous month, labor commissioner Michael Thurmond said.

March jobless rates for Murray and Whitfield counties, along with Metro Dalton (both counties) will be released later this month. In February, Metro Dalton's jobless rate was 12.9 percent, up from 6.1 percent in February 2008

"With Obama and the Democrats in control April 15 will not be nearly as bad for Americans next year. They are working as hard as they can to assure nobody makes enough to have to pay any taxes."

"You can't get enough Americans to stick together to have a decent picnic. Someone would be in flight over a chicken leg before the picnic was over. American disgrace."

"My daughter has an indoor cat that never goes outside. It doesn't need claws."

"Dalton has excellent water. Burger Chef was great place to eat and work. Everybody interprets the Bible the way they want and let's hope the chicken company cleans up their building before they leave."

"Why are some people so eager to get the traffic cameras taken down? Are they so ready to start running red lights again?"

"Obama won't do anything for the Carpet Capital because we're not union and we didn't vote for him."

"Since almost all of our politicians in Washington have great educational credentials, why is our country so screwed up?"

"Sorry about Starbucks on Walnut Avenue going out of business, but how about a Dunkin' Donuts in that location?"

"The recycle bins need a lid on them so the recycled products won't be flying all over the neighborhood."

"In response to the woman who said she would kiss another woman for a million dollars, I'm a 73-year-old man and I would kiss just about any woman. No charge."

"If Obama is elected to a second term, the Mayan prediction for 2012 will be accurate."

"I would love to hear residents' thoughts on an area set aside for horse activities in our county, instead of Whitfield County being at other county's events. Let's keep that money here."

"Excuse me, my thinking is not warped. It was a joke. We all know there is one heaven. But there are so many straight people who don't want to be associated with gay, that's why I said it."

Editor: I got it.

"Kudos to the person who gave credit to our president when credit was due, even though he didn't vote for him. You are a great American."

"I appreciate the coupons that were in today's paper. I especially appreciate the ones that can be used by one person. So many coupons are buy one/get one free. But I'm an old lady who likes to go out and eat by myself when I can."

"How much land does it take to set up a horse park or activity area?"

"I am tired of Murray County putting down First Student. We'll put our safety record against theirs any day."

"This is not the land of the free. We are not free. We are completely controlled by the government. America claims to go to other countries to save them from totalitarianism, when we are the same here. It just looks different."

"The person who wants to give the Bible quotes a break, people like him are what's wrong with the world."

"It's a shame how the Republicans and Fox News are working together to divide our country. We need to be working together as a country to fix this mess. Obama is doing all he can."

"I have repeatedly phoned in that virally transmitted diabetes, hepatitis and flus are on the rise because of enforced attendance. Is the paper afraid to print this?"

Editor: And you have repeatedly failed to offer a shred of evidence that you have any idea what you are talking about.

"Thank you Helen Kizer for having the courage to tell the truth. You too, Mr. Miller."

"Mrs. Kizer writes the same letter every month and says the same things over and over. She's preaching to the choir. Tiresome."

"If Bill Shipp thinks the three doctors shouldn't play politics, sounds like he thinks the only people who should be in Washington are a bunch of lawyers."

"Cal Thomas is the best columnist in the paper. He tells it like it is. He tells the truth."

"It doesn't matter who Georgia votes for. Our votes don't count anyway."

"If Northwest has 2,300 students wouldn't it make more sense to redraw the school district lines and send some of those children to Southeast."

"I think President Obama is doing a great job. All you whiners need to get a life. Go volunteer in your community."

"If I don't pay my taxes this year can I get a job in the Obama cabinet?"

"What's the difference between Somalian pirates and illegal aliens? Nothing."

"This may be a good time for Georgia to consider seceding from the Union again."

"Bible quotes come from people who are truly concerned with your soul."

"Editor, if you think smoking pot is a victimless crime, tell that to all the children doing without because of it and all the children who lost their parents because of it. That was a stupid statement. But I forgive you."

Editor: Lots of people are crummy parents, pot or no pot. Would you arrest the non-pot smokers?

"If the city of Dalton wants to beautify the city, they need to take a look at "Tent City" with all that garbage down there."

"Does the editor only print what he wants to print? He's a little bit I don't know what his problem is. Why doesn't he print something about the homeless and all the garbage down there at the tent city. As far as I am concerned, the editor is full of garbage."

"I can't really think of anything to complain about today, so let me call you back tomorrow."

"If you have parked on the curb for 50 years, shame on you."

"Mr. Editor, I just read your comment about marijuana being a victimless crime. I don't think so. It leads to other drugs and even if it didn't the amount spent on it hurts the families it takes money away from."

Editor: Millions of people have smoked pot and not used other drugs. Would you make the case that any product that takes money away from families should be outlawed? Beer? Fatty foods? Video games? How about the time wasted by people jailed on picayune drug charges or the money wasted on law enforcement and the judicial process because of pot laws?

The woman was working at the 2225 S. Hamilton St. Extension facility, according to a Whitfield 911 operator. He said the call came in at 12:15 p.m. The woman was first taken to Hamilton Medical Center.

A spokesman for Shaw said the woman could not be identified because all of her family had not been notified.

Wreck victim dies in hospital

FROM STAFF REPORTS

A man whose wife died in a wreck on Tibbs Bridge Road on April 9 died in Hamilton Medical Center on Thursday.

Lloyd Singleton, 81, of 4804-F Tibbs Bridge Road, sustained multiple trauma wounds in the wreck that killed his wife, Lethia Singleton, 76, and the driver of another vehicle, Harley Long, 58, of Chatsworth. Whitfield County coroner Bobbie Dixon said Lloyd Singleton died around 6:30 p.m. after spending much of his time since the wreck on a ventilator to help him breathe.

3 dead in hospital shooting

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A hospital worker shot and killed two employees and then killed himself at a medical center Thursday, sending panicked people fleeing, police and witnesses said.

The gunman was identified as Mario Ramirez, 50, of Alhambra, who died of an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound, police said. The victims were Hugo Bustamante, 46, of Cypress, who died at the scene, and Kelly Hales, 56, of Redondo Beach, who was taken to the hospital's emergency room in critical condition and died several hours later.

Police Chief Anthony Batts said the gunfire erupted just before noon at Long Beach Memorial Medical Center. He said the motive remained under investigation but noted the violence came amid a flurry of recent shootings in the country.

"This is a trend of active shooters that you have seen nationwide," Batts said at a news conference. "This is becoming a national trend, probably because of the tension that's going on in our society today."

Hospital spokeswoman Stacie Crompton-Hime said all three men worked in an outpatient pharmacy where Bustamante was the manager and Hales was the executive director. Asked if the shooting stemmed from a dispute or possible layoffs at the hospital, Crompton-Hime said there were layoffs last month but no other reductions were planned. Batts said officers responding to the shooting found one victim inside the hospital and then discovered a second victim outside, on the north side of the hospital outside the emergency room. Ramirez was found dead outside on the north side.

Diana Hendel, the hospital's chief executive officer, said the victims' families were receiving counseling through the hospital's chaplain service. "Our first priority was to ensure that our patients were safe and well cared for and I can assure that our patients are well cared for and are completely safe," she said.

Former inmate sues county officials

By MARK MILLICAN
markmillican@daltoncitizen.com

A former inmate at the Whitfield County Jail has filed a $53 million civil suit in federal court in Rome against several court and law enforcement officials in Whitfield County saying property taken from him during a drug bust violated his civil rights.

Johnny Brett Gregory, 35, of 2680 Highway 301 S. in Jesup, was arrested on July 19, 2005. He alleges that property taken from him as a result of the drug bust has not been returned, and that some of the property did not belong to him although it was in his possession. Gregory, who is black, also alleges that another person who was arrested, who is white, was treated "significantly different" while jailed and was released earlier.

The suit requests $60,000 in compensatory damages and $53 million in punitive damages. It names 11 defendants, including Sheriff Scott Chitwood, District Attorney Kermit McManus and Superior Court Judge Robert Adams.

"I don't know if (the suit) has been officially served (on us)," said county attorney Robert Smalley, who viewed the document online. "We'll have 20 days to file an answer in federal court, and we will ask for a motion to dismiss on the issue of seized property."

Smalley said appropriate officials in the sheriff's and district attorney's offices were looking into the allegations and it appeared to them proper procedures were followed.

"We'll take every step to make sure our officers are protected appropriately," he said of the county's legal response.

A phone number for Gregory could not be found.

Police to teach Self-Defense for Women

SUBMITTED BY DALTON STATE COLLEGE

Dalton State College, in conjunction with the Dalton Police Department, offers Self-Defense for Women at the James E. Brown Center beginning Tuesday, April 21.

The 12-hour course, taught by Officer Brian Pack, will educate women on safety strategies to minimize their chances of becoming a victim, and physical tactics aimed at disabling an attacker long enough to escape.

Pack, certified in the RAD System of self-defense, will wear a padded "Red Man" suit for some of the exercises which allow the women to practice defensive maneuvers they have learned in the class without the fear of injuring the instructor.

Among other topics covered will be laws in Georgia governing self-defense, ways to stay safe while dating, how to be safe in a parking lot, pros and cons of different types of weapons, and strategies for keeping the home safe and minimizing chances of becoming a target of violence.

"Our 12 hours go by real quick," Pack says.

The program is for women only — wives, mothers, daughters, sisters, girlfriends — and all who successfully complete the course will have a lifetime return policy allowing them to participate in any RAD System program to refresh their skills at any time, he said.

"Our ultimate goal is to promote safety and build confidence," said Pack. "Our hope is that no one will ever have to use the skills they'll learn in this class, but we want them to feel safe wherever they go."

"We're not teaching people how to fight, but to have some skills they can use to create enough of a diversion to create distance and get away if they ever find themselves in a dangerous situation," he said.

Self-Defense for Women will be at Dalton State College Tuesdays and Thursdays, April 21-30, from 6 to 9 p.m. Cost is $10 to cover materials. For more information, or to register, visit www.daltonstate.edu/cce or call the Center for Continuing Education at (706) 272-4454.

Boy journalist earns full ride to Ga. school

PAHOKEE, Fla. (AP) — A South Florida boy who became an Internet sensation during the presidential campaign has received a full scholarship to a Georgia university.

Pahokee fifth grader Damon Weaver says he plans to accept the offer to attend Albany State University. In a statement released by the school district, Weaver called the full ride a "big relief to my mother and my family."

Albany State University has also offered Damon free summer sessions through middle and high school. The school will officially present Weaver's scholarship at a national alumni convention in June in Miami.

Weaver created a buzz last year when he landed an interview with Vice President Joe Biden. Closing the bit, Weaver quipped: "Senator Biden is now my homeboy."

Tax protesters make a good case

The major media in this country don't want to have much to do with the growing tax protest movement. Better to scoff at the participants. Better to denigrate the ideas they espouse. Best of all, better to just ignore them in hopes they'll just go away.

Maybe they will. Then again, maybe not. Americans who work, pay their bills (including their taxes) and don't look to the government to bail them out for bad decisions they've made have every reason to be alarmed at the direction the country — spearheaded by its new president — is taking.

They understand that the economic policies being put in place by this administration will lead to a massive expansion of government power. They also understand that in areas where the government wields that sort of power, the productive, freedom-loving citizen inevitably suffers.

They don't want the federal government telling car companies what kinds of automobiles to build. They don't want the federal government deciding their health care options.

They don't want the federal government telling American bankers who to loan money to and how much.

There is legitimate cause for alarm today. The tax protesters who CNN and others were so quick to deride on Wednesday recognize this and it has motivated them to fight back.

Good for them.
Good for us.

WORDS OF WISDOM

1 Corinthians 15:24

Thought for today: "A happiness that is sought for ourselves alone can never be found; for a happiness that is diminished by being shared is not big enough to make us happy."

Thomas Merton
American poet and author (1915-1968)

Afraid of you?

What and who exactly are President Obama's homeland security officials afraid of these days? If you are a member of an active conservative group that opposes abortion, favors strict immigration enforcement, lobbies to protect Second Amendment rights, protests big government, advocates federalism or represents veterans who believe in any of the above, the answer is: You.

Department of Homeland Security Sec. Janet Napolitano has turned her attention away from acts of Islamic jihad on American soil (which she now refers to as "man-caused disasters"). Instead, her department is sounding the alarm over an unquantified "resurgence" in "right-wing extremist activity." On April 7, DHS sent a nine-page warning memo to law enforcement offices across the country titled "Right-wing Extremism: Current Economic and Political Climate Fueling Resurgence in Radicalization and Recruitment."

The report includes a sweeping definition of the threat:

"Right-wing extremism in the United States can be broadly divided into those groups, movements and adherents that are primarily hate-oriented (based on hatred of particular religious, racial or ethnic groups), and those that are mainly antigovernment, rejecting federal authority in favor of state or local authority, or rejecting government authority entirely. It may include groups and individuals that are dedicated to a single issue, such as opposition to abortion or immigration."

You cannot ignore the context or the timing of this DHS report. It's no small coincidence that Napolitano's agency disseminated the assessment just a week before the nationwide April 15 Tax Day Tea Party protests. The grassroots events organized by fiscal conservatives, independents, Libertarians and, yes, even some Blue Dog Democrats were fueled by the movement has invited scorn, ridicule and fear-mongering from Obama's supporters. Liberal bloggers have likened the Tea Party movement to neo-Nazis, militias and even Weather Underground terrorists.

These attempts to demoralize the Tea Party movement come on the heels of widespread conservative-bashing over the recent shooting sprees in Pittsburgh and Binghamton, N.Y. Taking Hillary Clinton's advice to "never waste a good crisis," left-wing pundits and analysts have blamed the tragedies on everyone from Rush Limbaugh to Fox News to the NRA.

The DHS spokesperson I talked to on Monday insisted that the report was not a politicized document and that DHS had done similar assessments on "left-wing extremism" in the past. But past domestic terrorism reports have always been very specific in identifying security threats.

By contrast, the Obama DHS report is an overarching indictment of conservatives. "Right-wing extremist chatter on the Internet continues to focus on the economy, the perceived loss of U.S. jobs in the manufacturing and construction sectors, and home foreclosures," the assessment warns. When I asked DHS spokeswoman Sara Kuban to explain who was responsible for this "extremist chatter," she could not and would not name names.

Moreover, the report relies on the work of the left-leaning Southern Poverty Law Center to stir anxiety over "disgruntled military veterans" — a citation that gives us insight into how DHS will define "hate-oriented" groups. The SPLC has designated the American Legion a "hate group" for its stance on immigration enforcement. The report offers zero data, but states with an almost resentful attitude toward protected free speech: "Debates over appropriate immigration levels and enforcement policy generally fall within the realm of protected political speech under the First Amendment, but in some cases, anti-immigration or strident pro-enforcement fervor has been directed against specific groups and has the potential to turn violent."

"Potential to turn violent"? So did the hysterical fervor whipped up by Capitol Hill over the AIG bonuses, which prompted ugly death threats from across the country. No mention here, though. Not "right wing" enough. Nor will you see Obama DHS warnings to police and sheriff's departments about self-proclaimed bank terrorists such as Bruce Marks of the aggressive Neighborhood Assistance Corporation of America or the mob activists of ACORN who have committed burglary, stormed corporate executives' homes and vowed to conduct "civil disobedience" by "any means necessary" in response to the "current economic and political climate."

If you can redefine dissenting opinion as "hate," you can brand your political opponents as "extremists" — and you can marginalize electoral threats. "Antigovernment"? "Pro-enforcement"? "Disgruntled"? Feeling taxed enough already and "recruiting" and "radicalizing" your friends and neighbors through "chatter on the Internet"?

We are all right-wing extremists now. Welcome to the club.

Thoughts on politics, people, portraits

Kudos to Joe Mulholland, district attorney for the South Georgia Circuit, which includes Bainbridge, Camilla, and Cairo. After reading my suggestion that state government rather than school-teachers take a furlough, the DA told me, "Some of us in government have already taken your argument to heart." Mulholland says district attorneys have furloughed all employees a day a month since last fall. In June, prosecutors will be furloughed three days. To offset the financial burden his own employees are suffering, Mulholland has applied his monthly county supplement to their pay. While that won't rectify the amount of money they are already losing because of the furloughs, the DA says, "I believe the gesture has gone significantly to showing our office that we are all in this together." That, my friends, is a class act. ...

The world lost a beautiful lady recently. Ann Clendenin, wife of my former boss, retired BellSouth CEO John Clendenin, never wore her husband's status on her sleeve. She was nice to everybody, no matter their rank. Corporate spouses don't always act that way, but she did. Ann Clendenin will be missed. ...

Nobody with a lick of sense runs for statewide office in Georgia without paying homage to Tommy the Barber in Northside Atlanta. For years, his shop has been a traditional campaign stop for candidates. A good word from Tommy the Barber reaches more people than American Idol. But like most of us, he is sick and tired of empty campaign promises about cutting taxes and improving public education. Tommy wants specifics. He says he is going to ask each candidate who visits to sign a pledge as to how they are going to live up to their campaign promises. If their actions don't match their rhetoric, Tommy vows he will make sure that everybody in the state knows they renege on their promises. And he can do it. If any candidates for statewide office are reading this and plan to drop by Tommy the Barber's place, don't say I didn't warn you. ...

I will let him catch his breath after this do-nothing legislative session before I call Commissioner of Revenue Bart Graham, as many of you have requested, and find out (a) when we can have the names of the legislators who haven't paid their taxes, (b) why businesses and individuals owe the state almost a half-billion dollars in back taxes and (c) why somebody's fanny isn't already sitting in jail the way we plebeians would be if we decided not to pay our taxes. I'll let you know what I find out.

And speaking of some people being more equal others: A lawsuit against Georgia Board of Regents Chairman Richard L. Tucker, a prominent Gwinnett businessman, by United Community Bank in Blairsville was resolved recently, but Gwinnett Superior Court Judge Ronnie K. Batchelor has sealed virtually every document in the file at Tucker's request. According to Batchelor, details of the settlement were sealed because disclosure of the allegations would cause Tucker "intimidation, insult and embarrassment." Poor baby. And then there was Paulding County Superior Court Judge James Osborne, a former law partner of House Speaker Glenn Richardson, who sealed Richardson's divorce papers in "the interest of the parties and their children." Who are these judges kidding? People like Tucker and Richardson catch breaks that you and I wouldn't get because we aren't politically connected. Lawyers love to blather about equal justice under the law. Let's see them explain these two contemptible decisions. ...

Finally, if I am blushing, forgive me. My beloved Grady College of Journalism at the University of Georgia is unveiling my portrait on April 27. It will hang in the C. Richard Yarbrough Public Relations Laboratory there. What makes this even more special is that the portrait was painted by my art instructor, Kristopher Meadows, who belies the adage, "Those who can, do; those who can't, teach." Kris Meadows does both extremely well. I just wish he had made me look more like Brad Pitt, but there are some things even skilled artisans can't do.

Interrogators will not be prosecuted

WASHINGTON — Seeking to move beyond what he calls a “a dark and painful chapter in our history,” President Barack Obama said Thursday that CIA officials who used harsh interrogation tactics during the Bush administration will not be prosecuted. The government also released four memos long held secret by the Bush administration in which its lawyers approved in extensive and often graphic detail the tough interrogation methods used against 28 terror suspects, the fullest and now complete government accounting of the techniques. The rough tactics range from waterboarding — simulated drowning — to using a plastic neck collar to slam detainees into walls.

Obama pledges to slow arms flow

MEXICO CITY— Confronting a security threat on America’s doorstep, President Barack Obama pledged Thursday in Mexico to help a deeply troubled neighbor in its battle against drugs and violence, including action to slow the dangerous flow of weapons from the United States. “At a time when the Mexican government has so courageously taken on the drug cartels that have plagued both sides of the border,” Obama said, the U.S. must join “in dealing with the flow of guns and cash south.” Obama spoke at the start of a swift visit to underscore U.S. solidarity.

Dems want Perry to disavow talk

AUSTIN, Texas — A group of Texas Democrats says Republican Gov. Rick Perry was reckless when he suggested at an anti-tax rally that fed-up Americans may one day want to secede from the United States. They said Thursday that he should disavow such talk. Democratic state Rep. Jim Dunning of Waco says talk of secession is anti-American and that some people associate it with racial division and the Civil War. Answering a question from The Associated Press at an anti-tax rally Wednesday, Perry said he doesn’t think Texas should secede. But he said the federal government was thumbing its nose at the American people and added, “who knows what might come out of that.”

15 gunmen, 1 soldier killed

MEXICO CITY — A shootout between Mexican troops and a convoy of gunmen left 15 assailants and one soldier dead hours before President Barack Obama arrived in the country to show his support for the fight against drug cartels. The shootout happened in a remote, mountainous region in Guerrero state, where the Pacific coast resort of Acapulco is located. Soldiers came under fire from a convoy of gunmen on Wednesday while patrolling the drug trafficking hotbed. One was killed and another wounded in the battle near the town of San Nicolas del Oro. Troops later seized two .50 caliber Barrett rifles, 17 other rifles, eight grenades, two handguns, ammunition and eight vehicles.

Seeping dam fortified

KATHRYN, N.D. — A convoy of trucks, excavators, bulldozers and backhoes moved in to fortify a seeping dam Thursday in eastern North Dakota as engineers and National Guard troops worked to save a tiny town that would flood if the dam fails. Water was flowing like a miniature waterfall around a corner of the earthen Clausen Springs Dam, which protects the town of Kathryn, downhill and about six miles east. The water was eating through walls of the grass-lined spillway built to handle the extra water volume along a tributary of the flooding Sheyenne River.

of manufacturing jobs we’ve lost overseas.”

Keeping those jobs here and also developing new industries will be vital in the near future, especially as Volkswagen builds a manufacturing plant in Chattanooga, McLeod said. He believes many of those workers will live in Whitfield County, but more importantly the county wants to attract support businesses by setting up a devoted industrial park, he said. The county currently lacks a ready site for those types of businesses. Officials are evaluating land for an industrial park, he said.

“We’re working very hard with companies to see if they will locate here,” McLeod said. “There’s a lot of activity going on in the area of economic development.”

Patricia Rivers, co-president of the League of Women Voters of the Dalton Area, said the meeting gave attendees a “world of information.”

down the river (using the trolling motor), and I went looking for him. When I couldn’t find him, I got real worried.”

Williams said that to the best of his recollection, it was between a half-hour and an hour when he went back the second time. He said the day Bo disappeared still haunts him.

“I haven’t been able to make it to work all week because of it,” he said. “Word’s getting back to me that the family believes it’s my fault, and I’ve felt that way myself. I want to go down there and help look for him, but I won’t go because they might say something and they won’t let you get close to where they’re searching anyway.”

“He and Ashley were becoming part of our family. His own daughter was asking him not to go.”

Williams said Murray County Sheriff Howard Ensley came to talk to him and he told him everything he knew. He said Ensley seemed to be satisfied with what he told him.

On Thursday, new “cadaver dogs” were brought in to the search scene, and more divers were in the water. A search was begun late Sunday and has been continuing each day from 8 a.m. until dusk.

“It’s the same routine,” said Ensley late Thursday afternoon. “We’re still dragging the river, moving downstream, and now we’re within range of the area where the boat was discovered. The river keeps going down and that’s helpful.”

Hackney got on the river behind his father’s mobile home. His boat was found around midnight Sunday 1.8 miles downstream from the mobile home park.

Ensley said underwater cameras are being used in addition to sonar, and that the new dogs brought in will “get a chance” to see if they can sniff out a body.

“Some of the dogs might do a better job than the ones that have been out here,” Ensley said. “You never know. We’re trying everything we can.”

Relatives have said they do not believe Hackney fled the area or committed suicide.

Ensley said Gilmer County divers were on the scene to relieve Murray County’s dive teams, which are “exhausted.”

“It’s a sad situation we all wish would end,” he said.

Bacteria found under ice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hidden in the bone-chilling dark beneath an Antarctic glacier, a colony of strange bacteria is thriving.

Scientists investigating the flow of blood-red water from beneath the glacier discovered the bacteria, which have survived for millions of years, living on sulfur and iron compounds, they report in Friday’s edition of the journal Science.

Blood Falls, flowing from beneath Taylor Glacier, has long evoked curiosity because of its color. The researchers determined that iron compounds provide the color, and in the process of their research they discovered bacteria in the water, an extremely salty pool.

FDA may approve female condom

NEW YORK (AP) — Advocates of the female condom are promoting a less costly, more user-friendly version that they hope will vastly expand its role in the global fight against AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases.

An early version of the female condom was introduced in 1993, and it remains the only available woman-initiated form of protection against both STDs and unintended pregnancy.

Yet despite global promotion by the United Nations and other organizations, its usage is still minuscule, even as women bear an ever-growing share of the AIDS epidemic.

Advocates hope the dynamics will change following last month’s approval by the Food and Drug Administration of the FC2, a new version of the female condom produced by the Female Health Co.

About 35 million female condoms were distributed worldwide last year, but that compares to more than 10 billion male condoms, which are far cheaper and, at least initially, easier to use. However, in some nations with high HIV rates, many men refuse to wear condoms, putting women at risk.

Though it looks similar to its predecessor — a soft, transparent sheath with flexible inner and outer rings — the FC2 is made from synthetic rubber rather than polyurethane, making it cheaper to produce.

People with disabilities stress need for aid

BY RACHEL BROWN

rachelbrown@daltoncitizen.com

Dean Green says he wishes there were a local YMCA or something similar so his son, who has multiple physical and mental disabilities, would have somewhere to go.

"I live in Murray County, and in Murray County we have nothing," he said. "We have gyms over there, but they're not adequate for people with disabilities."

Green spoke at a public forum at the Northwest Georgia Trade and Convention Center Thursday evening to discuss issues affecting people with disabilities. The 26-member Georgia Governor's Council on Developmental Disabilities met in Dalton for its quarterly meeting earlier in the day. The council lobbies to influence public policy and helps push community initiatives to benefit people with disabilities. About 50 people, including council members, attended the forum.

Some of the issues people with disabilities all over the state face are finding adequate transportation, housing, supports so they can be relatively independent, jobs and influence over their own circumstances.

Canton resident Kellie Roberts said her 17-year-old son, who has autism, wants to work but is unable to drive himself. Finding transportation will be difficult, she said.

MATT HAMILTON/The Daily Citizen

Lance Stephens asks a question during the question and answer session Thursday at the trade center.

Some attendees said they want to help others. LaFayette resident Floyd Brown, who said he is "a little retarded," works at a branch of Lookout Mountain Community Services helping others do crafts. He said there is a need to help others learn to read.

"I can't read very good. I can read some," Brown said. "I see lots of kids in school before they graduate (who) need to learn how to read better."

Eric Jacobson, executive director of the council, said people will benefit from relying less on Medicaid to solve all their problems and more on their communities.

For example, Medicaid won't fund a broken carburetor, but the local mechanic and church might help a family get it fixed so they can go to the doctor, he said.

"It comes back to thinking about things differently than I think we have in the past," he said.

Mike Babb, chairman of the Whitfield County Board of Commissioners, encouraged people to bring their concerns or suggestions to the commission.

"If you don't speak, you don't get heard," he said.

International questions

Earlier in the morning, the council met with visitors from Bhutan and Afghanistan to discuss how their countries handle individuals with disabilities.

In the South Asian country of Bhutan, there are only three schools for such students, said Tshongpen Wangdi, principal of the National Institute for the Disabled.

Wangdi's school caters to students who are visually impaired. He said there are no schools for students with severe disabilities, but he hopes that will change as Bhutan converts to several new ideas, including electing its own prime minister.

"We had a king last year," he said, citing examples of how the United States and Bhutan differ. "Out of nine brothers and sisters, only me and my youngest brother are educated...To change the system, it may take time."

In Sadiq Mohibi's native Afghanistan, Islamic religious leaders often aren't open to helping individuals with disabilities, he said, but several groups are trying to change that.

"The idea is to involve the society to be a part of decision-making," he said. "People follow what their clerics say very well, so they accept what they say better than they accept what we say."

Mohibi is a member of the Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission, which advocates for people with disabilities.

Governor's council member Denny Spear said religious organizations in the United States are still often reluctant to make people with disabilities a priority.

"The average religious person is glad to work with orphans who are going to grow up or older people who are going to die," Spear said. "Churches generally don't want a long-term responsibility."

Jobless: Unchanged since February

and 11.9 percent in January 2009.

"With apologies to Sir Winston Churchill, the better-than-expected March jobless rate does not represent the end of this recession," Thurmond said. "It is not even the beginning of the end. However, it may be the end of the beginning of the most severe economic downturn since the Great Depression."

The floorcovering industry in North Georgia has shed several thousand jobs as businesses have eliminated positions and cut production hours. Other industries have also been affected by the nationwide economic slowdown. This week, officials with Pilgrim's Pride said the poultry processing plant in Dalton will close within two months, a loss of about 280 jobs.

The state's jobless rate of 9.2 percent was up 3.6 percentage points from 5.6 percent at this same time last year. Georgia's unemployment rate also remained above the national rate of 8.5 percent for the 17th consecutive month. The number of payroll jobs in March decreased by 185,900, or 4.5 percent, from March 2008. The over-the-year losses came in manufacturing and construction, trade, transportation and warehousing, along with professional and business services, including temporary employment agencies.

Despite the year-over-year loss of jobs, Georgia added 3,000 new jobs in March, the first monthly increase since October 2008. A majority of the new jobs were in the retail and hospitality sectors. During the first two weeks of April, initial jobless claims in Georgia, which have sustained over-the-year triple-digit increases, grew at about half that pace. Initial claims are generally considered to be a leading indicator of future economic activity.

Currently there are 442,758 unemployed Georgians looking for work, an increase of 64.1 percent over the year. Of that number, 172,947, or 39.1 percent, are receiving state unemployment insurance benefits, while another 84,700 are receiving federal Emergency Unemployment Compensation.

Piece of royal wedding for sale at fair

LONDON (AP)— Would you pay 145 pounds ($215) for a slice of very stale cake?

That's what an antiques fair in Birmingham hopes to earn Thursday when people bid for the remnant from one of Britain's most controversial royal weddings.

The cake is thought to be the only surviving item from the 1871 wedding of Queen Victoria's fourth daughter, Princess Louise, to the Marquis of Lorne.

It went on sale for 145 pounds ($215) Thursday at the Antiques for Everyone fair in Birmingham. The seller is antiques dealer John Shepherd. He bought the slice from a private seller who is a descendant of a noble family from Kent.

"I like unusual objects with history," said Shepherd.

"This was obviously treasured by the Royal Family, and I believe things should be treasured and looked after."

The slice, which is one-inch thick and protected by parchment, is a tiny portion of the towering 5-foot cake served at Princess Louise's wedding. The entire cake originally weighed over 225 pounds and took three months to create.

this earth."

But he said a solution may lie in moving away from carbon-based fuels such as coal and oil and towards renewable energies such as wind and solar.

He also said that Internet technologies now make it possible to move from centralized production of energy towards a "distributed" production of energy.

Rifkin said buildings equipped with solar cells and wind turbines and the like could possibly not only generate as much energy as the buildings need but more than they need. That energy could be sent to others over a "smart grid."

He said that just as millions of individuals now create their own videos and music and other information and distribute it over the Internet, they could one day also create their own energy and distribute it.

The creation of those solar cells, the smart grid and other technologies would create a third industrial revolution, he said.

It is important to act quickly, he said, not only because of the threat of global warming but also because the world has been living off the savings of the second revolution, which created television and radio and automobiles, and because the world's supply of oil is diminishing.

"We have to save the human race and our fellow creatures," Rifkin said.

Some students said they were alarmed at Rifkin's talk but also inspired to make a difference.

"Everyone of us need to do something to save our planet," said Berenice Ruiz.

Hamilton board members receive trustee certification

SUBMITTED BY HAMILTON HEALTH CARE SYSTEM

Why would the board of directors for Hamilton Health Care System and Hamilton Medical Center, a group of committed citizens from the area, spend hours furthering their education?

They are demonstrating their commitment of service to the organization by becoming certified trustees through a program developed by the Georgia Hospital Association (GHA).

According to Hamilton Health Care System president and CEO John Bowling, "GHA designed this program to provide hospital board members with the tools and information they need to govern effectively. I am pleased and proud to say that when this program was offered, each member of our board was not only willing to spend the time and energy necessary to complete the program; they were anxious to participate to gain the knowledge necessary to govern in these difficult and uncertain times."

With current economic problems causing an increase in Georgia's uninsured population, there is an even greater need for informed trustees to maintain a fiscally sound hospital in their community.

"Effectively governing a complex health system such as Hamilton requires a broad knowledge base — especially in these difficult economic times. Our board is committed to keeping Hamilton strong so it can continue to grow and meet the health needs of this community," said G. Lamar Lyle, health care system board chairman.

The members of Hamilton Health Care System's Board of Trustees

What board members get from program

The GHA trustee certification program ensures that board members:

- Understand and embrace the need for governance accountability;
- Govern according to a standard of excellence;
- Are willing to formally certify their adherence to governance best practices;
- Are committed to care management and coordination of resources;
- Embrace community accountability and transparency;
- Structure their community benefit and outreach programs to meet identified community needs;

■ Utilize data from the GHA State of Health Data Report to identify and address areas of need especially for the uninsured and underinsured;

■ Utilize performance data to identify opportunities for improvement and to monitor progress to improve quality and safety; and

■ Integrate local health efforts with state programs.

include Lyle, chairman; Robert M. Chandler, vice chairman; Charles W. Hendry, secretary/treasurer; Bowling, president and CEO; Charles H. Herndon, M.D.; William P. McKay, M.D.; Gary A. Middleton; John H. Poehlman, M.D.; Dorothy B. Reich; Henry C. Tharpe Jr.; Jackson P. Turner; and Luis M. Viamonte, M.D.

The members of Hamilton Medical Center's Board of Trustees include Chandler, chairman; Robert H. Brooker, vice chairman; Middleton, secretary/treasurer; Bowling, president and CEO; Ezad N. Ahmad, M.D.; Bryan D. Cheever, M.D.; J. Douglas Harbin, M.D.; Robert B. Hubbs; and Carolyn K. Turner.

Why a certification program?

With much of the blame for recent failures of prominent U.S. companies laid on the shoulders of governance leadership and boards of directors, Hamilton Medical Center board chairman Robert Chandler believes that boards must be accountable.

"Board membership is not something to be taken lightly. Board members have to continue to learn and educate themselves especially in the areas of the quality of care, patient safety and patient satisfaction," Chandler said.

Boards are ultimately responsible for how the organization performs in these areas.

"The education requirements of the certification program will provide hospital trustees a structure for improving their individual knowledge and leadership to help them address the health care needs of our community," Chandler said.

"Hamilton has a long history with the Dalton-Whitfield community," Lyle said. "The organization has a strong sense of accountability to the community; a commitment to providing the best health care possible. It's the board's job to provide the guidance necessary to make that happen."

Taylor Newman, left, and Mark Hudson will teach Private Pilot Ground School at Dalton State College.

Private Pilot Ground School offered at college

SUBMITTED BY DALTON STATE COLLEGE

The Center for Continuing Education at Dalton State College is offering Private Pilot Ground School, a 30-hour class that prepares students for the written examination required for a private pilot's license. The class begins May 7 at the James E. Brown Center and runs Thursday evenings, 6 to 9 p.m., through July 9.

Instructors for the 10-week class are Taylor Newman, director of operations for the Dalton airport and certified flight instructor, and Mark Hudson. Topics to be covered, according to Newman, are air space, aerodynamics, "rules of the road," laws and regulations, weather, cross country planning and aircraft performance, operations and planning.

"The material covered in this class will provide the knowledge base necessary for the written examination — one of three components required to get the private pilots license," Newman said. The three-hour written test consists of 60 questions and is administered in Rome and Athens, Tenn.

The other two components required for the private license are the oral and practical (in-plane) examinations which are administered in Chattanooga by an examiner who previously taught aviation at Chattanooga State. A minimum of 40 hours flight training is required before the practical exam is taken; 50-60 flight hours are preferred, Newman said. He and Hudson can provide flight instruction for those wishing to continue on with their training; flight training is not included in the Dalton State program.

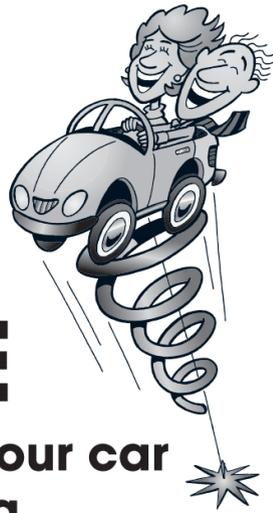

"The private pilot's license is good for most recreational flying day or night most anywhere in the continental United States in reasonably good weather," Newman said. The minimum age to get the license is 17, which is also the age for Private Pilot Ground School. Newman and Hudson also teach flight training at the University of the South (Sewanee) and in Cleveland, Tenn.

Despite the sour economy, flight training has done well, Newman said, suggesting that some may be choosing to invest dollars into a lifelong dream rather than in stocks and bonds. "For many of our students, this is just something they've always wanted to do," he said.

Cost of Private Pilot Ground School is $499 and includes books. Those wishing to know more or to register can visit www.daltonstate.edu/cce or call the Center for Continuing Education at (706) 272-4454.

Republicans jockey for governor's race

By SHANNON McCAFFREY
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — Lt. Gov. Casey Cagle's sudden withdrawal from the governor's race has touched off furious jockeying among Georgia Republicans, some of whom are giving the contest a fresh look now that the presumed front-runner has bowed out.

While there are still three Republican hopefuls running to replace Sonny Perdue when his second term expires in 2010, the field could grow in the coming weeks after Cagle's announcement turned the race on its head.

"It certainly does have a lot of people looking," House Majority Leader Jerry Keen told reporters Thursday.

Cagle said Wednesday he is withdrawing from the race to undergo surgery for a degenerative spine condition. He has said he will seek re-election as lieutenant governor. Cagle had raised the most money of the candidates in the race and was considered a top contender to win the GOP nomination in July 2010. That had kept some Republicans in the wings.

Among those now believed to be eying the open seat are House Speaker Pro Tem Mark Burkhalter, of Johns Creek, state Sen. Eric Johnson, of Savannah, U.S. Rep. Lynn Westmoreland, of Grantville, and Cobb County Commission Chairman Sam Olens.

Olens called Cagle's announcement "a game changer."

"The events yesterday significantly increase the likelihood that I will enter the race," Olens said Thursday. He said he will announce his plans Tuesday.

Burkhalter could not immediately be reached for comment. He has led an unsuccessful effort to eliminate the ad valorem tax on cars.

Johnson is currently running to replace Cagle as lieutenant governor. Now, with Cagle staying put, he may set his sites instead on the governor's mansion. He released a statement on Wednesday saying that he was keeping his options open. Johnson pushed unsuccessfully this year to make Georgia the first state in the nation with a universal school voucher program.

If Johnson doesn't jump in, another Savannah Republican, U.S. Rep. Jack Kingston, has suggested he might.

Westmoreland, one of the more conservative members of the U.S. House, said Thursday he's looking at getting in.

"We are were making a few phone calls and we're talking to some people," the west Georgia Republican said. "When something like this happen there are a lot of moving parts and so we're trying to figure that out."

Already in the GOP race are Secretary of State Karen Handel, Insurance Commissioner John Oxendine and state Rep. Austin Scott, of Tifton.

On the Democratic side, Attorney General Thurbert Baker, House Minority Leader DuBose Porter and former Georgia National Guard Commander David Poythress are running. Former Gov. Roy Barnes is also mulling the race and has said he will decide by early June.

The lure of an open governor's seat is proving tempting to the state's politically ambitious who know such an opportunity doesn't come along very often.

"I think I broke my single day phone call record yesterday, I had to recharge my cell phone twice in one day," Keen said Thursday. "I think you're going to see a lot of jockeying over the next few weeks and months in both parties."

Keen had considered entering the race but decided against it. He said Thursday he stood by that decision.

Wilson, Molly Myers and Beverly Joy, Daisy Award coordinator. The nurses work at Hamilton Medical Center.

Extraordinary nurses recognized at Dalton hospital

Nurses at Hamilton Medical Center are being honored with The Daisy Award For Extraordinary Nurses. The award is part of the Daisy Foundation's program to recognize the extraordinary efforts nurses perform everyday.

The not-for-profit Daisy Foundation is based in Glen Ellen, Calif., and was established by family members in memory of J. Patrick Barnes. Patrick died at the age of 33 in late 1999 from complications of Idiopathic Thrombocytopenic Purpura (ITP), a little known but not uncommon autoimmune disease. The care Patrick and his family received from nurses while he was ill inspired this unique means of thanking nurses for making a profound difference in the lives of their patients and patient's families.

"When Patrick was critically ill, our family experienced first-hand the remarkable skill and care nurses provide acutely ill patients every day and night" said Bonnie Barnes, president and co-founder of The Daisy Foundation. "Yet these unsung heroes are seldom recognized for the super-human work they do. The kind of work the nurses at Hamilton Medical Center are called on to do every day epitomizes the purpose of The Daisy Award."

Each quarter, a nurse will be selected to receive The Daisy Award at Hamilton Medical Center. The first award recipient is Debra Curry, a nurse with Hamilton Home Health. At a presentation given in front of her colleagues, family members and friends, Debra received a certificate commending her for being an "Extraordinary Nurse." The certificate reads: "In deep appreciation of all you do, who you are, and the incredibly meaningful difference you make in the lives of so many people." Curry was also given a beautiful and meaningful sculpture called "A Healer's Touch," hand carved by artists of the Shona Tribe of Africa.

Curry, a nurse for 26 years, has worked with Hamilton Home Health since July 2006. She credits her success to finding her niche in the home health field of nursing. "I love to see the smiles on the faces of my patients and their families, and I love to see them getting better and know that I had a part in their healing process."

Curry was surprised and honored when chosen for this award.

"I was only doing what is expected of me by the hospital and our department. I am humbled to know that my peers thought that I deserved this," Curry said after receiving the award. "I will cherish this award always."

Three honorable mentions were also presented at the quarterly meeting. Molly Myers, respiratory; Anita Wilson, labor and delivery; and Jan Hixson, oncology were also acknowledged for their outstanding clinical efforts.

"We are proud to be among the hospitals participating in the Daisy Award program. Nurses are heroes every day. Given the current national nursing shortage, The Daisy Award could not be launched at a better time," said Jan Keys, chief nursing officer. "It is important that our nurses know their work is highly valued, and the Daisy Foundation provides a way for us to do that."

Hamilton Medical Center is among nearly 250 other hospitals participating in the Daisy Award program.

Mystery donors give nearly $45M to eight universities

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A mystery is unfolding in the world of college fundraising: During the past few weeks, at least eight universities have received gifts totaling nearly $45 million, and the schools had to promise not to try to find out the giver's identity.

One school went so far as to check with the IRS and the Department of Homeland Security just to make sure a $1.5 million gift didn't come from illegal sources.

"In my last 28 years in fundraising ... this is the first time I've dealt with a gift that the institution didn't know who the donor is," said Phillip D. Adams, vice president for university advancement at Norfolk State University, which received $3.5 million.

The gifts ranged from $8 million at Purdue to $1.5 million donated to the University of North Carolina at Asheville. The University of Iowa received $7 million; the University of Southern Mississippi, the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and the University of Maryland University College got $6 million each; the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs was given $5.5 million.

It's not clear whether the gifts came from an individual, an organization or a group of people with similar interests. In every case, the donor or donors dealt with the universities through lawyers or other middlemen. Some of the money came in cashier's checks, while other schools received checks from a law firm or another representative.

All the schools had to agree not to investigate the identity of the giver. Some were required to make such a promise in writing.

Opera performance here Tuesday

SUBMITTED BY DALTON STATE COLLEGE

Dalton State College's Fine Arts and Lecture Series (FALS) will sponsor an operatic performance by Harry Dunstan, tenor, and Kay Krekow, soprano, on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Goodroe Auditorium of Memorial Hall. The concert is free and open to the public.

"The American Center for Puccini Studies was established in 2004 and has as its mission to present many of Puccini's lesser known pieces to music lovers. The founder of the center, Harry Dunstan, is considered one of the world's leading Puccini artists and scholars, and we feel indeed fortunate to have him on our stage."

Schools celebrate foreign languages

SUBMITTED BY DALTON PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Dalton High School celebrated Foreign Language Week in a variety of ways recently.

In the United States, the week is celebrated in the first week of March each year, with a theme selected by Alpha Mu Gamma, the national collegiate foreign language society. This year's theme was "Many Hands, Many Voices, One World."

DHS students heard a guest speaker from Barbados. Catherine Trotman, a Rotary scholarship student studying at North Georgia College, impressed upon students how study abroad can change their lives. Students learned about Barbados as well as Trotman's experiences in Georgia.

More than 600 students viewed foreign films created by students for the foreign language film contest. This year's students were able to use equipment purchased with a grant for $2,500 from Jordan Fundamentals, giving all students the opportunity to create a foreign film for the school's fourth annual film contest. The grant allows students who are not able to study video production to also participate in the contest within the foreign language classroom.

Students also learned about the private lives of their foreign language teachers. Many students were surprised to find their teachers had lived in a foreign country or had skills other than speaking a foreign language.

A film festival awards ceremony was held. The students' choice award went to "MTV Cribs." Cast members included Sam Batts, Will Kiker, Blake Raber, Henson Toland, Hannah Joyce, Keri Shealy, Zac Coquerille, Gordon Gross, Hailey Bryant and Watts Dantzler.

After the ceremony, Spanish teacher Jack Cobbs spoke to students about developing his passion for music while growing up in Chile.

Students also participated in "Battle of the Classes," a foreign language trivia game put together by Spanish teacher John Brittain.

Baby sitter charged in death of child

LAWRENCEVILLE, (AP) — A 29-year-old baby sitter has been arrested for the death of a 2-year-old girl left in his care.

Gwinnett County Police charged John Wyatt of Lawrenceville with felony murder Wednesday after the child died. The toddler had been in critical condition at Children's Healthcare of Atlanta at Scottish Rite since her mother found her bruised and having difficulty breathing Saturday.

The mother told authorities she had left her daughter in Wyatt's care for the day.

Wyatt is being held at the Gwinnett County jail without bond.

The Gwinnett County

medical examiner ruled the child's death "unnatural" but hasn't yet determined a cause.

COMMENTARY

MISTY WATSON/The Daily Citizen Dalton's Ricky Rodriguez, back, battling Paulding County's Nick Loneragan on Wednesday, is a key reason the Catamounts claimed the Region 7-4A championship.

Catamounts turn adversity into true grit

Come on, admit it. You probably had your doubts about Dalton High soccer somewhere along the way this season — not necessarily about whether the Catamounts would be good, because that's just about a foregone conclusion for that program at this point, but whether they'd be good enough to keep up with the standards they'd set for themselves in the past.

Maybe you looked at the Catamounts' .500 record six games into the season and scratched your head. None of the losses were to bad teams, none of them were routs and two were via penalty kick shootout. But no matter the point in the season, no matter the level of competition, it's strange see the Cats lose three of four games.

And after that surprising start — included among the trio of losses was the program's first-ever defeat at Murray County's hands — the Cats still had three sub-region games to play, a rare view from the passenger's seat as they looked toward the post-season and some questions to answer about how quiet their offense had been during that stretch when the goals just weren't coming.

Well, no matter what anyone else thought, the Cats found enough confidence inside themselves to deal with any doubts if they had them. The Cats beat Paulding County 2-1 on Wednesday for their 10th region title in 12 seasons, a measure of league dominance beyond that of any area team in any sport in recent years.

It's all very clear now. And maybe it always was to those inside the camp. But it's hard to blame anyone on the outside if they wondered if this year was going to be different. So don't be afraid to admit your doubts. I know I had them.

Dalton's loss at Murray County came on a miserably cold night in early March when it may not have been too cold to play soccer, but it felt too cold to watch. Still, the Cats and Indians put on a compelling show in Chatsworth, though there was little in the way of offensive fireworks for either side — each side scored once during regulation, but both were on penalty kicks — and a shocking lack of creativity by Dalton.

If you've seen Dalton soccer, you've seen the artistry. The Cats thrive on controlling the ball and using skilled footwork, quickness and smart, short passes to set up their shots. In the five years I've covered Dalton soccer, it's usually been effective. It's generally been efficient. It's almost always been pretty.

That night it wasn't. The Cats looked frustrated. The shot creation wasn't there, so naturally neither were the finishes.

And what was more surprising than seeing Dalton lose to the Indians — a talented if defensive-minded

Dalton does it again

Still perfect in sub-region

By MARTY KIRKLAND

martykirkland@daltoncitizen.com

Dalton High baseball coach Bobby Brotherton worried about how his team would respond at the plate in its first game in five days.

Looks like the Catamounts were just waiting to pounce.

Garren Palmer went 3-for-3 with a pair of solo home runs, Stryker Brown contributed a solo homer of his own and Dalton used a seven-run second inning to help itself to a 10-0 victory over visiting Cass on Thursday in a game shortened to 4 1/2 innings via the Georgia High School Association's mercy rule.

"We hadn't played since Saturday, so we hadn't seen live pitching," Brotherton said. "That was the big concern. Well, they came focused, they got into the zone and boom. Garren's first home run, you just kind of saw the air go out of their sails."

Alex Roberts was also key in the sub-region victory, working all five innings of the two-hit shutout as he improved to 3-0 this season.

The hard-throwing, 6-foot-3-inch sophomore right-hander struck out seven and walked just one. He faced just one

Ross, Marlins finish off sweep of Braves

By CHARLES ODUM

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — Cody Ross and his Florida Marlins teammates aren't shocked to have the best record in the majors.

The real surprise, he said, was sweeping three games in Atlanta for the first time.

Ross hit a three-run homer and the Marlins beat the Braves 6-2 on Thursday, as Florida improved to 8-1 for the first time since 1997. Ross finished with three hits and four RBIs after beginning the day with a .115 average.

"Nobody in here is surprised," Ross said of the Marlins' hot start. "We feel like we're a good team. There are a lot of skeptics who say it's early. We have to have confidence and never let down."

The Marlins outscored the Braves 21-7 in the series. Florida had never swept a series of more than two games in Atlanta, and the last time that happened was May 13-14, 1997.

"We've come through here a lot of times, and you'd think there would have been a sweep," Ross said. "But the Braves are always a good team. ... It's better to be on the other side, instead of what it has been here in other years."

Southeast's Burke all-tourney

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Southeast's Katie Burke, disappointed with her last performance at Indian Trace, bounced back Thursday with a 108 to capture sixth place in the Region 6-3A girls golf tournament and earn a spot on the all-tourney team.

"Early in the week Katie shot a 117 in the Lady Raider Open and was really down about her game," Lady Raiders coach Chad Murray said. "She went out on her own and worked on some little things that messed her up and came back today in a relaxed frame of mind and knocked 11 strokes off that earlier score."

Kiersten Smith shot 131 to give Southeast a 239 total and sixth place in an eight-team field.

Carrollton, led by Jordan Pence's 97 on the par 72, 5,960-yard Indian Trace layout, won the team title with a 209, four shots better than runner-up Cartersville. Pence took medalist honors.

Central Carroll was third at 219 and followed by Haralson County at 223 and LaFayette at 230 to round out the top five. Cedartown was seventh with a 240 and Ringgold eighth at 272.

"It was a great tournament," said Murray, whose Lady Raiders hosted the event. "And the weather was just perfect."

■ Murray County boys 153, Gilmer 218: The Indians' Tyler Simpson and Zach Gibson each shot 1-over 37s to share medalist honors at Spring Lakes Golf Course. Caleb Langford had a 39 and Chase Jones posted a 40.

■ Murray County girls 89, Gilmer 130: Alicia Moneymaker earned medalist honors with a 39, her lowest score of the season. Moneymaker's round included a chip-in eagle on the par-5 seventh hole. Ashley Webb shot 50 for the Lady Indians.

Madden retires as NBC's analyst

BY RACHEL COHEN

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — John Madden is retiring from football announcing, where his enthusiastic, down-to-earth style made him one of sports' most popular broadcasters for three decades.

The Hall of Fame coach spent the last three seasons on NBC's "Sunday Night Football." His final telecast was the Super Bowl in February.

"You know at some point you have to do this — I got to that point," Madden said on his Bay Area radio show Thursday. "The thing that made it hard is not because I'm second guessing, 'is it the right decision?' But I enjoyed it so damn much.

"I enjoyed the game and the players and the coaches and the film and the travel and everything."

Cris Collinsworth will replace Madden, moving over from the network's studio show, NBC Sports chief Dick Ebersol said. Collinsworth filled in when Madden took a game off last October.

Ebersol called Madden "absolutely the best sports broadcaster who ever lived."

Madden said his health is fine, but at the age of 73, he wanted to spend more time with his family. His 50th wedding anniversary is this fall, and his five grandchildren are old enough to notice when he's gone.

"If you hated part of it or if something was wrong, it'd be easy," Madden said.

Madden's blue-collar style and love for in-the-trenches football endeared him to fans. His "Madden NFL Football" is the top-selling sports video game of all time.

Madden is reluctant to fly and often traveled to games in a specially equipped bus.

Broadcast partner Al Michaels said Madden will have a unique place in pro football history.

"No one has made the sport more interesting, more relevant and more enjoyable to watch and listen to than John," Michaels said in a statement. "There's never been anyone like him and he's been the gold standard for analysts for almost three decades."

Madden began his pro football career as a linebacker coach at Oakland in 1967 and was named head coach two years later, at 33 the youngest coach in what was then the American Football League.

Madden led the Raiders to their first Super Bowl victory and retired in 1979. He joined CBS later that year.

He worked at CBS until 1994 when the network lost rights to broadcast NFL games, leading him to switch to Fox. He left Fox in 2002 to become the lead analyst for ABC's "Monday Night Football" and joined NBC in 2006 when that network inaugurated a prime-time Sunday game. Madden said that for the last several years, he waited until two months after the season to determine whether to continue, not wanting to rush into a decision. He surprised Ebersol when he told him last week he was retiring.

Ebersol flew to California on Wednesday morning and spent 11 hours with Madden, trying to persuade him to change his mind. Ebersol even offered to allow Madden to call games only in September and November and to take October and December off.

"I knew right away there was no way of talking him out of it," Ebersol said. "I knew in his voice he really thought about this."

Madden was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2006.

"There is one thing football fans have agreed on for decades: they all love John Madden," NFL commissioner Roger Goodell said. "John was a Hall of Fame coach before becoming one of the most-celebrated personalities in sports."

Dalton's Phillip Schenck (5) steals third base against Cass on Thursday. When the ball got away from Colonels third baseman Dalton Parham (12) in the second inning, Schenck scored.

Dalton: Cats' big second inning key

over the minimum through the first four innings — after giving up a first-inning single to the second batter he faced, Tyler Stringfield, Roberts didn't allow another hit until Dalton Parham led off the fifth with a single to right.

"He can throw that curveball," Brotherton said. "And then his fastball just looks that much more explosive."

The win against Cass (12-7, 3-5 in sub-region) was the 10th consecutive victory for Dalton (13-4, 7-0), and it was also the start of the Cats' second time through the 7-4A north sub-region schedule. They outscored opponents 62-12 on their way to six wins the first time around the circuit, and if Thursday was any indication, they might just be getting started.

But the Cats are reflecting the step-by-step philosophy stressed by Brotherton, who after the game outlined a scenario in which Dalton — despite a two-game lead on the rest of the sub-region — could still miss the state playoffs after two consecutive appearances in the Class 4A event.

"We just go out there and play and try to win every game," said Palmer, who now has six home runs this season.

The senior catcher was The Daily Citizen's Player of the Year in 2008 after batting .524 with 43 hits, only one of which was a home run. The jolt of power he has added to his swing was noticeable in his towering drives against Cass — one a two-out shot to left field in the first, the other a leadoff job to center in the fourth.

"I just saw the ball pretty well tonight, was pretty loose and calm at the plate," Palmer said. "I just got good swings at them."

Cass burned through three pitchers in the short outing, with starter Dalton Weightman chased with one out in the second, an inning in which the Cats sent 11 batters to the plate. Weightman's replacement, Chase Leonard — a right-hander with a submarine motion — got the Colonels out of the inning, but faced just four batters and walked two of them before exiting for Taylor Bentley in the third.

In the second, Dalton used an RBI double from Blake Raber, a two-run single from Phillip Schenck, Brown's homer and an RBI single from Palmer to light up the scoreboard. Schenck scored when he stole third and the throw went into the Dalton dugout, while Will Kiker — courtesy running for Palmer — went home on a wild pitch.

"When you kind of sense that a guy's struggling, you just try to make him press as much as possible. You just refuse to get out and keep the inning going," said Brown, who called his high but shallow homer to right a "popup that just happened to go out."

After Palmer's leadoff homer in the fourth, Dalton scored its final run when Kiker, who had walked and stole second and third, came home on Joey Davis' groundout.

While the Cats are in far better shape than anyone else in the sub-region, Brotherton is aware of how much baseball remains packed into the next week, including a trip to Sequoyah today and to Murray County on Saturday. The Cats play Woodland-Bartow on Monday, Northwest Whitfield on Wednesday and finish the regular season against Rome.

Both sub-region champs are guaranteed a Class 4A state berth and will play for the Region 7-4A title and a No. 1 seed at state. The second- and third-place finishers in each sub-region will compete for the region's other two state spots via a crossover playoff series.

And Brotherton knows that top three spot isn't yet guaranteed for the Cats.

"We're going to keep this thing on an even keel," he said. "We're going to keep climbing and get better each day. That's what we're going to preach to them."

Braves: Two mistakes

but I got good defense," Sanchez said.

Kawakami (1-1) allowed five hits and five runs, four earned, in six innings.

Braves manager Bobby Cox said Kawakami was "as good as he could possibly be" but made two mistakes — the pitch too far over the plate that Ross hit for a home run and a hanging splitter that Jeremy Hermida hit for a run-scoring triple in the sixth.

Another mistake also hurt Kawakami. The Braves blew a chance at a double play when Kelly Johnson dropped a throw from shortstop Yunel Escobar at second base in the second inning for an error, leaving the Marlins with runners on first and second. Ross hit his three-run homer one out later.

"It's part of baseball," Kawakami said through an interpreter. "It's my fault really for giving up the home run right after that error."

Johnson said he lost the throw from Escobar in the sun.

"I knew, obviously, it was coming at me," Johnson said. "I put my glove where I thought it was going. I just couldn't tell when it was going to get to me."

The Braves were without two of their top hitters. Chipper Jones, normally the No. 3 hitter, missed his second straight game with a bruised left thumb and cleanup hitter Brian McCann was given his first break from the starting lineup this season. He reached on a fielder's choice as a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

Escobar left the game after five innings with a strained abdominal muscle. He was listed as day to day.

Atlanta placed reliever Jorge Campillo on the 15-day disabled list with a sore shoulder after he gave up two hits and one run in the ninth.

Ross hit a fastball from Kawakami about 20 rows deep into the left-field seats in the second inning to drive in Jorge Cantu and Dan Uggla for a 3-0 lead.

The deep shot ended Florida's four-game streak without a homer and ended the power drought for Ross to start the season.

"It's good to get it out of the way," he said.

The Braves scored one run off Sanchez in the third. Garret Anderson, filling in for McCann as the cleanup hitter, hit his first of two doubles and scored on a single by Jeff Francoeur.

Anderson added his second double and again scored on a single by Francoeur in the fifth.

Uggla walked in the sixth and scored on Hermida's triple to center. Ross drove in Hermida with a sacrifice fly.

Pinch-hitter Ross Gload led off the ninth with a triple off Campillo, and Alfredo Amezaga drove in Gload with a single.

Kirkland: Creation of shots makes return team that had pushed the Cats in recent meetings, Murray County went on to claim the sub-region's top seed for the 7-4A tourney before being upset by Paulding County in the opening round — was seeing them lose without a clear-cut sign the artistry was at least in the works.

Quite simply, it didn't look like Dalton soccer.

The shot creation was there a few nights later, but the goals still weren't, and the Cats lost to rival Southeast for the second consecutive time by penalty kicks. With Southeast's move to Region 6-3A, it did nothing to Dalton's position in the sub-region, but you have to wonder what it did to the Cats' collective psyche.

Some coaches might have been tempted to go to one extreme — yelling their heads off at the failure to the point it became white noise to the players — or another — comforting their team to the point of crushing any smoldering intensity.

Matt Cheaves, who's in his 15th season leading Dalton, struck a balance. He kept a serious tone after both losses. He let the Cats know what they did right as well as what they did wrong.

And, knowing from experience the productivity of pain, he told them to turn and watch the other teams celebrate.

"I just wanted them to be aware of what it means to another school to beat Dalton," Cheaves said. "And also for them to realize, it doesn't matter how good you play if you don't score."

It's been an interesting year for Dalton, which won its most recent 7-4A title in a region almost twice the size of the one it had played in the previous two seasons.

The Cats scored five goals at Northwest Whitfield a few days after that shootout loss at Southeast to start a string of eight straight matches without a loss, picking up the offensive pace and remembering how to win.

But as recently as the first round of the region tourney, a game Dalton won 4-2 with the benefit of two own goals by Hiram, shot efficiency reared its head as a possible concern.

Still, it's fair to say the artistry has returned, though there are more painters at work than in recent memory. Last year's team was stirred by the vision and direction of senior midfielder Luis Rivas, while the two seasons before that record-setting strikers Irvin Espinal and Luis Salazar manned the brush.

But while they lack the easily noticeable go-to star of past teams, the Cats' reliance on team effort and the early season adversity may have developed a grit that will be as important as their offensive finesse as they begin the quest to win their first-round state playoff game and, they hope, a state title when it's all over.

Dalton soccer fans should have no doubts. For the Cats, that would be a thing of beauty — no matter how it's done.

WWE owner Vince McMahon gave ESPN newsmagazine "E:60" access to "Wrestlemania 25," providing a behind-the-scenes glimpse of the organization. The segment, titled "Lord of the Ring," aired this week and can be viewed on www.espn.com.

ESPN bigwigs fashion "E:60" as a hard-hitting, investigative newsmagazine that exposes injustices in the sports world. They believe it's an appropriate foil to the constant coverage of Terrell Owens, the uncomfortable obsession with LeBron James and the lunacy of anchor Stuart Scott's incessant "Boo-yahs!" littering ESPN.

Diehard wrestling fans didn't glean anything new from the 13-minute piece. They are already aware of the production meetings, the myriad of controversies facing the organization and appalling hubris of McMahon.

Never breaking character from his on-screen "Mr. McMahon" character, McMahon worked ESPN reporter Jeremy Schapp during the laughable interview. McMahon claimed he will never die — although he was clearly speaking on another level in intimating that his legacy is rock solid — and reaffirmed that he wish he had killed his abusive stepfather. McMahon strutted through the rest of the interview with his chest puffed, as only a billionaire can.

ESPN dug up former WWE superstar Bret Hart to provide some criticism of WWE. Schapp

Despite the shortcomings, ESPN treated the WWE with more respect than many networks have. Next time, maybe fans will see the real Vince McMahon.

The Local Corner: Jason Hampton doesn't like referees.

failed to disclose Hart's tenuous relationship with McMahon.

Hart's brother, Owen, died during a WWE pay-per-view and McMahon plotted to cheat "The Hitman" out of the heavyweight title.

He's been pushing them around for weeks. Referee Travis McDuffie finally had enough and challenged Hampton to a match Saturday night at TWA.

In matches from Friday night: Torque defeated Jimmy Sharpe; Devin Lee downed the Patriot; Team Kill outlasted Jake Murphy and Justin O'Day; The Hollywood Cowboys topped Alex Summers and Uncle Zeke to become the Friday Night Brawl tag team champions; Crazy turned back Ice Man Jr.; The Brooklyn Boys beat The Playmakers; Billy Jester and Wes Blaze wrestled to a double countout; The Widowmaker defeated The Big Wood.

TWA runs Fridays at 8 p.m. in the TWA Arena off Reed Road in north Whitfield County, about three miles north of the bypass.

The Action Zone runs Saturdays at 8 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for kids 6 to 12. Kids under 6 are free. Any military member with proper identification will be admitted free.

Trivia Teaser: Where did Vince McMahon hold his first wrestling show?

Check back next week for the answer.

Last week's question: Who is the oldest person to compete at Wrestlemania?

The 64-year-old Jimmy "Superfly" Snuka.

PRO BASKETBALL: NBA PLAYOFFS

Miami's Dwyane Wade (3) scored 35 points against Atlanta in the Heat's lone win over the Hawks this season. Atlanta held Wade to 42 points in two wins over Miami. Wade is averaging an NBA-best 30.2-point average and is a serious threat to win the league's most valuable player award.

Hawks' challenge: Slow Heat's Wade

BY PAUL NEWBERRY
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — As the Atlanta Hawks wrapped up their first practice of a new season, Mike Woodson implored his team to take advantage of this once-in-a-decade opportunity.

"Mentally, we've got to step it up a notch," the coach told his players, gathered around him Thursday in the middle of their Philips Arena practice court.

But one thing is clear without extra time in the film room: The Hawks must stop — check that, slow down — Dwyane Wade if they want to advance to the second round of the playoffs for the first time since 1999, which also was the last time they had home-court advantage.

M-V-3 is the league's leading scorer, a guy who literally took a young Miami Heat team on his back and lifted them back to the playoffs after a 15-win season. He's a guard on a mission, still angry about those who wondered if he'd seen his best days after two injury plagued seasons.

Now, he's ready to take his well-controlled wrath out on the Hawks in what appears to be the most intriguing Eastern Conference series of the opening round. Game 1 is Sunday night in Atlanta.

"Oh, man, I don't think anybody shuts him down. He's proven that this year," Hawks forward Marvin Williams said. "But we have some athletic guys who can really help out. Whoever has the assignment of guarding him is going to have a tough assignment, but they'll know the rest of the team has their back."

Atlanta did a good job on Wade in two regular-season games. He hit only 9-of-24 shots in a December matchup, then was limited to a pair of free throws — one of his most effective weapons — in a February loss to the Hawks. He scored 21 points in each, nine below his league-best average of 30.2.

But Wade torched Atlanta for 35 points on 13-of-19 shooting (plus 9-of-10 foul shots) in Miami's lone victory over the Hawks this season (He sat out the teams' final regular-season meeting Tuesday, a meaningless game with both teams already locked into the 4-5 seeds in the East).

"He's just relentless in getting to the basket," said Joe Johnson, the Hawks' leading scorer. "He shoots a lot of free throws. It's tough. Everybody, all five guys, have really got to be in sync trying to stop him."

Woodson shrugged off the inevitable questions about shutting down Wade, stressing that Miami is not a one-man team.

Four other players averaged in double figures, led by rookie Michael Beasley at 13.9, and several Atlanta players mentioned 3-point specialist Daequan Cook, who scored nearly two-thirds of his field goals from beyond the arc.

"It's not our job to sit here and just try to figure out how to stop Dwyane Wade," Woodson said. "I don't think you can do that. Their supporting case was good enough to get them into the fifth spot this year. I look at the Miami Heat as the Miami Heat, as a team, and we've got to figure that out."

In three games that mattered during the regular season, Atlanta held the Heat to just under 84 points a game, far below its 98.1 average.

Again, Woodson doesn't much stock in what happened before the playoffs.

"During the season, we played them well," he said. "But this is playoff basketball. Only time will tell when we step out on the floor Sunday and see where we are."

The Hawks are certainly more balanced than Miami. Johnson is the go-to scorer, leading the way at 21.4 points, but six others averaged between 15.6 and 11.5. At the defensive end, they have a bunch of athletic wing players who can step out to help on Wade, from 6-foot-5 Maurice Evans to 6-9 forwards Williams and Josh Smith.

All will be needed against D-Wade, even if Johnson draws the primary assignment.

"We've definitely got to have a good team effort," Smith said. "One man is not going to stop him. You need second and third defenders trying to slow him down a little. When he gets doing, everybody else is going to get going on that team. You understand that he's going to score points, but if we can neutralize him a little bit I think we'll do really good."

Johnson is looking forward to his head-to-head showdown with Wade. For all his accomplishments, including three All-Star appearances and a spot on the U.S. national team at the 2006 world championships, the Hawks' soft-spoken star is still viewed as being a significant notch below players such as Wade, LeBron James and Kobe Bryant.

Last season, Johnson stepped up big in several playoff games when the Hawks surprisingly extended eventual champion Boston to seven games in the opening round. He's itching for the chance to lead his team to a series win, knowing that would give a major boost to his reputation.

"You get that type of respect for how you perform during the postseason," Johnson said. "During the regular season, you get your name out there, you get known. But the postseason is where legends are made."

WOMEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL: N.C. STATE

Harper to succeed Yow

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RALEIGH, N.C. — North Carolina State has named Western Carolina's Kellie Harper to follow Kay Yow as its next women's basketball coach.

In a news conference in Reynolds Coliseum on Thursday, university chancellor James Oblinger said Harper's hiring would represent a "new chapter in N.C. State's women's basketball program." Oblinger said it was a "thorough and emotional" process to find a successor for Yow, the Hall of Famer who died in January after a long fight against cancer.

Harper, sporting a black coat with an N.C. State lapel pin, said she's not going to shy away from Yow's legacy.

"Kay Yow is and will always be a legend," Harper said. "You obviously know that when you step foot on this campus. I respect what she has meant to this university, to this program. I can't be her. I wish I could. She's been tremendous. I have to be me. And that's, in my opinion, the best way that I can honor her."

Harper has spent the past five seasons at Western Carolina, compiling a 97-65 record while leading the Catamounts to two NCAA tournament bids and a pair of Southern Conference championships. Harper also played under Pat Summitt as part of Tennessee's three straight national championship teams from 1996-98.

She will have a five-year contract with a base salary of $247,000 at N.C. State.

The coaching search has been a sensitive issue for many surrounding the program that Yow led for more than three decades. Yow had hoped that the school would designate longtime assistant Stephanie Glance as her successor, but athletics director Lee Fowler said the school had to conduct a thorough search for a replacement.

Ultimately, that process ended with the 31-year-old Harper, a decision that signals an apparent fresh start for a program that had slid in recent years while nearby rivals North Carolina and Duke became fixtures among the nation's elite.

Glance, who had not returned calls for comment recently, issued a statement Thursday thanking the school and fans for support.

"I am saddened today that I will not have the opportunity to be the next head coach for the women's basketball program," she said. "I am most grateful for the lessons learned from the legendary Coach Kay Yow!"

SPORTS BRIEFS

Hefner, Pelfrey play for flight title

CARROLLTON — Sandra Hefner and Claire Pelfrey, both of Dalton, won fifth flight semifinal matches in the Georgia Women's Match Play Championship at Sunset Hills Country Club and will square off today for the title.

Hefner beat Pamela Pangle of Lessburg, 2-up and Pelfrey defeated Jane Hall of Americus 5 and 4.

Rochelle Weaver of Resaca beat Dalton's Sandra Doyle 2-up in the second flight. Nancy Hennier of Dalton lost to June Marbutt of Douglasville in the fourth flight semifinals and Dalton's Marcia Evans defaulted to Melissa Dickens of Alpharetta in the fourth flight consolation match.

Stabler will leave Tide radio booth

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Ken Stabler won't return as the football color analyst for Alabama radio broadcasts.

The former Crimson Tide and NFL quarterback had been on leave from his duties since his arrest on a drunken-driving charge last June. He was found not guilty by a judge in Robertsdale.

Crimson Tide Sports Network General Manager Jim Carabin and Alabama athletic director Mal Moore announced the decision on Thursday. Moore said Stabler had decided to pursue other opportunities.

Stabler had been charged with DUI at least twice before.

He was an All-American for the Tide in 1967 and worked as the color analyst from 1998-2007.

QB Batch returns as Steelers backup

PITTSBURGH — Backup quarterback Charlie Batch returned to the Pittsburgh Steelers by signing an $895,000, one-year contract that includes a $50,000 signing bonus.

The move Thursday was expected because Batch has been working out with the Steelers since missing last season with a broken right collarbone. Byron Leftwich replaced Batch as Ben Roethlisberger's backup, but he signed a $7.5 million, two-year deal with Tampa Bay.

Batch has been the Steelers' primary backup since signing with the Steelers in 2002. He has played in 22 games since then, starting four times.

O'Brien eases past Ploeger for crown

Matt O'Brien of Decatur shot a 1-under 71 Thursday to win the Georgia Super Senior Championship over Bill Ploeger of Columbus. O'Brien finished at 6-over 149.

Spencer Sappington of Milton had a closing 78 for 152 and finished third.

Sappington and Ploeger have played numerous tournaments in Dalton. They were playing in the final twosome in Thursday's final round.

The tourney was played at Ansley Golf Club in Roswell.

Ainge, Celts GM, has a heart attack

BOSTON — Boston Celtics general manager Danny Ainge was hospitalized Thursday after suffering what the team said was a minor heart attack.

The team issued a brief statement saying that Ainge, 50, was taken to a Boston hospital but gave few other details.

Ainge missed Wednesday night's regular-season finale because he wasn't feeling well.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CHARLESTON, S.C. — Second-seeded Venus Williams was upset in the third round of the Family Circle Cup on Thursday, falling to 63rd-ranked Sabine Lisicki 6-4, 7-6 (5) in a startling early exit that took even Williams by surprise.

"I wasn't expecting that and, you know, I'll try to come back next year and win," she said. "I made a few errors at the wrong time and she played some great shots."

It was the first time Williams had faced Lisicki, the German with the big serve seeded 16th this week. Lisicki consistently sent serves of over 110 mph toward Williams on the green clay of stadium court at Family Circle Tennis Center. Her serve of 123.1 mph at the Australian Open is the second-fastest on the women's tour this year.

"I'm confident with my serve," Lisicki said. "Sometimes I'm struggling, but you know, in the important points I could really count on my serve, which was very good."

At the end of the match, Lisicki buried her face in her towel and was asked later whether she was laughing, crying or simply wiping her face.

"Everything together. It was just pure emotions," she said, calling it one of the biggest wins of her career.

A day earlier, it took Williams almost 2 1/2 hours to eliminate Sania Mirza, ranked No. 100.

At 231 and counting, Chuck Buchanan is no stranger to the speedway

NASCAR

The No. 8 Chevy won't race this week, according to reports.

Chuck Buchanan's days as a racetrack chaser began the night he decided he didn't want to be a "Rainbow Warrior."

The defining moment came at a dinner in the early 1990s at a Sandwich Construction Co. eatery near Charlotte, N.C.

Ray Evernham was the host for an informal meeting with several potential crew members for the race team he was building for his then-rookie driver, Jeff Gordon. Buchanan was in the group, having heard about the meeting through connections he'd made as a part-time pit-crew member for various NASCAR teams.

At the meeting, Evernham laid out his expectations, which were revolutionary at the time. There would be early morning workout sessions followed by daytime duties at the shop and numerous pit-stop practices during the week.

Buchanan took it all in, but on the ride back to his home in Fletcher, N.C., he decided that Evernham's plans weren't for him.

"My daughter was growing up pretty fast, and I was already at a point where as soon as I got home from one race, I was already dreading having to leave the next weekend," he said. So he never pursued a full-time racing gig. "I didn't call them and they didn't call me," he said.

Having worked for several NASCAR teams and drivers, including David and Larry Pearson, Derrike Cope and the Elliott gang from Dawsonville, Ga., as well as road racers like Gene Felton and short-track racers like Larry Raines, he'd been to numerous racetracks already.

Adding it up

With his curiosity piqued, he started adding them up. He started with the first race he'd ever attended, a NASCAR Grand National (now Sprint Cup) race in 1967 at the old Asheville-Weaverville Speedway. He was eight years old.

"I went with my dad," he

Standing in a yard next to Bill Elliott's old race shop in Dahlonega, Ga., a young Chuck Buchanan poses next to the No. 52 Ford that Elliott drove to his first top-10 finish in the Cup Series, the 1977 Southern 500 in Darlington.

said. "The only things I remember about that race were that Wendell Scott was in it and they were selling little plastic helmets and checkered flags."

But he has no souvenirs from that day. "My dad said they were too expensive," he said.

Compiling the list led to a desire to run the total to 100.

He wanted that milestone to be memorable, so he chose the inaugural Sprint Cup race at Las Vegas Motor Speedway in 1998, a race won by Mark Martin.

"The next thing I knew, it was 200," he said. That marker was reached at a NASCAR Busch North race on the road course at Lime Rock, Conn.

The latest addition to the list, No. 231, is All American Speedway in Roseville, Calif., a track he visited last year.

Buchanan, who now works as a machinist making gears for tractor-trailer trucks, has done his traveling on the cheap, staying with friends, planning racetrack trips alongside family vacations and working as a freelance racing photographer.

"A lot of people have helped me and fed me and put me up," he said. "I couldn't have done it without them."

Tracks, drivers of yore

Some of his favorite stops are tracks that no longer host Cup races.

Tops among the 231 tracks he's visited is Atlanta Motor Speedway — the old configuration that was bulldozed in 1997 to make the current quad-oval. And he puts Rockingham Speedway, previously known as North Carolina Motor Speedway, high on the list.

For short tracks, Tri-City Raceway in Washington state is a favorite. "I really fell in love with that place," he said. And for dirt racing, he said it's hard to beat Rome Speedway in Georgia and Ventura (Calif.) Speedway.

"They're very racy," he said.

Over the years, he's witnessed triumph and tragedy.

The best race he's ever watched is a memorable one for many — the 1976 Daytona 500, where Richard Petty and David Pearson crashed while racing to the checkered flag.

"That's a memory I'll have as long as I live," he said.

Another that stands out is a night at Hickory Motor Speedway in North Carolina when Bobby Allison flew in from the Cup races at Talladega to run both the Modified and Late Model Sportsman feature.

"He didn't win either one of them, but he made an impression on me," he said.

The driver that impressed him the most over the years was Butch Lindley, the late short-track ace who made several strong starts in the series now known as Sprint Cup. And he marveled at the talents of Jody Ridley, the Georgia short-track star who gave journeyman NASCAR car owner Junie Donlavey his only Cup victory, at Dover in 1981.

Few regrets

Buchanan said there have been few downsides to his odyssey, other than lamenting about the tracks he never got to see.

"My biggest regret is that I never got to see a race at Riverside International Raceway," he said of the historic California road course that closed after the 1988 season.

So as he moves forward, and road weariness and financial pressures begin to limit his travels, he's modified his focus.

"I'm concentrating on tracks that may not be around in a year or two," he said.

"A lot of people have helped me and fed me and put me up. I couldn't have done it without them."

Last season's top rookie has yet to post a DNF

When it comes to evaluating athletes, no matter what sport, statistics are usually the best indicator of ability.

In racing, a driver's DNFs (Did Not Finish) can be instructive. As Sprint Cup driver Jamie McMurray says, "A lot of DNFs don't add up to much."

If he and others who subscribe to that school of thought are correct, Regan Smith ought to be a pretty good race driver: Throughout his entire Sprint Cup career, 44 races in all, he's never had a DNF. No matter what, he's been running at the finish. "There have been a bunch of almost misses," Smith said. "I've been in wrecks on the last lap at Talladega and limped back to the pits.

"At Dover, a piece of debris went through the radiator, but I caught it quick, and we were able to change it and finish the race."

He's fortunate to have never suffered a blown engine, but most mechanics will attest that the driver has a lot to do with engine durability. Smith agrees.

"I know guys that have blown up three motors in 10 laps of practice on a road course," he said. "Some are really aggressive in practice. I try to conserve in practice and take care of my stuff until the race."

Smith also distinguished himself in last year's Raybestos Rookie of the Year contest. The rookie class was loaded with a group of open-wheel racers with strong credentials — Jacques Villeneuve, Dario Franchitti, Sam Hornish Jr. and Patrick Carpentier.

But by the end of the season finale at Homestead-Miami Speedway, it was Smith surpassing them all to take the title.

Smith perhaps is best known for taking the checkered flag in the fall race at Talladega, only to be stripped of the win for driving below the yellow line, even though a good argument could be made that eventual winner Tony Stewart forced him there.

One of the great ironies this season is that the guy with no DNFs also has a problem with DNSs (Did Not Start).

Despite his résumé, Smith has no full-time ride this year. Instead, he's running a limited schedule with Furniture Row Racing. Rather than sulking about his apparent lack of reward for his past results, he's approaching the season with a positive attitude, proud to be racing with a team that's serious about its future.

"Sure, the starts could have been higher, but I'm happy with Furniture Row," Smith said. "I'm committed to them full time and they're committed to me. We're going to run as good as we possibly can.

"I have lots of goals left, and I think I'm a good enough race driver to compete with the best of them."

To be the best that he can be, he's doing what he can to stay mentally and physically fit on his off-weeks so he'll be at his best when he is racing. He's only scheduled to run 10 more times, including this week at Phoenix International Raceway.

He's studying the races he misses to compile his own set of notes for the future.

He watches the broadcasts on TV and uses NASCAR.com's TrackPass to listen in on driver-to-crew radio traffic.

"I make notes on what drivers and crews are saying and what the changes they make seem to do to the cars and how the racetrack changes throughout the race," he said. "It kills me to be home watching, but I have to suck it up and make the most of the situation."

Test your play

You are declarer with the West hand at Six Spades, and North leads the four of clubs. How would you play the hand?

This is strictly a percentage problem. There is no way to guarantee the slam, but there is one approach that gives you the best chance for the contract. Three different lines of play stand out, and they all start the same way. You win the club lead with the ace, draw trumps, cash the king of clubs and ruff a club.

Line No. 1: You take a heart finesse. If the queen loses to the king and a heart is returned, you next lead a diamond to the ace and a diamond back, finessing the jack.

This approach wins if North has either the king of hearts or the queen of diamonds. It offers about a 75 percent chance of success.

Line No. 2: You cash the A-K of diamonds. Assuming the queen does not fall, you then continue with the jack of diamonds.

If South has the queen, school is out because he must return a heart or yield a ruff-and-discard. But if North has the queen of diamonds, he wins and returns a heart. You take the finesse, and the outcome depends on who has the heart king.

This line of play succeeds if either opponent has the singleton or doubleton queen of diamonds, if South has the queen of diamonds, or if North has the king of hearts. The overall chance is about 78 percent.

Line No. 3: You play the ace of hearts followed by the queen. If South has the king, it's all over, because he must lead a diamond or yield a ruff-and-discard.

If North has the king of hearts, he is forced to return a diamond. If he has either the queen or ten, you make the contract. Thus, if North has 10-x-x and leads a low diamond, you follow low from dummy, trapping South's queen. If North returns the ten instead, you cover with dummy's jack to make the contract.

If North has the queen of diamonds, the outcome is the same. You follow low from dummy on his low diamond lead, take South's ten with the ace and then finesse the jack.

This method of play succeeds if South has the king of hearts, or if North has either the ten or queen of diamonds, or both. It offers about an 87 percent chance of success, failing only when North has the heart king and South the queen and ten of diamonds.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You'll be all over the place and, if you aren't careful, will get little accomplished. You have to have a game plan and a to-do list. Someone will be waiting on the sidelines for you to make a mistake or blunder. 3 stars

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Romance, socializing and putting things in order personally and professionally should be your main focus. Winnings, gifts, rewards, returns or a settlement you've been negotiating will have a positive influence on your life. 3 stars

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The sooner you take care of any pending personal matter, the better off you'll be. You cannot get ahead until you resolve whatever problem is standing in your way. Talks regarding property, home and family will bring results that you can live with. 3 stars

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Speak from the heart and you will get respect and the answers you need. Your intentions are good and, if you follow through with your long-term goals, you can make your dreams come true. YouTube Symphony makes live debut

NEW YORK (AP) — Even before they played their first note together, they were listed as one of the world's most inspiring orchestras. Part publicity stunt by its producers, part vanity trip by its participants, part opportunity to attract a younger crowd to classical music, the YouTube Symphony Orchestra made its much anticipated debut Wednesday night at Carnegie Hall.

In the four months since the project was announced, more than 3,000 videos submitted by amateur and professional musicians from 70-plus countries were auditioned. The musicians, who come from more than 30 countries, arrived in New York on Sunday. During rehearsals, they were coached by leading orchestral musicians.

Voters among the 15 million viewers of www.YouTube.com/Symph only selected the 93 winners, who ranged from ages 15 to 55 and included a surgeon-violinist and a professional poker player-cellist. "We're meeting a lot of different worlds," conductor Michael Tilson Thomas told the audience before the first downbeat, "the real time world, the online world and the experience of getting acquainted. For us it's been something between a classical music summit conference (and) scout jamboree combined with speed dating." Only last month, the prestigious British magazine Gramophone placed the group among the 10 most inspiring orchestras, praising it "for democratizing classical music on a global scale, making it truly all-inclusive."

Psoriasis can lead to arthritis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have had psoriasis for 10 years. I am 42. My skin stays pretty well controlled, but I have developed stiffness and pain in my back. I thought it was just an ordinary backache. I mentioned it to my dermatologist, and he sent me to a rheumatologist. She says it's from my psoriasis. How so? I have never heard of that. — R.S.

Paul G. Donohue

ANSWER: Everyone is familiar with the skin disorder psoriasis. Few know about psoriatic arthritis, arthritis associated with this skin problem. The psoriasis-associated arthritis affects from 5 percent to 30 percent of those with skin psoriasis. Let me make two points right off. First, people with psoriasis can have other kinds of arthritis, like osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis. Second, the severity of skin psoriasis doesn't affect the severity of psoriatic arthritis. In other words, minor skin psoriasis can generate major joint arthritis.

Any joint can be the target of psoriatic arthritis. The back is often targeted, as are the fingers, which swell and look like sausages. For a few people, psoriatic arthritis is quite disabling. Nail involvement is common with joint involvement. The nails have pits that look like they've been made by a needle. The nails also often separate from their underlying skin.

NSAIDs — nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs — are used for mild psoriatic arthritis. Naproxen, ibuprofen and indomethacin are such drugs. Methotrexate controls more-severe arthritis. A raft of newer drugs has made an appearance.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had a bad case of bronchitis, and my doctor put me on Levaquin. My cough stopped. After I finished the medicine, my right heel cord started to hurt. I saw another doctor, who says it came from the Levaquin, and he said my tendon might tear apart. Why is such a drug approved for use? —L.F.

ANSWER: Levaquin belongs to the quinolone drug family of antibiotics. Cipro, Noroxin, Floxin, Avelox and Maxaquin are other members. They're very useful medicines. All medicines have side effects. The quinolones can cause tendon inflammation in a few people, and the Achilles tendon, the heel cord, is the tendon most often affected. The inflammation can occur during use or after the medicine has been stopped. In an extremely small number of people, the tendon ruptures.

I don't mean to brush off this side effect as nothing. It happens only to a very small number. Such a side effect has to be tolerated in order to obtain the drug's benefit — cure of an illness.

ANSWER: Identical twins have the same genes as each other and, therefore, the same DNA. Identical twins occur when a single fertilized egg splits into two embryos. The fact that these twins have the same DNA makes them most useful when it comes to studying genetic (inherited) illnesses.

DEAR ABBY

Girls' doughnut tastes less sweet served in a paper bag

Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am 8 years old, and I love science. I am writing you because when I go to the doughnut shop, they always give me paper bags when I order my doughnut to eat there. I also notice other people getting bags they don't need because they are eating their doughnuts there, too.

How many trees have to die for no reason?

I care about recycling and how long it takes for things to break down in the earth. What can I do so the doughnut shop will stop wasting bags? — MANDI IN SCARSDALE, N.Y.

Readers, if you are interested in how long it takes the items we toss into our landfills to decompose, I found the following illuminating. Read on:

- Paper — 2 to 5 months
Orange peels — 6 months
Milk cartons — 5 years
Filter-tip cigarettes — 10 to 12 years
Plastic bags — 10 to 20 years
Leather shoes — 24 to 40 years
Plastic containers — 50 to 80 years
Disposable diapers — 75 years
Tin cans — 100 years
Aluminum cans — 200 to 500 years
Styrofoam — Never

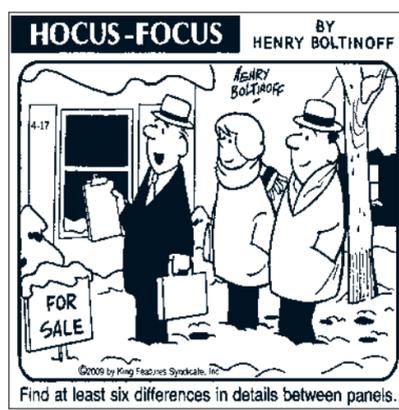

DEAR MANDI: I respect the fact that you are conscientious about how your actions — and the actions of the people around you — affect the environment. You are a sharp young lady.

What you should do is speak to the manager of the doughnut shop. Tell him or her that these days a strong selling point in many businesses is that they are "going green." In the case of the doughnut shop, it would cost them less and even gain them more customers if they would stop handing out bags to customers who are eating their doughnuts on the premises and tell them why. (A piece of waxed paper would suffice and create less waste.)

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Armstrong in Italian race

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILAN — Lance Armstrong has told organizers that he will race in the Giro d'Italia.

The announcement posted on the Gazzetta dello Sport's Web site on Thursday removed doubts that the seven-time Tour de France champion would miss the race after having surgery on a broken right collarbone last month.

The Gazzetta said the American contacted organizers Thursday from Colorado, where is currently training. The Giro runs May 9-31.

"The recovery has been going well and the plan is to be there," Armstrong's spokesman Mark Higgins wrote in an e-mail to The Associated Press.

It will mark the first time Armstrong races in the Italian classic, considered cycling's second most important race after the Tour.

Armstrong returned to racing at the start of this year after three and a half years of retirement.

He fell during the Vuelta of Castilla and Leon in Spain on March 23 and had surgery two days later. A stainless steel plate and 12 screws were inserted into to stabilize the broken collarbone.

Armstrong is also planning to enter the Tour in July, although he has said he is worried French doping officials may ban him for allegedly violating protocols during a recent drug test.

The Giro was originally scheduled to pass through France briefly during the 10th stage, but organizers changed the route last week, citing problems with the high mountain roads and bad radio reception.

Celebrating the race's 100th anniversary, Giro organizers have prepared a special route this year passing through most of Italy's major cities.

Panthers want DE back

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Carolina Panthers general manager Marty Hurney remains confident defensive end Julius Peppers will return to the team next season, even as he's made public his wishes to play elsewhere.

PRO FOOTBALL

In a pre-draft interview with reporters Thursday, Hurney said there were no new developments in the stalemate with their four-time Pro Bowl pick. The Panthers placed the franchise tag on Peppers. He has not signed the one-year tender for $16.7 million, however, and has said he won't sign a long-term deal with Carolina.

If a trade is not worked out, Hurney said he doesn't believe Peppers would hold out of training camp.

"We've known Julius for seven years, and it has been a good seven years," Hurney said. "I think he knows how we feel, and we feel like he's been happy here. And again, nothing has changed."

"We franchised him, and when we did we knew there was a period for the process to take place"

Under the non-exclusive franchise tag, another team could sign Peppers only by giving Carolina two first-round draft picks. The Panthers could trade him for less than that, but because he has not signed his tender, only agent Carl Carey can negotiate with other teams.

Peppers, who had a career-high 14 1/2 sacks last season, is causing the Panthers other offseason headaches, too. Even though he hasn't signed the contract, the $16.7 million counts against Carolina's salary cap.

Sensible haircut a must for pets

Q: Our spaniel mix has beautiful “feathers” on his legs and underbelly. He looks great when he comes from the groomer, but it doesn’t take long before all that beautiful, long fur is matted, tangled and (in the summer) full of burrs. Any suggestions for keeping him neater? — P.D., via e-mail

A: A lot of the physical features we see on dogs today are more about fashion than function. The profuse coats and feathering of some breeds and mixes are prime examples of this impracticality. In spaniels (especially American cockers), breeders have gone for more and more “furnishings” — longer, more luxurious coats that look stunning in the show ring but are too often messy in real life. The overabundance of coat may show up in spaniel mixes as well.

While those who show dogs work to keep every inch of coat, for the purposes of everyday life it’s usually better to keep things cut short. That’s why pet poodles are kept in body-hugging “puppy clips” and terriers have their wiry coats clipped instead of having dead hairs pulled individually, as is normal for show. (Exhibitors call this “hand-stripping.” It’s tedious work but essential for winning.)

Ask your groomer to clip your dog’s feathers to a functional length — short enough to keep combed and brushed, long enough to maintain a degree of attractiveness.

As for burrs, here’s a tip from hunting-dog trainers: Spray a little nonstick cooking spray (such as Pam) on the area. The lubricating effect will make it easier to slide the burr out of the fur. — Gina Spadafori

Q: I have a 5-month-old toy poodle, and she isn’t very interested in food. She’s healthy and playful, but I’m worried she isn’t getting her nutrition. I leave dry food down all the time. She waits until I add “goodies” such as broiled chicken breast. Any ideas? — Y.C., via e-mail

A: Without meaning to, you’ve taught your puppy that food is always available and that if she waits, something better will come along.

You’ve taught her to be finicky; now it’s time to teach her to eat.

Don’t keep food available at all times. It makes house-training more difficult and removes the power of food as a training tool. (Fresh water, on the other hand, should always be accessible.)

Give your pup a quiet place to eat with no distractions. A crate is ideal, but a small room with a baby gate across it will also do. Put the food down and leave your pup alone for 20 to 30 minutes. Then pick up the food, eaten or not, and give your pet no food until the next scheduled feeding. Repeat at every meal: a quiet space, a set time for eating, and remove the remainder.

Don’t worry if she misses a meal, or even a day’s worth of meals. She won’t starve. Above all: Do not, do not, do not give treats between meals, nor add those “goodies” to the meals after she turns up her nose.

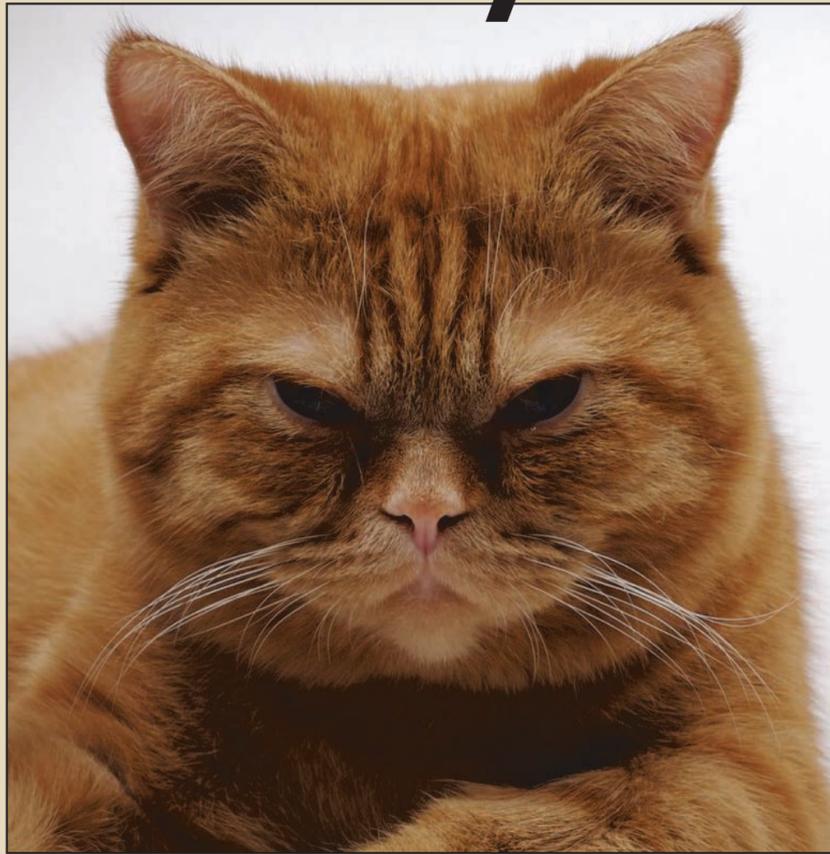

I doubt it will take more than a couple of days for your puppy to learn to eat promptly the food that’s set down in front of her.

Note: Don’t try this on a finicky cat. Cutting off a cat’s food supply abruptly can trigger a potentially fatal illness. If your cat’s not eating, talk to your veterinarian.

Pill me! I dare you!

Even the sweetest family pet can turn into a horror when faced with a trip to the veterinarian’s and a prescription for pills.

Getting meds down a cat can be good for a laugh

By Dr. Marty Becker
Universal Press Syndicate

In the spirit of the great shock-u-mentaries that are late-night cable favorites, I am going to expose veterinary medicine’s heinous funny bone with a joke we call “Give your cat this medicine at home.”

It starts out with a cat lover putting off the trip to the veterinarian with a sick cat to avoid the following chain of events: cat hides under the couch, human attempts to extricate the cat and stuff it into a carrier, cat claws shred human flesh like a feline Freddy Krueger, cat finally womanhandled (man of the house nowhere to be found, so manhandled not a possibility) into the carrier, and a quick drive to the veterinary hospital, often while being serenaded with the unhappy sounds of a cat plotting revenge.

Finally, the exam room: Let the show begin!

Out explodes the cat, hissing and raking the air with claws extended. Finally, about 325 pounds of restraint (veterinarian plus technician) catch the cat and put on a show called Contortionist Cat Examination. So far, so bad. Everyone except the cat is now covered in cat fur. Some are sneezing. Many are bleeding. All are scared.

Finally, it’s our turn to get even by simply saying to Mrs. Client with a straight face: “Socks has an infection that will require treatment at home for the next two weeks. Give Socks one of these tiny pills twice daily.” In the eyes of the cat and the owner, of course, the tiny pills look to be the size of tennis balls.

As we watch the rumbling box and dazed owner head toward the car, we can well imagine the World Wrestling Federation Feline Match that will take place once they are home. The very thought makes us smile as we clean up the fur and patch up our wounds.

Once Ms. Trepidation (formerly Mrs. Frustrated Kitty Client) opens the cat carrier at home, a streak of furry flash-lightning can be seen dashing under the same couch where this odyssey began. When Ms. Trepidation’s husband and children come home, she announces sweetly and innocently: “We need to give Socks a little medicine. Would you mind helping mommy?”

If they’ve been through this before, they respond with their own dash for cover: If they are rookies, they may agree to help, having no idea what’s about to happen.

Soothing words and food lures are ignored by the cat. A quick grab finally extricates him from under the couch. With pills and fluffy towels out and doors closed, one set of hands pries open the cat’s mouth and the bell rings for round one. Socks comes out swinging with a classic “bite or flight” response. The family counterpunches by throwing in the towel, literally, over and around the cat to make a cat burrito that can be stuffed with medicine.

Finally, the pill goes down, and everyone gives a big sigh of relief. Just then, the cat spits out the pill and in a flash is back under the couch. The family takes round two in stride as they put on the leather gloves. Not intimidated by a 575-pound opponent (Mom, Dad, couple of kids), the cat is ready to explore the floor, walls and ceiling of the living room.

Meanwhile, back at the vet’s office, the veterinary team is chuckling. “Think of all the suckers we sent home to try to medicate their cats today!”

The truth be known, it’s difficult even for veterinarians to give some cats medications. So next time you visit the vet and hear, “Give these little pills to kitty,” turn the tables by saying: “No, I think I’ll hospitalize her so you can make sure it gets done. As a matter of fact, would you show me the correct way to give a cat a pill, right now?”

Oh no. Payback. The worm has turned.

Simple TV ad nets big bucks for pets

The ASPCA scored millions in donations with an ad featuring sad pictures and sweet music.

- An advertisement featuring singer Sarah McLachlan for the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA) has proven to be a bonanza. The spot features still images of dogs and cats scrolling across the screen while McLachlan croons the haunting song “Angel” in the background. The New York Times reports the simple pitch has raised roughly $30 million for the organization since early 2007. (The ASPCA’s annual budget is $50 million.)

- Nearly 1,000 flute-playing snake charmers protested in Calcutta, India, demanding the right to perform with live snakes. USA Today reports that shows with cobras and other snakes have been banned in India since the Wildlife Protection Act of 1991, though they are still a common site among India’s estimated 800,000 charmers.

- Serotonin is crucial in the swarming of locusts, says a study published in Science magazine. The neurotransmitter, which moderates all kinds of behaviors in all kinds of animals (including humans), has now been shown to be responsible for turning desert locusts from standoffish loners into super-gregarious pests. This discovery may lead to methods to block the formation of locust swarms that can cover hundreds of square miles and involve billions of vegetation-munching insects, devastating agriculture and costing tens of millions of dollars to control.

THE SCOOP

Patience, repetition key to parrot speech

Teach your parrot to talk by repeating words clearly. Nurture communication further by using the words in their proper context and setting up an association your bird can grasp.

For example, every time your bird lowers his head to request a scratch, ask him, “Wanna scratch?” and then scratch him. When you give him foods or other toys, call them by name out loud. Play naming games with him: Say “keys” and then tell him “Good bird!” for taking them from you, and then repeat the exercise.

You may have an easier time in a one-bird household. Two birds may be more interested in communicating with each other than in figuring out your expressions. Some experts suggest not attempting to teach your bird to whistle, at least not until he has picked up speech. Whistling birds seem to show a reluctance to use words.

Not all parrots will learn to talk. African greys, Amazons and even tiny budgies seem to enjoy sharing language. Cockatiels are more likely to whistle tunes than talk.

Final note: Even if you’re not intentionally trying to teach rude words or sounds to your bird, you might want to be careful about what your pet hears. Any word or sound can end up in a bird’s repertoire, whether you want them there or not.

— Gina Spadafori

The African grey parrot is considered among the best at picking up language.

PET TIP

Want a cat? Adopt a pair

If you don’t have a cat yet and know you’ll eventually want two, it’s easiest to adopt a pair at the same time.

It might be even easier if the kittens or cats are siblings, since they’ll already be familiar with one another. But even if you adopt two unrelated cats or kittens (or a cat and a kitten), bringing them into a new home together at the same time works well, since neither has established his territory in the new environment.

Having two cats who like each other is the ideal situation, since neither will be lonely when you’re at work.

This is especially true of cats who spend their entire lives indoors. Having company can make life much richer for them — and for you!

On January 31, 2009, an officer with the Tunnel Hill Police Department initiated a traffic stop of a Toyota Camry vehicle on southbound Interstate 75 at mile marker 340 for driving a slow rate of speed, 55 mph in a 70 mph zone, ad weaving over the roadway. The officer suspected that the driver, Mr. Michael Aaron Johnson, might be sleepy or distracted from a long trip, since the vehicle was a rental car with a Texas license plate. When he spoke to Mr. Grant, the officer noticed a strong odor of raw marijuana coming out of the vehicle. The officer asked for assistance from a Georgia State Trooper. When Questioned, Mr. Grant said that he had just picked up his passenger, Mr. Josh Johnson, from a university where Johnson played football. When the officer confronted Mr. Grant about the odor of marijuana, Grant stated there was a small bag for personal use under the driver's seat. Incident to a search, the officer was not able to locate a small bag of marijuana under the driver's seat. However, in the truck, the officer located over an ounce of hydroponically grown marijuana in a large bag, which also contained a football jersey from Mr. Johnson's university. The officer then found two more bags of marijuana concealed under some carpet. The total weight of the marijuana was approximately one pound. Both Mr. Grant and Mr. Johnson were charged with violations of the Georgia Controlled Substances Act for possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of more than one ounce of marijuana. Mr. Grant had $5,800 of the above-referenced money on his person when he was arrested. Mr. Johnson had $41,575.00 of the above-referenced money on his person when he was arrested. CASE # 08-CV-5733-05

NOTICE OF SUMMONS
TO: JEFFREY DEAN SWAFFORD AND ANY OTHER PERSON CLAIMING TO BE THE FATHER OF THE ABOVE REFERENCED CHILD. The mother of said child is CARLA SWAFFORD. The named father of the child is JEFFREY DEAN SWAFFORD.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that consolidated petitions for deprivation and termination of parental rights in regard to said child have been filed in the Juvenile Court of Cobb County, Georgia, and that by reason of an Order for service by publication entered by the court on the 2nd day of April, 2009; YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED AND REQUIRED to appear before the Juvenile Court of Cobb County, Georgia, in Marietta, Georgia, on the 10th day of June, 2009, at 9:00 o'clock A.M. The hearing is for the purpose of determining whether the child is deprived and whether parental rights of the father should be terminated. The effect of an order terminating parental rights of the father should be terminated. The effect of an order terminating parental rights under O.C.G.A. Title 15, Chapter 11, Article 2 is without limit as to duration and terminates all the parent's rights and obligations with respect to the Child and all rights and obligations of the child to the parent arising from the parental relationship, including rights of inheritance. The parent whose rights are terminated is not thereafter entitled to notice of proceedings for the adoption of the child by another, nor has the parent any right to object to the adoption or otherwise to participate in such proceedings.

A copy of the consolidated petitions may be obtained from the clerk of the Cob County Juvenile Court, which is located at 1738 County Services Parkway, Marietta, Georgia 30008, during regular business hours, Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m., exclusive of holidays. A free copy shall be available to you. Upon request, the copy will be mailed to you. The child is in the present temporary custody of the Cobb County Department of Family and Children Services.

The general nature of the allegation is that parental responsibilities and obligations owed to the child by the father have been effectively abandoned. YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that while responsive pleadings are not mandatory they are permissible and you are encouraged to file with the clerk of this court and serve upon petitioner's attorney, Sanders B. Deen, 272 Washington Avenue, Marietta, Georgia 30060, an answer or other responsive pleading within sixty (60) days of the date of the order for service by publication.

All concerned parties are informed that they are entitled to have an attorney represent them and if a party requests appointed counsel and qualifies for such appointment, then the court will appoint counsel at no cost if the party is unable, without financial hardship, to employ counsel.

Witness the Honorable James R. Whitfield, Judge of said court. This 1st day of April, 2009.
